Junior operator loses control of SUV

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Police said luck played a large role in preventing a tragedy the day before Thanksgiving that involved a 1999 Ford Explorer with three teens inside that careened out of control on Route 3A.

A police officer was parked at JJ's when the Explorer that was headed north passed by at about 5:30 p.m. on Nov. 26. Police said the operator jammed on the brakes when she saw the cruiser and lost control of the SUV. She went into a high-speed spin and nearly hit four cars headed south before careening off the road into the parking lot by the former carpet showroom next to JJs, police said.

Miraculously, the 16-year-old driver and her two passengers, both 16, were not injured and the SUV was not damaged, police said.

"Based on her driving, she really dodged a bullet," Lt. William Quigley said.

The operator had her license for less than 60 days. Under junior operator rules, junior operators are not allowed to have underage passengers without an adult in the vehicle.

The teen was cited for negligent operation, being in violation of a junior operator's license and speeding. Police filed an immediate threat with the registry to have her license revoked until she is road-tested again. The officer at the scene did not feel she was familiar enough with the operation of a motor vehicle to be driving.

Parents of the three girls were called; they came to the scene and picked them up, police said.

Warrant arrest

Police arrested at 20-year-old Rockland woman on a warrant after they responded to a complaint about a group of teens drinking at a boat-storage facility off Route 3A (King Street) at 1:45 a.m. Thursday (Nov. 26). It was determined the Rockland woman had a default warrant from Bridgewater State College Police for being a minor in possession of alcohol and she was charged with the warrant. The teens were turned over to their parents.

The owner of the property was notified about the illegal activity on the commercial property and he will address that with the person that runs the storage business, police said.

Road rage

A Good Samaritan apparently stopped a road rage incident from escalating on Thanksgiving Day. A caller reported he was westbound on Forest Avenue at about 10 a.m. when a BMW pulled in front of him. He sounded his horn and the other driver responded by hitting his brakes. When the caller passed the BMW, the other driver caught up to him at the stop sign on lower King Street and Route 3A, according to the log entry.

The driver of the BMW then allegedly threw an apple and an orange at the caller's car and then got out and punched his window. The caller then got out of his vehicle and pushed the driver of the BMW. An uninvolved man, who reminded the two that is was Thanksgiving and told them to "knock it off," broke up the fight.

Police said there appeared to be culpability on both sides. They recommend motorists when faced with road rage to just "let it go" and not to escalate the situation.

Accident

A 62-year-old Cohasset woman operating a 2008 Pontiac SUV west on Beechwood Street "rear-ended" a 2000 Mazda operated by a 23-year-old Scituate woman with a 3-year-old child in the car at 11:24 a.m. on Thursday (Nov. 26) near Wheelwright Farm.

Police said the Scituate woman explained she put on her brakes when an animal ran in front of her car. Police received a call from Onstar and several 9-1-1 calls about the accident. There were minor injures, no one was cited and both vehicles were towed.

Trespassing

A 51-year-old Jamaica Plain man, who took the train to Cohasset to visit his sister on Thanksgiving, was arrested after walking along the right-of-way near the train tracks. An off-duty officer spotted the man walking from the station along the tracks to King Street at about 1:36 p.m. Cruisers were dispatched and the MBTA stopped the trains. Police have a zero tolerance policy about people walking along the tracks because of the danger. The man was charged with trespassing, police said.

Acting

The manager of Shaw's notified police at about 2:50 p.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 24) that an elderly man in the store told employees he was drunk and should not be driving. As it turned out the 75-year-old Scituate man had observed employees watching him and was putting on a little act, police said. It was determined that he had not been drinking but he was asked by the management to leave the store, police said.

Vandalism

A Margin Street resident did not want to go forward with a criminal complaint after reporting that people in three vehicles put shaving cream and paper all over her vehicle. It was determined to be a prank following the Powder Puff football game at the high school, police said. The incident was reported on Tuesday (Nov. 24) at 9:48 p.m.

Shoplifting

A shop on Route 3A reported to police last week that they suspect someone had been shoplifting. They were able to provide a plate that was traced to an 81-year-old Hingham woman. The store plans to follow-up at their end with the Hingham woman to determine if the shoplifting may have been an oversight. She was apparently seen wheeling a cart out of the store containing some items. They will notify police if further incidents occur.

Jewelry missing

A 64-year-old Cohasset man reported to police that he and his wife were doing an inventory of family heirlooms to update their insurance policy and discovered that items of jewelry valued at about $35,000 were missing. The jewelry was kept in a bedroom closet and had not been inventoried since 2002. The larceny, which was reported at about 10 a.m. on Thursday (Nov. 26), is under investigation.

Racial slurs

Police are investigating racial slurs that were written on the back of a bathroom door in a medical building off Route 3A. Patients use the bathroom, police said. The medical office staff also told police about a similar incident a couple of weeks ago. The latest incident was reported at about 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday (Nov. 25).

Intoxicated

A 16-year-old Hanover boy, who was throwing up in a bathroom at a restaurant in Cohasset on Friday (Nov. 27) at about 9 p.m. during a birthday party, was picked up by his parents. Police said the boy, who was attending a birthday party for another 16-year-old, appeared to be intoxicated.

Harassment

Two teenaged girls, ages 19 and 17, both Scituate residents, apparently had a dispute over a boyfriend that resulted in an assault with a bagel in a local eatery last week. One girl, who was employed at the restaurant, thought the other girl had come in to harass her and she allegedly threw a bagel in her face. The dispute was reported to police. No one was injured and no charges are being pursued. Management is handling the matter with the employee, police said. The money the alleged victim spent for her bagel was refunded to her.

Horsing around

The manager of a restaurant off Route 3A (King Street) notified police on Friday (Nov. 27) at about 9 p.m. about two teens fooling around outside door. One pushed the other and cracked the glass in the door. The teens took off in a gray Honda but the caller did not see in which direction they were headed.

Abandoned bike

Police picked up a rusty, purple Schwinn mountain bike with no seat and crooked handlebars last Wednesday after a resident reported it had been abandoned outside the house for a few days. Police have a number of abandoned bikes at the station. If unclaimed for a year, the bicycles are turned over to propertyroom.com and police get a portion of the proceeds of their sale. However, police would like anyone missing a bike to call the station or stop by.

Suspicious bag

Police responded to a report of a suspicious bag on the sidewalk between the Cohasset Consignment Shop and the Shoe Market for Kids in Tedeschi Plaza on Tuesday (Nov. 24) at about 2:28 p.m. The officer located a black leather duffel bag with two vases, two books, two belts and two CDs inside. The bag and items are being held in the property room at police headquarters. No one has claimed them, police said.

Selectmen ink inter-municipal agreement discuss the center and the agreement in the coming weeks.

With the opening of the regional dispatch center, which is expected to be sometime in 2010, fire and police dispatch will no longer come from the Cohasset Police Station.

This week's signing of the inter-municipal agreement is the culmination of over two years of meetings between the town's fire and police chiefs as well as the town managers/administrators.

The Cohasset Police Association, which includes members of the Cohasset Police Patrolman's Association and the Cohasset Police Superior Officers Association, came forward two weeks ago to express concerns about the regional dispatch center. Their primary concern was how a regional dispatch would affect the police station during the overnight hours. Currently, the overnight dispatcher mans the police station from 8p.m. to 6a.m. The union also had other concerns about safe manning levels, equipment and operations.

To start the discussion, Selectmen chairman Paul Carlson acknowledged the unions previously stated concerns about the possible unmanning of the station during the overnight hours, but indicated that issue was for another day, "this is not a discussion on station operation."

In his opening remarks, Town Manager Bill Griffin said the regional dispatch center offered a chance for the towns to save money, find efficiency and provide a better service to the citizens. He described the state grants, which total more than $3 million, will pay for the capital costs to design and build the center. Because the state favors a regional approach more annual grants, nearly quadruple what the towns receive now, are expected as well.

Town officials said the issue of the overnight manning of the police station on Elm Street would be an open discussion as the regional dispatch center plan began to come together – and would need to involve the soon-to-be-hired new police chief.

Fire Chief Robert Silvia said his department went into this with one goal — to improve on what the department presently has for dispatch services. He said dispatchers are responsible for answering the phones and helping people at the window, which is a lot to ask of one person.

Former Police Chief James Hussey, who had been a part of the planning for the regional dispatch center, returned to Cohasset to affirm his support of the center.

"A one-man dispatch can be crazy at times…(the regional dispatch) will provide a much better working environment because the (dispatchers) will not have to deal with people walking in off the street. This will be a true dispatch," Hussey said.

Hussey also pointed out the current dispatch consoles at the Cohasset station need to be updated in the coming years. With the regional dispatch the need for a capital upgrade will go away.

It was said several times by several different town officials that the regional dispatch center was not primarily about the possibility of financial savings. Town Manager Griffin previously stated he expected a 25 to 35 percent annual savings from what the town is paying now for dispatch services.

The current plan, according to Griffin, is to staff the regional dispatch center with five dispatchers in the day and evening shifts and three dispatchers on the overnight shift.

Other details were less clear. Both Silvia and Hussey said the hard and fast details of the dispatch center were yet to be worked out because the towns did not have the money to explore the different options. The state grant money becomes available to Hingham (because it is the lead town) when at least two towns sign the agreement.

"The details, where the rubber meets the road, have to be figured out. But, do I think one dispatch can handle it? Yes," Hussey said.

The chiefs said the regional dispatch would allow for an increased flow of information between the towns, faster mutual aid response and the ability for dispatchers to provide emergency medical dispatch directly to the caller.

Carlson responds to residents' concern

I have received numerous phone calls from Cohasset residents expressing concern that, once we create the regional dispatch center, the existing police/fire station will be closed down and all personnel and equipment will be moved to Hingham. This will NOT happen.

We are only talking about moving the dispatch personnel to Hingham for the purpose of upgrading our already excellent dispatch operations. The police/fire station will remain right where it is. The residents of Cohasset will continue to receive the superb protection that they have learned to expect.

— Paul Carlson
Chairman
Board of Selectmen

Police union asks questions

Cohasset Police Officer Jim McLean, who also serves as the president of the Cohasset Police Association, peppered the Selectmen with questions, some technical and some financial. When the Selectmen didn't have the answers, they asked McLean to submit his questions in writing.

McLean said it was concerning that the town was considering jumping into the agreement without knowing the answers to his questions like what the cost savings over the long term would be and how the radio communication would work.

"Shouldn't these details be hard and fast before entering into an agreement? Why do we have to be pioneers?" McLean asked.

Selectman Fred Koed said the main driver for getting involved with the regional dispatch was the potential for improved services, adding the town would want to do that regardless of the cost.

"We want to work in partnership with your unions, but until we get the (state) grant money it is really difficult to get those answers," Koed said.

In response to the idea of adopting a wait and see approach, Fire Chief Silvia said they know this is a good thing for the towns and public safety.

"We have been in on this from the ground floor. We want to be in charge of our own destiny," Silvia said. "Do we know there is a lot of work to do? Yes. Am I concerned? No, we have a lot of talented and dedicated people."

Dispatchers Chris Grant and Kelly McCarthy, who are also concerned about their job security, said they were not invited to participate in the regional dispatch discussions, even after requesting to be involved in the four-town meetings. A Teamsters union representative spoke to Griffin recently, but none of the local dispatchers, who are part of the Teamsters union, were involved in the conversation, they said.

"All these men and women behind me are here on their own time…They are here to make sure we can do our jobs the best way we can," McLean said.

When Selectman Ted Carr asked the police officers in attendance if any one of them supported the regional dispatch center no one responded.

Sergeant Jeff Treanor, the midnight supervisor for Cohasset police, said he found it disturbing the officers were "left out of the loop" on this issue.

"This directly affects the way we do our jobs," Trainor said. "I ask that an olive branch be extended in the future so we can begin to have a good discourse back and forth."

Residents weigh in

Charles Santoro of Linden Circle brought a wealth of police and dispatch experience to his comments. The lieutenant for the Quincy Police Department said he has trained dispatchers from all over the country.

Because of his experience, he said the most important thing would be to provide complete training for the dispatchers in the equipment, the processes and the geography of all four towns. He also asked the selectmen to consider where the money to provide that training would come from given the financial situation at the state level.

"Dispatchers are the first person there, they are part of the team…my concern is (the regional dispatchers) may not have the same courtesy, professionalism and concern for the citizens of Cohasset that the dispatchers have now," Santoro said. "My issue is if it is not broken, why are you trying to fix it?"

As far as the station being unmanned overnight Santoro said that "couldn't happen."

"If it is walk-in that saves a life…if it was my son or daughter I would think 'thank God they were there,'" Santoro said. "It boggles my mind this place might not be manned."

In that same vein, a resident of Doane Street, Chrissy Sladen, said she had a medical emergency where she drove to the police and fire station for help. No one answered the bell at the fire station, so she went next door to the police station, walked in and collapsed.

"Luckily the dispatcher was there. Had no one been there who knows how long I would have been laying at the police station," Sladen said, also giving two other examples where the dispatchers and Cohasset police force have gone over and above.

"That's the small town kind of things that we love," she said.

'Not insurmountable'

After listening to nearly two hours of comments from town officials and the public, the Selectmen spoke their minds.

"This is a tough one, even for us," said Selectman Ralph Dormitzer. He felt there were significant operational issues that would need to be resolved, but wasn't sure they could be without additional funding the signing of the inter-municipal agreement would trigger.

"As far as the personal touch, it won't be quite at the level we have now, but is that reason enough not to regionalize if it means better service?" Dormitzer said. "I have faith enough in our people that the issues will be resolved mostly to our satisfaction."

Selectman Koed said he felt 10 years from now there would be a better level of emergency service for the towns. "The operational issues are not insurmountable."

Selectman Carr was concerned at the fact the police unions and dispatchers had not been more intimately involved in the dialogue over the regional dispatch center and wanted that to change going forward.

"If we can all figure out a way to work together we can proceed in an efficient way. To not change or not even be open to it is not the right decision," Carr said, adding later the town needed to figure out a way to have someone man the station overnight.

Selectman Vice Chair Karen Quigley also spoke to the idea of change, "change is hard, change is hard for all of us, but this change is going to be better for everybody. Any objections raised here tonight are not insurmountable."

Selectmen Chair Paul Carlson said the discussion was a learning experience, but he was "impressed with the arguments for the improved services (the towns) are going to have."

Carlson said there would be time to deal with if and how to man the police station overnight and other issues.

"I am impressed our three professionals – the town manager and the police and fire chiefs – are all very, very enthusiastic about it and I bow to their judgment," Carlson said.

After hearing the opinions of the Selectmen and from their comments knowing their intended votes, the police officers began filing out of the room before the vote was even taken.

The Selectmen voted 5-0 to approve the inter-municipal agreement.

Schools face 'under-funded' line items

Unemployment, legal costs adding up quickly

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The unemployment line item, which for the first time has come under the school side of the budget, as of the end of October has used $73,613 of its $80,000 allocation.

In at least three budget line items the School Department is looking at facing deficits well before the end of the fiscal year.

Already, with just one-third of the fiscal year reported, two line items are over 90 percent used up. And a third line item for out-of-district special education placements is expected to jump substantially with the addition of three recent out-of-district placements — and the possibility of two more — not budgeted for.

Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh and business manager Dave DeGennaro alerted the School Committee to the under-funded line items on Wednesday night.

The unemployment line item, which for the first time has come under the school side of the budget, as of the end of October has used $73,613 of its $80,000 allocation.

Walsh said in part the federal government's decision to extend the number of weeks former employees could collect unemployment benefits has contributed to the high percentage used. The unemployment costs could as high as $200,000, Walsh warned.

"The reason we are bringing it to your attention is because in FY10 we will be short and in FY11 we have to put ample money into it," Walsh said.

Previously, unemployment costs came out of the town budget but this year, because most of the costs are school-employee related, the town requested the schools to include the line item in its budget. The town allocated $20,000 to the schools for the purposes of unemployment.

School Committee vice chair Alfred Slanetz said he would bring up the topic at the next Budget Planning Group meeting to see how the town and schools might deal with this cost going forward.

In addition to the unemployment line item, almost 92 percent of the legal expense line item has been paid out. In numbers that is $28,480 of $31,000 allocation.

"This is a moving target as well," said DeGennaro. The negotiation of the teachers' contract and a currently underway arbitration have amassed legal bills and used up the $25,000 school counsel retainer. The schools are also about to open negotiation with the cafeteria workers union.

Lastly, the out of district special education line item could go up substantially in the coming months. As of the end of October, 22 percent of the $934,967 allocation had been consumed. However, since that time three un-budgeted out-of-district placements have come up and two more are pending.

Walsh said for the three students recently placed in out-of-district schools there is a $175,000 exposure, which mostly likely could be covered by the $182,000 the School Committee "pre-paid" with surplus special education funds from last year's budget. However, if it is determined the two additional students need out-of-district services, there could be an additional budget exposure of $90,000.

"We're going to see (the out-of-district special education costs) go over $1 million," Walsh said.

Walsh, once again, said these under-funded line items would impact the current fiscal year's budget and would need to be properly funded in next year's budget.

A draft version of the Cohasset Schools fiscal 2011 budget will be unveiled in the coming month.

Paraprofessionals pay restored

Pay, benefits return to last year's levels

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"The timing of everything wasn't optimal in terms of the way it was communicated."
— Alfred Slanetz, School Committee

The paraprofessionals have been struggling for the past few months. Since finding out about a significant pay cut in the days before school opened in September some paraprofessionals have been struggling to pay their bills and mortgages. Some have struggled to be heard by the school administration and the School Committee. Some have struggled going to work everyday feeling like they were not valued employees.

On Wednesday night, in part a recognition of those struggles, the School Committee voted to restore the paraprofessionals to their previous year's salary and return the small group of school employees to the way they had previously been paid.

"Our goal was to do our best for you," School Committee vice chair Alfred Slanetz said.

In September the paraprofessionals, who primarily support special education students in the classroom at all three schools, were shifted from salaried to hourly payroll. The payroll adjustment resulted in a significant loss of pay and a change to benefits.

A finance and budget sub-committee meeting was held two weeks ago with the paraprofessionals giving them the chance to explain their point of view. Slanetz said the contracts, or letters notifying of employment, presented to the sub-committee were influential in their decision.

"The committee felt it was clearly stated in past letters announcing payment (as salary)," Slanetz said, also acknowledging the way the paraprofessionals were notified of the change in pay schedule was not ideal. "The timing of everything wasn't optimal in terms of the way it was communicated."

The paraprofessionals will once again be based on a salary schedule with regular payments every two weeks and receive retroactive payment back to the first day of school. Sick benefits will be accrued once again and the paraprofessionals will still receive the 10 paid holidays recently approved by School Committee last month (in previous years the paraprofessionals were not paid for holidays).

However, the return to salaried employment — and their previous rate of pay — could be only temporary.

"Going forward next year (the paraprofessionals) will be on an hourly payment with 180 school days and 10 holidays," Slanetz said, adding the town and the schools are entering a tough budget cycle.

The hourly rate schedule will be determined during the budget process.

Six paraprofessionals waited for over two and half hours — through the whole School Committee meeting — waiting for the decision. The word didn't come until after the committee went into a 40-minute executive session, which is closed to the public.

The paraprofessionals asked several questions about the sick benefits and requested ample notification on whether they would have their jobs and what their expected rate of pay would be.

Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh said they "do our best" to give relative assurance of a job in the fall at the end of the school year, but a lot can happen over the summer.

"I usually don't know definitively how many aides will be needed until the week before school starts," Walsh said.

Slanetz said the budget for the next year is set after March's Annual Town Meeting and then the committee would have some time to determine an appropriate hourly wage balancing the needs of the school and the budget constraints.

"At the end of the day this has been a learning process for both sides…the decision was made too rashly (but now) we can go forward and have a positive school year," said Maureen McElgunn, an instructional aide at Osgood.

The School Committee, in a 3 to 1 vote with member Lucia Flibotte opposed, directed the Superintendent Walsh to build a budget for next year's paraprofessionals based on 180-day school year, plus 10 holidays at an hourly rate to be determined. (Chairman, Adrienne MacCarthy, was not at Wednesday's meeting).

"Everything is negotiable…we will revisit it," said School Committee member Helene Lieb.

Historical Society to present Wassail Party

The tree is up and the holiday spirit prevails as Cohasset Historical Society prepares for its annual Wassail Party from 4 to 6 p.m., on Sunday, Dec. 6, at the Pratt Building, 106 South Main St. All members of the community are welcome to join in convivial conversation and light refreshment.

Attendees will be treated to a sneak peek at the latest exhibit – a tribute to Francis Hagerty. A multitalented individual, Hagerty started a furniture company whose fame was to spread far beyond the confines of New England. He founded Cohasset Colonials in 1949, making high-quality antique reproductions in kit form that could be put together by someone other than a carpenter. Look for the official opening of the Hagerty exhibit on Jan. 11, but come on Sunday for a preview of this display.

When snowstorms, ice arrive

The Cohasset D.P.W. reminds residents that a sand and salt mixture will be available in the upper corner of the town parking lot.

When snow is in the forecast, residents are asked to not park on streets plowed by the town to expedite snow removal. Vehicles that obstruct snow removal operations will be towed at the owner's expense. Residents and contractors are reminded not to move snow, ice or water onto roadways that may impede traffic.

The town is not responsible for damage to mailboxes, driveway aprons, walkways, stonewalls, grassed areas, shrubs, trees or fences that fall within the town layout.

Hall of Fame Committee seeks members

The Cohasset High School Athletic Department is looking to start a Hall of Fame. Anyone potentially interested in being involved and/or possibly serving on the Hall of Fame Committee, contact athletic director Ron Ford at 781-383-6103 or rford@cohassetk12.org.

Local patients, physicians, and South Shore residents also joined to celebrate life with Swarner at the free event hosted by Commonwealth Atrius Cancer Center at the Quincy Marriott.

Cohasset physician joins cancer survivors at 'Keep Climbing' event

Cohasset resident Dr. Michael Anderson (left), President of Commonwealth Hematology-Oncology, recently joined local patients, physicians, and South Shore residents at "Keep Climbing — Celebration of Life." The free community event featured Sean Swarner— first cancer survivor to summit Mount Everest and complete the "7 Summits" of the world. Commonwealth Atrius Cancer Center in Weymouth hosted the event at the Quincy Marriott.

Dr. Michael Anderson, and Claire Fung, M.D., Medical Director of Commonwealth Atrius, welcomed patients and the community. Then Swarner, author of Keep Climbing, inspired the audience with his story of overcoming cancer twice, after being told he had two weeks to live, and climbing Mt. Everest and every continent's highest peak, as he compared summiting a mountain to battling cancer.

Commonwealth Atrius Cancer Center in Weymouth, Mass., the first comprehensive, freestanding cancer center in the area, is a collaboration between Commonwealth Hematology-Oncology (CHO) and Atrius Health. Commonwealth Atrius, features personalized, multidisciplinary cancer care with all non-surgical cancer care services — medical oncology, radiation oncology, imaging, and other allied health services — under one roof. The radiation oncology suite, operated by Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates (an affiliate of Atrius Health), offers the area's most advanced radiation therapy.

Sixth Annual Advent Blessing of the Animals

Once again First Parish Unitarian Universalist celebrates our animal companions in the season known as Advent. Come join us for this Advent Blessing of the Animals on Sunday (Dec. 6) at 3 p.m. in the Meeting House on Cohasset Common. As St. Francis gathered animal creatures around a crèche many centuries ago, we bring our animal companions to the Meeting House chancel and bless them amid a service of stories and songs, readings by our children and sounds wondrously uncommon in the setting of sanctuary.

Come share this service with friends furry and feathered, winged and wooly, scaly and silken! This translates into cats, dogs, birds, fish, snakes, lizards and more. At past blessings we've greeted a blind pony and alpacas. One never knows who will show up! If you have an animal companion who has passed on, bring a photo for a blessing of memory.

Cohasset resident honored by Archdiocese

Kierce receives Cheverus Medal

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The Catholic Church and the Archdiocese of Boston recently honored Cohasset resident Chris Kierce for his work for the church and the community.

In a ceremony held on Sunday, Nov. 22 Cardinal Sean O'Malley presented a Bishop Cheverus Medal to 130 men and women throughout the Archdiocese of Boston.

Kierce found out he was a recipient of the medal about two weeks before the presentation at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross in Boston on Nov. 22.

"I was absolutely surprised and very thankful. I was unaware that my name had even been submitted," Kierce said this week.

In its second year, the Bishop Cheverus Medal was started by Cardinal Sean O'Malley of the Archdiocese of Boston to recognize the recipients' "service to the Catholic Church and God's people." The auxiliary bishops, which for the south region is Bishop John Dooher, and pastors, like St. Anthony's Rev. John Mulvehill, of the archdiocese nominate and Cardinal O'Malley ultimately chooses the recipients.

"The Cheverus Medal was started last year by Cardinal O'Malley to recognize what we call the unsung heroes in the parish. They are the people that do the hard work, but don't usually get the recognition they deserve," Mulvehill said.

The medal is named for the archdiocese's first bishop, Jean-Louis Anne Magdelaine Lefebvre de Cheverus, who led the diocese from 1808 until his return to France in 1824. Bishop Cheverus died in 1936 as the archbishop of Bordeaux.

This year marks the second year these medals will be awarded. The tradition was started last year during the closing Mass of the bicentennial of the archdiocese.

"My faith is very important to me and I like to share my experiences and time."
— Chris Kierce

Mulvehill said Kierce has put his talents and faith to good use in various capacities for the parish. Kierce and his family moved to Cohasset from Cincinnati, Ohio in 1982. He and his family have been parishioners at St. Anthony's Parish for the last 27 years. He is a Eucharistic minister, a lector, co-chair of the pastoral council and has headed up the parish's annual Catholic appeal.

Three years ago, Kierce started going to Golden Living Center in Cohasset every Sunday Kierce to conduct a prayer service and gives communion to those residents who can't make it to Sunday mass. After the prayer service he visits with residents who are bedridden and offers them communion.

"My faith is very important to me and I like to share my experiences and time," Kierce said.

To the medal ceremony Kierce was accompanied by a very proud — and large — delegation of family and friends, which he said made the event even more special.

The Cheverus medals were conferred to the over 100 recipients at a mid-afternoon celebration at the Cathedral of Holy Cross, the mother church of the Archdiocese of Boston and the largest church in New England.

"It was just great to be there in the presence of such a warming and heartfelt group," Kierce said. The clergy were in full regalia and the music and choir was "very, very exhilarating," he said.

Kierce said while he was "humbled and surprised" by the honor and was proud to get the recognition for his years of work in the parish. Father Mulvehill announced Kierce's receipt of the Cheverus Medal in the church bulletin.

"It just let folks know how much I've been involved at the parish," Kierce said. "I think unsung hero award is a good analogy and I'm sure there are more folks out there who are deserving."

Time to stroll, Cohasset!

Holiday Stroll to include 3A businesses

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

This year a Cohasset holiday tradition that began many decades ago is returning to its roots.

On Saturday, Dec. 12 businesses from the village and Route 3A, where the "holiday stroll" tradition began, are joining forces to put on a daylong event full of festive activities and holiday cheer.

As an expression of the inclusion of the two main sectors of Cohasset business, what has been coined the "village holiday stroll" has officially changed its name to the "Cohasset Holiday Stroll" this year.

Sponsored by the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce since the organization's inception, the Holiday Stroll will take in two parts: the participating businesses on Route 3A will have activities from noon to 4p.m. and the village business will hold their festivities from 4 to 7p.m.

"We couldn't be more thrilled to have this synergy between the 3A and village businesses. We're all just trying to do our part," said Beverly Bielewicz, owner of the village's Paperscapes.

Wreaths featuring what has now become Cohasset commerce's signature design, four decorated starfish and burgundy bow, went up dozens of the town's businesses in the last week.

Lisa Evans, owner of Country House Furniture & Interiors, spearheaded the effort to include 3A businesses in the stroll event.

"It seemed like all the events are about downtown, so I thought maybe we could do something up here," Evans said and when she mentioned it at a Chamber meeting everyone was for it. "This is the first time 3A businesses have participated in quite some time."

Going door to door along 3A she was able to get 13 businesses along the Cohasset 3A corridor on board. There will be participating businesses from Jonathan Livingstone Plaza, Tedeschi Plaza, Shaw's Plaza all the way down to her shop near the Cohasset-Scituate border. The involved businesses will be marked with red and green balloons.

While the idea of "strolling" on Route 3A is a little less practical than it is in village, Evans said there are groups of stores where activity will take place.

In the section of 3A where Country House is located (818 Chief Justice Highway), there is a group of shops that customers can walk between. King Jewelers, Wink & Boston Jean Company, Lemon Lime Aveda, Tanzia Tanning Studio and Country House are all within safe walking distance, Evans said.

Holiday characters, like Frosty, a Christmas tree and a Gingerbread man, will be waving to passersby. All along Route 3A businesses will have holiday treats, crafts and customer specials. At Lemon Lime Aveda a French caroler will entertain visitors and Buttonwood Books & Toys will have a mosaic Christmas craft, to name a couple.

"We hope to start building a relationship with the village businesses and really start to approach events from a town wide point of view," Evans said, who is hopeful more 3A businesses will sign up next year. "And it is a way to show our appreciation to our customers during this busy holiday season."

Valerie King, owner of King's Jewelers, is excited to bring the Holiday Stroll back to 3A. Her father, Forrest King, was one of the founders of the Chamber of Commerce, and one of the Chamber's first activities was to put on the holiday stroll, which took place on 3A.

"It's nice that the village and 3A businesses are banding together for the event. It is so important especially in these times for local business to support each other," King said. King's Jewelers plans to have refreshments, holiday cookies and a visit from Santa Claus.

In the village, this year has brought out the most participating businesses in recent years.

"It has really gotten bigger over the last couple of years," Bielewicz said. A total of 32 businesses will take part in evening portion of the Holiday Stroll event. From an ice sculptor on Depot Court to the high school jazz combo at the Arts Center to gourmet chocolate tasting at All the Best, there will be plenty of see and take part in.

Village shops and businesses from Ripley Road, Smith Place, Elm St. and South Main Street will join in the fun with each business offering something different to the mix - music, crafts, food, drink.

Baskets of all types of goodies – donations from all participating businesses – will be on display in the Pilgrim Bank. The baskets will be raffled off on Saturday night and the proceeds from the $5 raffle tickets benefit the Cohasset Food Pantry and Council on Elder Affairs.

Village Fair set for Dec. 5 on the Common

Cohasset ASP is once again helping out at the annual Village Fair, which will take place on the Common from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 5.

The Secret Room will take place up the hill at St. Stephen's Church, first floor Water Melon room. In the Secret Room, children, escorted by an ASP teen-volunteer, begin by making a list of those for whom they will be buying gifts. Then, in the "retail area" they can purchase gifts for siblings and parents and pets that range in price from $1 to $7 each. Finally, they will move through the cashier to the wrapping room where they will wrap and label their gifts, ready to put under the tree.

Santa Claus will make his annual appearance on the Common – at 2nd Congregational Church if it rains – between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

There will also be several tables with various holiday crafts made by Appalachian artisans in the First Parish House.

The public is encouraged to join ASP members to help make holidays complete and, at the same time, contribute to the town-wide outreach charity through the nonprofit Cohasset Appalachia Service Project home repair program; Gary Ritts, director; 781-383-0345; www.CohassetASP.org.

Estate-ish Sale

In order to help make your Christmas more "green," please stop by First Parish UnitarianUniversalist (UU) for their sale of good quality used items – ready to be recycled in your home. For many years First Parish UU has sponsored a bargain sale of used items during the Village Fair. The sale started out as a "jumble sale" and then evolved to an "estate-ish sale" as the quality and popularity increased. Now in these times when recycling is paramount in everyone's thoughts, the sale has morphed into a "reusable sale", entitled "The ReUUsable Sale." The church offers for sale a wide variety of good reusable items ranging from household goods, linens, bric-a-brac, jewelry, and furniture to art work, boutique items, toys, children's clothing, and sporting goods. The sale provides excellent value with reasonable prices and good quality.

The ReUUsable Sale will run from 10 am to 2 pm on Saturday, Dec. 5th. The sale is held in Trueblood Hall in First Parish UU's parish house at 23 North Main St. It's a great place to treat yourself or pick up an inexpensive treat for someone else. If you are interested in making donations to the sale, please contact the church at 781-383-1100.

Rusty Skippers

The Rusty Skippers, Cohasset's own community concert band, will be performing their annual Holiday Pops Concert at the Meeting House of First Parish Unitarian Universalist, on the Cohasset Common, on Saturday, Dec. 5 at 12 p.m. The Skippers will be playing a variety of holiday pieces including Leroy Anderson's Sleigh Ride, and many other familiar tunes and carols. The concert will also feature vocalists Lily Sestito and Tony Carbone. The concert is free and appropriate for all ages. A free-will cash offering for the Cohasset Food Pantry will be taken.

The Rusty Skippers will also be playing on Sunday, Dec. 6 at 4pm at St. Luke's Church, Scituate, performing with the Choral Arts Society, and Sunday, Dec. 13 at 4pm at St. Andrews Church, Hanover.

If you are interested in joining or booking the band, please contact Steve Biagini c/o Deer Hill School, (781) 383-6115 ext. 155 or sbiagini@cohassetk12.org .

OPINION

EDITORIAL

Heralding the season!

Let's put our troubles behind us this weekend and next by enjoying the Village Fair and Holiday Stroll. Who would have thought that those many years ago when the Village Fair started, folks here in Cohasset in 2009 would still be enchanted with the event?

The Holiday Stroll, which was launched just a few years ago, is sure to become another treasured tradition.

To put it in perspective – the entire senior class at Cohasset High was not even born when the Village Fair started. We admit to not knowing the actual year it began – but we do know it has been a feature during the holidays since we have been at the helm of the Cohasset Mariner.

We've been through a lot since then: Operation Desert Storm; the collapse of the Soviet Union; The Oklahoma City Bombing; Columbine; 9/11; Operations Iraqi Freedom and Enduring Freedom; and the collapse or near collapse of the world financial system.

Somehow we have endured and will continue to endure.

Cohasseters have much to be thankful for and to celebrate including the town's rich colonial history.

A key page of that history is celebrating our town and this season – and there is no better way than going "downtown" this weekend and next for the town's unique celebrations.

Those of you who have traveled beyond New England may realize that "downtowns" in many places have long ago given way to strip malls and shopping centers. Simply put, those communities have no place to hold a Village Fair/Holiday Stroll-type event.

The really nice thing about Cohasset's celebrations is they are community-driven in a partnership with local churches, citizens, retailers, businesses, and organizations.

But beyond that, The Village Fair (Saturday) and Holiday Stroll (next Saturday) with their Norman Rockwell, Courier and Ives flavor provides us all with a nostalgic walk down memory lane.

It brings us back to a time that we remember fondly: good cheer, good will, warmth and wonder.

The world has increasingly become smaller, more troubled and more dangerous. But in Cohasset at Christmastime we can all put that aside and relish the moments that our children and grandchildren can happily look back on.

One of our fondest memories during the holidays in nearby Hingham was when we invited some of our peers at our Marshfield headquarters to the Cohasset Mariner/Hingham Journal Office in Hingham for Hingham's Christmas in the Square.

After a walk through the crowd, one of our sports writers came up the stairs at our office, sat down, grabbed our Kleenex box and cried — he was so moved by the atmosphere.

Clearly this weekend and next are ones in which we all need to leave the cares of the world and personal problems behind. The Village Fair and Holiday Stroll are meant to be fun!

So come on down and enjoy the true spirit of the season.

As Tiny Tim said, "God Bless Us, Every One!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thoughts on centralized dispatch

TO THE EDITOR:

In the absence of any data or explanation, I do not agree that the adoption of a centralized dispatch unit and the closing of the related section of the police station would have an adverse effect on the well being of Cohasset residents, particularly — as claimed — at the Harborview Apartments. A letter to that effect was published by the Cohasset Mariner from the Cohasset Police Association and apparently was endorsed by the Superior Officers Organization.

Nevertheless the police are professionals and their comments should be viewed with respect by town officials and the general public. Indeed I wonder that these professionals did not come prepared much sooner. Consequently, I suggest:

1. that the log of the related section of the police station for the period of Oct. 15, 2009 to date be given to town officials, along with

2. an explanation of the officers' objection to the closure.

This information along with that provided by residents would aid town officials in making a considered decision about joining the centralized unit and if so whether or not the related section of the police station would remain open and to what extent.

In any event, the darkened sign in front of the police station, which should declare "Cohasset Police" should be automated or the officer, etc., should be designated to flip the switch.

Team, fans, community are first-class

TO THE EDITOR:

Congratulations to the CHS Football team for being South Shore League Champs and for having such a great season. The Skippers lost a hard fought 14-6 battle to Holliston last night in the MIAA Division 3A Superbowl Playoffs. We are proud of the all of our players and coaches and we will miss the 15 seniors who led the way this year.

Thanks to all the superfans who traveled out to Bridgewater last night and who supported the Skippers all season long. A big thanks to the band and cheerleaders who supported the team and made game nights special. Also thanks to teachers and support staff who supported the team all season, helped at the games, and drove the busses to all the away games. Finally a special thank you to our parents and booster clubs who have supported the team all season long with pasta dinners, volunteering at the games, and providing the financial support to run a first class program.

HEALTH NOTES

Paying attention to sports injuries

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

As our teenagers grow older, their sports and recreational activities get a little rougher.

We've become a Nation of sports enthusiasts – Major team sports involve moving a ball, puck or similar item in accordance with a set of rules, to score points. And with the exception of baseball, all are considered contact sports, each manifesting more sophistication — and violence. Assuredly, exercise and the sports, which accompany them, have been with us from the beginning, but as sports have become more complicated — and more interesting, more people view some kind of major sporting event each year to the point that stadiums have become amphitheaters and coliseums.

Growing with the increased sophistication and violence is the number of sports injuries. The Roman Coliseum was built to facilitate events originally conceived as sporting events, but which evolved into blood sports such as lion baiting or the competition between gladiators where mortality of injured participants was determined with a 'thumbs up or down' by the assembled crowd.

Sports Injuries — According to a U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission report, sports injuries among baby boomers increased by 33 percent from 1991 to 1998; about 276,000 hospital emergency room-treated injuries to persons 35 to 54 in 1991 compared to more than 365,000 sports injuries to persons of these ages in 1998 which cost over $18.7 billion in medical expenses. The highest numbers of sports-related injuries were from bicycling, basketball, baseball, and running. But now, football coaches are beginning to become apologists for the number of concussions players are receiving, with statements like seeing 'no connection between concussions and long term brain trauma.'

Like everything else, our institutions are evolving, and with them the forces that shape them are changing. Will sports like football soon become a blood sport like extreme wrestling and dog fighting? Probably not. Public consciousness changes along with everything else, and as we see more of our children injured by sports, parents will draw appropriate conclusions. We have already seen the reaction to boxing injuries reduce fight attendance making smaller venues necessary for such events.

Brain Injury — This column has reported the growth and development of cognitive science and the study of the relationship of the brain to all forms of human activity.

As our teenagers grow older, their sports and recreational activities get a little rougher. Since they are at an age where risk-taking behavior is the norm and growth spurts can make them a bit clumsy, injuries tend to occur more often than with

Ocean-side roads off Atlantic Ave. getting paved

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

2009 Paving's Last Hurrah! — The Greenbush Guys are in the process of trying to cheat Ole Man Winter by doing one last stint of paving. Tuesday of this week, we hosted our paving contractor T. L. Edwards' structure crew to prepare for paving one last area. The Edwards crew raised the structures on the ocean-side side roads off of Atlantic Avenue from Whitehead to Hobart Lane. (You may remember that the structure crew takes all of the in-the-road infrastructure devices and raises then to the level of the new paving.)

The raised structures create an obstacle course for drivers, but it is a necessary step that will keep these important devices visible and accessible for maintenance purposes. For example, should a water main fracture and cause a giant leak, the Water Department will need a way to quickly shut off the water in the water main. If the shutoff valves were buried under the new asphalt it could take hours to locate the valve and stop the flow. In the meantime damage could ensue, water quality could be compromised and adequate pressure for fire service may not exist, not to mention the wasted water.

Unlike the paving in the Common area that we all suffered through, this work will only affect the residents and others using these side roads for access. The plan, as we write this article in mid-week, is to raise the structures Tuesday and Wednesday. Paving should commence on Friday, December 4th and will go into next Monday, December 7th. We are not bothering with scheduling any paving for Thursday of this week since the weather forecasters are fairly unanimous that we'll have rain on Thursday. As always, you will know whether we were successful at the same time we find out.

So what's the down side in this plan? Well, the residents will have obstacles to drive around as a result of the raised structures. Care will need to be taken to drive slowly so that tires are not pinched by the raised structures. Weather is always a factor, so we'll have to hang loose about when the weather does let us pave. Another very remote down side is that should there be snow the Town won't be able to plow with the raised structures. But, we believe the odds are very much in our favor that if there is snow it will only be a dusting and will quickly disappear. We do have the assurance of the paving contractor that they will be completing our paving as soon as the weather permits.

Treat's Pond – While we are talking about the ocean-side of Atlantic Avenue from Whitehead to Hobart Lane, we might spend a minute talking about the small stream that feeds Treats Pond parallel to Atlantic Avenue. This stream has filled with debris and plant life that can impede the drainage into Treats Pond and allow water to lie in the stream bed to breed mosquitoes in the summer.

Unlike the paving in the Common area that we all suffered through, this work will only affect the residents and others using these side roads for access.

Plymouth County has the Mosquito Control Project service, available to Cohasset at no cost to the Town that can clean out this type of small water channel. However, in order for Cohasset to take advantage of this service, the Town needs to obtain the permission of all the abutters. Each of the abutters has been sent the appropriate forms from Plymouth County Mosquito Project to grant their permission for this work. So far they have not all been returned to us, so we can only assume that there are residents who would prefer to not have the clean out work done. If anyone thinks they have not been heard, please give us a call or send an email.

Looking Into the Future — As winter approaches, the work that this office has to do will diminish quite a bit. The paving will be on a hiatus until the asphalt plants reopen. No other substantial construction work has been planned during the winter.

Consequently, the Greenbush office will be reducing our hours this winter which means that this article will go into hiding until things pick up in late winter or early spring. So we're sorry to say, that soon we won't have the pleasure of our weekly chats. But, we will let you know exactly when any changes to our publishing schedule will be made. Quite frankly, there probably won't be much to write about during the winter, unless we become like Seinfeld, a story about nothing. So, our last article for a will probably be published around December 18th and will be restarted sometime in March, 2011.

Who has not heard of the man called Mozart?

FAMOUS BIRTHDAYS

MARY KENNEDY

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart: (Died Dec. 5, 1791, at age 35)

Child prodigy, musical genius. Who has not heard of the man called Mozart? In his short span of 35 years he played piano, organ, violin, flute and composed music. At age 3 he was picking out melodies on the piano; at 4 composing minuets. At age 5 he played for the kings and queens of Europe.

In 1762 Leopold Mozart and his two "wonder children" (older sister Nannerl was also a child prodigy) traveled to Munich to perform for the Archbishop. On the way, accepting a last-minute invitation, they gave concerts in Passau and Bratislava. The local Bishop was charmed but economical. He praised the 6-year-old boy and rewarded him with a single ducat (value in today's terms: $2).

In Vienna, at the magnificent Schonbrunn Palace, the Empress Maria Theresa was enchanted. Between recitals, Mozart played with the young Marie Antoinette whom he promised to marry someday.

Only one year later, the Mozart family embarked on a three-year tour following a route decided upon by the location of princely residences. Christmas in Versailles with Louis XV and Madame Pompadour. Easter in London with King George III and his German wife, Queen Charlotte. Glamorous but grueling too. They may have slept in palaces, but they ate with servants. At that time artists were considered craftsmen, somewhat higher in rank than the domestic staff, but lower than the noble guests. (Until he died, Leopold worked tirelessly on his son's behalf, petitioning noble patrons to sponsor concerts, pleading with publishers to promote his music. Some modern biographers who criticize Leopold for demanding too much of his talented children, forget, perhaps, his motives. He was well aware that musicians were almost totally dependent on the whims of the wealthy to earn a living. Without their patronage there was no pay.)

By the time he was 10, Mozart had survived typhoid, bronchitis, scarlet fever and small pox. He had composed sonatas for piano and violin, several symphonies, concertos, quartets, an opera and a Mass. On the road again a few years later, this time in Italy, he wrote home that Naples was beautiful but "the people are even ruder than they are in London." What really inspired him was Italian music "with its melody and simple harmony."

In 1778 Mozart was no longer an adored prodigy but an adult and an unemployed musician. In pursuit of commissions (translation: earning a living), he and his mother lived in Paris. He wrote home "The French are intolerably arrogant." He complained about the unheated palace of the Duchess de Bourbon where he had to play on "the wretched, miserable piano." What annoyed him most, however, was the inattention of the guests who continued chatting while he "was obliged to play "to the walls, chairs and tables." Teaching piano to the daughter of the Duke infuriated him. "If she had genius – but alas! There is none – she has no thoughts." Leopold cautioned his son to be patient with the daughter and keep in favor with the duke. "Do you suppose that everyone has a genius like yours?"

Success at last. Only three years later, 1781, his opera "Abduction from the Seraglio," was a hit in Vienna. Even though his name on the playbills was very small. Even though the Emperor Joseph II remarked that "it seemed to have far too many notes." The irrepressible Mozart answered: "Exactly as many, Your Majesty, as are needed."

Despite his father's disapproval, Mozart married Constanze Weber in Vienna's St. Stephen's Cathedral. "She is not witty," he wrote, "but she has enough common sense to make an excellent wife and mother. And I love her." The next few years were busy. In the mornings he gave lessons; in the afternoons he composed; in the evenings he gave concerts. "He wrote music like letters," Constanze said, "and never played a movement until it was finished." Haydn said in public to Leopold: "Your son is the greatest composer I know, personally or by reputation."

In 1787 the citizens of Prague went "Figaro-mad" – singing and dancing to the catchy tunes. In Vienna, however, the Emperor banned the "impertinent and subversive" opera. Imagine his outrage at the sight of peasants outwitting the aristocracy as though they had equal intelligence. Meanwhile, Don Giovanni, also popular in Prague, bombed in Vienna. Mozart loved Prague, believing that its citizens understood him and his music better than any other audience.

Why did Mozart join the Freemasons, a sect supported even in court circles? Perhaps he saw it as a useful way up the social ladder or perhaps for material benefits, since Freemasons were bound to help each other financially. Why did he include Masonic symbolism in his last opera "The Magic Flute?" Along with some of his most appealing melodies, the opera also contains thinly-disguised versions of Masonic secret rites. Even though Masons were forbidden, on pain of death, to reveal such secrets.

The autumn of 1791 Mozart spent mostly in bed, ravaged by illness and writing music. He began a Requiem Mass, commissioned by a "stranger in gray," but died before it was finished. Constanze purchased a third class funeral, the cheapest and most common in Vienna. Thousands of fans attended the Mass at St. Stephen's Church. He left no money. His legacy was more than 600 pieces of beautiful music, the largest body of music left by any composer except Haydn, who died at 77. "I am," Mozart once wrote, "steeped in music. It is in my mind the whole day, and I love to dream, to study, to reflect on it."

Baby Boomers should weigh in on Senior Center

SENIOR SCENE

LOUISE SMULLEN

By the time this goes to print Cohasset seniors will have been treated by Atlantica to a delicious pre-Thanksgiving dinner. This is an annual event to which we all look forward.

We have had two informative Wednesday seminars this month. At the first one Peg McDonough of the SHINE (Serving Health Insurance Needs for Elders) program explained the changes in Medicare for 2010. If anyone wishes to make changes in their medical insurance plan for the upcoming year, the changes must be made before the new year begins.

At the second seminar Dr. Rudolph told about the new Dana-Farber cancer treatment center at the South Shore Hospital. It is in a new building across from the hospital to which it is connected by a walkway. There is valet parking. Now, instead of trekking into Boston, people on the South Shore can have screenings and treatment in Weymouth. South Shore Hospital also offers the services of visiting nurses, hospice care and home and health resources.

We have enjoyed our last morning at the Coffee Café until spring. There was a large attendance. John Campbell, Chairman of the Friends of the Cohasset Elder Affairs, and Coral Grande, Director of Cohasset Elder Affairs, gave an update on plans for the new Center. We have a location, and a committee has been formed to work on the layout and what will be offered at the Center.

At the second seminar Dr. Rudolph told about the new Dana-Farber cancer treatment center at the South Shore Hospital.

Calling all baby boomers! In the not too distant future you may be making use of the Center. You are invited to make suggestions as to what you would like to see implemented at such a facility. Feel free to call in your ideas to 782-383-9112, or drop a note to the staff at 3 North Main St.

A class has been formed in memoir writing under the able direction of Mary Gainor, PhD. We have had three sessions so far. It is amazing how one memory leads to another. We so enjoy each others' stories, and hopefully our children and grandchildren will enjoy ours.

The holiday season is upon us, and I wish you all a happy time with family and friends.

Louise Smullen's column runs monthly in the Cohasset Mariner.

Selectmen agreed with the recommendation of the Board of Assessors and voted Monday to stick with the uniform tax rate. The tax rate for fiscal 2010 is anticipated to be $11.22 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. The tax rate still needs to be certified by the state Department of Revenue.

The tax rate for fiscal 2009 was $10.78, so, if approved, this year's tax rate results in a 44-cent jump. The reason, Quill said, was the overall valuation of the town decreased by 1 percent between from fiscal 2009 to fiscal 2010. In comparison in 2009, when there was an 18-cent increase in the tax rate, the overall valuation increased by 2.2 percent.

The total town average valuation (commercial and residential) is $735,600 compared to last year's average of $745,000. The net tax increase is 2.8 percent on the average valuation.

In the past year, the average valuation of residential property (including single family homes, condominiums and multi-family homes), decreased slightly from $784,000 to $781,000 in fiscal 2010. In the same vein, the average tax bill will increase from $8452 to $8763, or a $311 increase.

The average valued single family home is assessed at $858,000, a $9,000 loss from last year's assessed value of $867,000. For the average valued single family home the tax bill will be $9627 up from $9346 – an increase of about $281 or $23 a month.

Sales of calendar 2008 are used to establish the fiscal year 2010 assessed values, Quill said.

Estimated new growth is $342,814, which is less than estimated in previous years.

The new tax rate will be reflected in the third quarter tax bills.

Tax bills vary depending on a property's assessed value. By taking the assessed value of the property and dividing it by $1,000 and then multiplying it by the tax rate, a homeowner can compute his property taxes.

Under Prop. 2-1/2, "new growth" allows a community to increase its levy limit annually by an amount based on the increased value of new construction. New growth is calculated by multiplying the increase in the assessed valuation of qualifying property by the prior year's tax rate.

Prop. 2-1/2 is the state law that caps the amount a municipality can raise its tax levy in any given year.

Town-wide seasonal flu clinic Dec. 12

From 10a.m. to noon on Saturday, Dec. 12 the Cohasset Board of Health will hold a town-wide seasonal flu clinic open to all Cohasset residents over age 9 at the Cohasset Town Hall Auditorium.

The first seasonal flu clinic scheduled in October had to be cancelled, but Public Health nurse Mary Goodwin said there should be is plenty of vaccine for those seeking it this time around.

"A lot of people have been waiting for this clinic because it includes children over 9 years old," Goodwin said.

Residents are reminded to wear a short sleeve shirt and seniors are asked to bring Medicare part B and/or senior health insurance cards.

The H1N1 flu vaccine is still only available in limited supply and Cohasset's first allocation was distributed primarily to Cohasset Middle-High School students in November. Goodwin is still waiting on information of when more vaccine will become available for Cohasset residents.

Any questions, call public health nurse Mary Goodwin at 781-383-2210.

– then Tuesday could be a long day for election workers. The Town Clerk's Office reported earlier this week less than 12 absentee ballots had been returned so far.

Town Clerk Marion Douglas is expecting a turnout of 5 percent or less. "Of course we can hope for more," she said.

The primary set for Tues., Dec. 8, leads up to the Jan. 19 election to fill the late Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's long-held seat.

The four Democrats running for this seat are U.S. Rep. Michael Capuano, Attorney General Martha Coakley, City Year co-founder Alan Khazei, and Boston Celtics co-owner Stephen Pagliuca.

The winner will face either Republican state Sen. Scott Brown of Wrentham or businessman Jack E. Robinson in the January 19, 2010 special election.

There are no candidates on the Libertarian ballot.

Kevin O'Donnell, chairman of the Cohasset Republican Town Committee, said the beauty of an election is that each voter's opinion is of equal value.

"Voting tells all politicians and officeholders that you exist and that you matter."

— Kevin McCarthy, Democratic Town Committee

O'Donnell described Republicans in Massachusetts as a tough bunch who present voters with the best choice in Tuesday's primary and upcoming special election.

"We are men and women of principle," he said. "We are seeing the Nation turn away from irresponsible Democratic rule. All the Massachusetts Democratic candidates for the U. S. Senate have pledged to continue on the tired path of bailouts for all, ending in the impoverishment of America."

Cohasset polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Both precincts vote at Town Hall. Only registered Republicans, Democrats, Libertarians and unenrolled voters can vote Tuesday.

There are a total of 5,430 registered voters in Cohasset. Of those 1220 are Democrats, 1189 are Republicans and seven are Libertarian. There are 3007 who are unenrolled in any political party. Unenrolled voters can pull a Republican, Democrat or Libertarian ballot and it does not change his or her unenrolled status.

For more information call the Town Clerk's office, 781-383-4100.

McCarthy, who praised the field of Democratic candidates, said voting tells politicians that your interests matter.

"You demand respect when you exercise your precious voting rights and when you exercise them you breathe life into our shared Democracy and enliven your own important presence as a free citizen living in a free land," he said.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives and senators' votes on three roll calls from recent legislative sessions. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES EMPLOYEES GET UNEXPECTED DAY OFF WITH PAY - House Speaker Robert DeLeo on the Monday before Thanksgiving informed legislators, their staff and other House employees that the House would close at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, November 25 - the day before Thanksgiving. The memo also announced that the House would be closed on Thanksgiving Day.

The unexpected surprise in the memo was the announcement that the House would also be closed on Friday, November 27, the day after Thanksgiving but that the House's Human Resources Office would be open between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. on that day for House staff and employees to pick up their bi-weekly paychecks.

The memo was issued on DeLeo's behalf by Keith Johnson, the House's Director of Human Resources, in an e-mail entitled "Work Schedule" and labeled as "High Importance."

Critics pounced on the announcement of the Friday closing and said that it amounts to an additional paid holiday for legislators and House staff. They charged that this is outrageous in light of the state's fiscal crises and budget cuts that have caused the layoffs of thousands of state workers and cuts in services to many vulnerable people served by human service programs.

Supporters of the additional paid day off said that all House workers have been ordered to take five unpaid furlough days between December 7, 2009 and the end of the fiscal year on June 30, 2010 in order to close the House's operating budget deficit and prevent more layoffs. They noted that this would save an estimated $620,000 in addition to the more than $2 million that the House has already cut from its operating budget over the past two years.

They also pointed out that the House has made other changes to save money including discontinuing reimbursement of Massachusetts Bar fees and staff business cards and reductions in cleaning costs and annual paper costs. Some noted that the Friday after Thanksgiving is typically a slow day at the Statehouse without many phone calls from constituents.

Critics countered that legislators and their staffs should be at work on the fiscal and health care crises facing the state. They said that these employees already have two debatable holidays off - Evacuation Day (March 17) and Bunker Hill Day (June 17) which are holidays in Suffolk County only.

Defenders of the two holidays say that they commemorate two key victories for the American patriots when General George Washington and his troops drove the British out of Boston and the important Battle of Bunker Hill.

A longstanding theory says that declaring March 17 as Evacuation Day was just an excuse to provide a day off to celebrate St. Patrick's Day in Boston. Some say that Mayor James Michael Curley assigned an aide to find an historical American event that occurred on St. Patrick's Day and the aide came up with Evacuation Day.

House legislators also have the option to participate in the five-day furlough. An earlier memo from DeLeo explained that "under a constitutional amendment passed by voter referendum legislative salaries are tied to Massachusetts' median household income and cannot be involuntarily altered."

$4.1 MILLION FOR PROBATION SERVICE (H 4288) House 139-14, Senate 29-5, overrode Gov. Deval Patrick's veto of $4.1 million in funding for the State's Probation Service that handles the state's offenders who are on probation. Supporters of the $4.1 million said that the money is needed in order to keep the department running properly, monitor these offenders and ensure that the public is not in danger. They noted that 145 probation officers have already been laid off and that without this $4.1 million another 140 will lose their jobs. Some opponents of the $4.1 million said that the state is already facing a large budget deficit and cannot afford this additional $4.1 million. They noted that even without this additional money, the probation service is funded at $122.1 million. Others said that it is unfair to spend this $4.1 million on probationers when hospitals and many human service programs for every day non-criminal citizens are having their budgets severely reduced.	Present
$300,000 FOR COMMUNITY CORRECTIONS (H 4288) House 145-10, Senate 30-4, overrode Gov. Patrick's veto of $300,000 for community corrections. This office establishes and oversees intermediate sanctions programs and services for offenders on probation and parole including electronic monitoring, community service, drug and alcohol testing, education, job training and required daily reporting by the offenders. Supporters of the $300,000 said that the funding is crucial to ensure that these probationers and parolees are properly supervised in order to protect the public and integrate the offenders back into society or ensure that they return to jail if they do not cooperate with their supervision. Some opponents of the $300,000 said that the state cannot afford to keep adding money to programs when the budget deficit is climbing. Others said that this type of program should not be given additional money when many other more important programs have been cut. (A "Yes" vote is for the $300,000. A "No" vote is against the $300,000).	Present
$950,000 FOR TRIAL COURT (H 4288) House 131-24, Senate 30-5, overrode the governor's veto of $950,000 for additional expenses for the administration of the state's trial court. Supporters of the additional $950,000 said that it is necessary to ensure that the courts operate smoothly and noted that some of the court's budget is used for increased security that is necessary to protect people. They noted that the trial court has reduced its personnel by 400 positions since 2008 and cannot absorb any more cuts. Opponents of the additional $950,000 said that the trial court will have to further tighten its belt just like many other agencies and programs are doing. They argued that it is fiscally irresponsible to continue to dole out money that the state does not have. (A "Yes" vote is for the $950,000. A "No" vote is against the $950,000).	N

GIMME SHELTER

New kitty in time for Christmas?

This week, Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is looking for shelter for four black kittens. They hope they will be going in pairs. There are four males and one female. The kittens are currently being fostered but will be ready for re-homing around Dec. 15. They could very well make great early holidays gifts. There are several more adoptable cats at the shelter but adoptions have been brisk so hurry down. The 2010 Kittendale's calendars are available as well as Hull Seaside Animal Rescue Tee Shirts.

For those who "have everything", you can always give a gift in their name to Hull Seaside Animal Rescue. They are currently looking for volunteers who are capable of and willing to write grants for HSAR. Our available funds are dwindling while our expenses are not.

Hull Seaside Animal Rescue has open hours on Monday from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and Saturdays from 2 to 3 p.m. They are located at 50 L Street in Hull. The mailing address is PO Box 787, Hull, MA 02045, their telephone number is 1 877-378-1195. Leave a message and someone will get back to you in a timely manner. The website is www.hsar.org. For adoption information only call Shirl at 781-925-3380.

If you're on Face-Book, become a fan of Hull Seaside Animal Rescue and see the updates and leave your comments.

Thanks to all who have supported the shelter.

adults. Quite frequently, they'll hit their head directly or crash into something, both of which can cause a concussion.

Concussions are a frequent cause for hospital admission, with an estimate of more than 600,000 cases per year in the United States. Many are related to car accidents, another problem for teenagers. You do not need to be knocked out to have a concussion. No set number of symptoms automatically indicates a concussion. If a teenager shows signs of any symptoms, take him to a health care professional. Sometimes severe symptoms can take hours or days to show up. Indirect blows such as a 'body slam' in hockey can cause jarring of the brain in the head and result in a concussion.

Symptoms of concussion include uneven dilated pupils, headache, feeling sick or throwing up, blurred vision, poor coordination or balance, slurred speech, slow response to questions or directions; long term irritability and low frustration tolerance, anxiety and depression or sleep disturbance. Mild to moderate may have no loss of consciousness but the person seems dazed or confused and doesn't recall the event. Severe concussion involves a brief loss of consciousness with no memory of the event. Call a doctor immediately.

Treatment — Rest and observation for a few hours or days or in more severe cases up to several weeks. Consult a specialist in cognitive brain analysis.

Prevention — Wear safety gear for sports, even in recreation with friends and family. Wear your seatbelt when driving. Make everyone in the car do the same. If you receive a blow, direct or indirect, sit down and take a few minutes to make sure you're ok. Do not continue to play if any of the above symptoms are present.

A link exists between observation of increasingly violent — to blood — spectator sports and concussions on our children's playing fields. Parents would be wise to think about the increasing violence of the sports they — and their children — watch and play.

Celebrating inclusive schools week

TO THE EDITOR:

Stories appear frequently about the state of our schools and their challenge to meet the educational needs of our children. Although there is much to be done, we have made progress toward including all children into the nation's academic agenda. Not long ago, many of our children were excluded from the general education setting due to behavioral or physical challenges, race, language and / or economic status.

Over the past 20 years, our schools have worked toward access to public education for ALL. Schools and classrooms that were once homogeneous are servicing a rich array of students. While these inclusive practices have been, at times, difficult to implement, their positive impact is clearly demonstrated through each individual success. Children who were once isolated and marginalized are now thriving, productive members of a larger school community. Children who were routinely denied educational opportunities are now discovering, exploring and, most importantly, achieving.

Inclusive teaching practices means presenting information in ways that are relevant and meaningful to each and every student and allowing for multiple means of expression and achievement. Inclusion challenges our schools to examine educational settings and instructional practice while encouraging us to differentiate and adopt more inclusive teaching practices and classroom environments, which benefit all students.

These successes are celebrated this month, during Annual Inclusive Schools Week, Dec. 7th -11th. While noting that there is much more to accomplish, we applaud the progress being made each and every day toward building more inclusive schools and communities. Here in Cohasset, let's take this opportunity to recognize those students and families, and those administrators, teachers, service providers and support staff who are already making our schools relevant for ALL.

Democratic Party Candidates

'I want to change the world'

By John Hilliard
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

COURTESY PHOTO
U.S. Rep. Michael Capuano.

Michael Capuano has represented Massachusetts' 8th congressional district for more than a decade, worked nearly as long as Somerville's mayor and for years before that as a city alderman.

Yet Dartmouth-educated Congressman, who holds a law degree from Boston College Law School, considers himself the "underdog" of the Democratic race for the late Edward M. Kennedy's senate seat.

But his experience — ranging from zoning issues considered as a city alderman to debating health care reform in the House — means he's ready "to hit the ground running" in the U.S. Senate, said Capuano.

"I don't want to be a typical senator. I want to be a senator who changes the world," Capuano told Community Newspaper Company editors during an editorial board on Thursday.

Somerville's Capuano, 57, views a Senate seat as a "lateral move" from the House, but said he'd have more influence as a member of the 100-member body than in the 435-member House of Representatives.

Comparing his record to Kennedy's on service in his district, Capuano said he's made constituent services a priority throughout his career, and his staff has remained largely stable during that time.

"I've done that. I've done it all my life. I like doing it," said Capuano, who noted he doesn't have the decades of federal service Kennedy had, but his record is better than most.

Capuano said the response over his position on including abortion coverage in health care reform was caused by a misunderstanding of the legislative process.

Capuano supported the House bill for health care reform, which left out a provision for abortion coverage, and Coakley said she'd oppose a bill that left out abortion coverage if it came to a Senate vote.

But Capuano said he supported the bill in the House to keep the debate alive, and would vote against the bill in the Senate if it doesn't include abortion coverage. He said there is still time to make changes to the measure before it comes to a Senate vote.

"My mistake — if I have one — is not realizing that many people didn't understand the process," said Capuano, who supports abortion rights.

Despite his self-proclaimed underdog status, he's critical of yesterday's WHDH-Suffolk University poll that puts him behind frontrunner Attorney General Martha Coakley and Boston Celtics co-owner Steve Pagliuca.

According to that poll of 600 Massachusetts residents, 44 percent backed Coakley, while 17 percent supported Pagliuca and 16 percent were for Capuano. City Year founder Alan Khazei came in fourth with 3 percent. About one-fifth of those polled were undecided.

A separate poll conducted by WHDH and Suffolk University in Falmouth found Coakley's support was about 33 percent, with Capuano in second place at 13 percent.

He said such polls may not reflect the opinions of voters who are paying attention to the race and will vote in the Democratic primary, which is on Dec. 8. He said his own internal polling puts him second to Coakley, and her support is lower than reported in yesterday's poll.

According to campaign finance reports from 2008, Capuano is also worth between $1.4 million to $3.1 million, and derives much of his income from three rental properties, two of which are in his hometown.

Capuano voted against two of the past decade's major policy initiatives — the No Child Left Behind Act and the PATRIOT Act — the former because of its requirement on the states to meet annual performance standards for students, but without any federal funding to do so. He also opposes attempts modify how teachers are paid.

"I don't like tying teacher pay with student performance," said Capuano.

As for the PATRIOT Act, he opposed it and other measures that limited civil liberties, he said. While he supported the Afghanistan invasion in 2001 to pursue Al Qaeda after the 9/11 terror attacks, he believes that mission is over and troops should withdraw.

"We have done what we set out to do," said Capuano.

He opposes a military draft, an idea floated by fellow challenger Pagliuca, but backs a year of public service for every American that could include working in the military or social service agency. Capuano said he's always opposed the Iraq War, and the use of torture on enemy combatants.

On immigration, Capuano said he believes in strong borders, and voted in 2006 for the Secure Fence Act that called for 700 miles of fencing along the U.S.-Mexico border. But the country needs to look at other ways reform its immigration policies, he said.

Capuano said the U.S. needs to look at immigration in terms of what the country can support economically each year, and he wants to put most of the illegal immigrants already here on the path to citizenship.

"I'm not looking to pull the ladder up. But I want to maintain the quality of life" in the U.S., he said.

Capuano said the federal government must do more to create and protect jobs, develop more public transit, especially making high-speed rail a priority for the Northeast, and move ahead with revitalization projects funded through the federal stimulus package. There also should be greater federal oversight over the financial services industry, he said.

Capuano took aim at Coakley for signing a friend-of-the-court brief that asks for limits on federal review of state court decisions, a move that could limit a person's right to challenge a death penalty sentence. Capuano opposes the death sentence.

According to the Boston Globe, death penalty opponents have reportedly said such a move could make it harder for defendants on death row to challenge their sentences. The case Coakley signed onto involves a convicted murderer facing death, but whose attorney is seeking a Supreme Court appeal because the convict is mentally disabled, according to the Globe.

Record of defending rights marks tenure in politics

By David Ertischek
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

Massachusetts Attorney General and US Senate candidate Martha Coakley said she would not support a federal healthcare bill that sets women's reproductive rights back decades.

The healthcare debate was just one topic she touched upon while meeting with a GateHouse Media editorial board this week.

Coakley, 56, who was the Middlesex County District Attorney from 1998-2006, championed herself as a fighter for civil rights, citing how she led Massachusetts' federal lawsuit against the Defense of Marriage Act.

"Frankly our government shouldn't be discriminative," said Coakley, who feels that same-sex couples should be given the same benefits of any opposite sex couple.

Like the late Ted Kennedy, the man whose Senate seat she's hoping to win, Coakley would like to see "a pathway to citizenship" for immigrants who are working hard to realize the American dream. "I've always treated people equally regardless of their (legal or illegal) status. It's a disgrace we haven't done it yet."

While Coakley touched on many issues, the healthcare bill currently before Congress has been front-and-center of this race.

The current House of Representatives healthcare reform bill contains the Stupak-Pitts Amendment, which would prohibit coverage for any health insurance product subsidized in any way by federal funds. The US Senate Bill does not include the amendment.

"My [opinion of the bill] is that there will be no federal dollars for abortion (in the House bill)," said Coakley, who is pro-choice. "It should be choice-neutral."

One of her opponents, US Congressman Michael Capuano supported the bill in the House. Coakley said she would not.

Coakley said her office started a healthcare division when the state implemented statewide health coverage.

"There will be a bill… I'm in favor of a strong public option," said Coakley. "Now we have to figure out how to pay for it and how to keep costs down."

There are two goals to reforming healthcare, said Coakley: coverage for everybody and cutting costs.

Reforming healthcare should include determining how much healthcare costs, as she said two people could get varying rates from the same doctor for the same procedure. "If you receive cancer treatment, or a checkup, you don't know how much it costs."

She added she'd be against cuts to Medicare too.

Coakley said while she was Middlesex District Attorney and Massachusetts Attorney General, her offices reached out to help immigrants when dealing with issues such as domestic violence, regardless of their residence status. Her offices have also gone after companies exploiting non-legal workers, said Coakley.

Originally from North Adams, Coakley said she has worked to protect children from predators by training police on how to track digital evidence online.

She also touted a $450 million Big Dig settlement now in trust, which can be used to repair Big Dig problems.

Coakley said Massachusetts' public transportation infrastructure is out of date and is insufficient particularly in urban areas. She said local and federal officials should work hand in hand to get federal money to improve public transportation.

Coakley was asked about what she would've done if she were the Cape and Islands DA representing Chappaquiddick in 1969 when Kennedy's car was found in a tidal pool with Mary Jo Kopechne's body still in it. Kennedy told officials he was in the crash the night before while driving Kopechne home and pled guilty to leaving the scene of an accident after causing injury. Coakley said with modern-day media there would be a "fuller investigation and more accountability," but didn't go into detail of how she would've handled the situation.

When talking about Kennedy, she said, "People loved that he was a liberal lion, but also that he understood Massachusetts."

As the country has looked back on Kennedy's legacy, Coakley was asked to look into the future and talk about her own legacy, "I want to be known as someone who was fair, competent and a good advocate for the bread and butter issues of constituent services. And that I did my best."

'Absolutely I can win this thing'

By John Hilliard
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

Despite never serving a day in elected office, Alan Khazei said he can point to major legislative accomplishments, including helping to inspire, then later save and expand the federal AmeriCorps volunteer program.

Now tied for third in the four-way Democratic race for the Senate seat left open by the death of Ted Kennedy, and two weeks left in the race, Khazei said he can mount a come-from-behind victory.

"Absolutely I can win this thing," said Khazei, who said his campaign recently knocked on 15,000 doors with 500 volunteers.

"Most people are undecided, and when you go door to door, I'm doing rather well," he said.

Khazei, a Brookline resident, founded the volunteer program City Year in 1988, and remained its CEO until 2006. The program proved popular with Kennedy, said Khazei, and Kennedy later filed legislation to create AmeriCorps, which was partly inspired by City Year. The federal program mobilized about 75,000 volunteers across the country as a domestic version of the Peace Corps.

"I've been working in Washington since I started City Year," said Khazei.

But when AmeriCorp's budget was slashed in 2003, he said he mounted a successful campaign to get that money back. Earlier this year, he said he also worked with Democrats and Republicans on legislation to grow public service opportunities, most recently the expansion of AmeriCorps from 75,000 members to 250,000 over the next several years.

Khazei said he brings an outside perspective to the Senate, and other current senators weren't politicians before being elected.

"If we're going to have elective experience, instead of public service experience, you'll eliminate a lot of people" serving in the Senate, including Ted Kennedy, who was not a legislator before he was elected, noted Khazei,

Among the four Democrats up for Kennedy's seat — Attorney General Martha Coakley, U.S. Rep Mike Capuano and Boston Celtics co-owner Steve Pagliuca — Khazei regularly polled in last place. But in recent days, Khazei has seen an uptick in support.

According to a Rasmussen poll released on Tuesday, Khazei had the support of 14 percent of Democratic voters polled, tying him with Pagliuca. That's a jump from Khazei's 6 percent support from a Nov. 22 Boston Globe poll, where Pagliuca held the support of 15 percent of Democrats polled.

Though with a few days left in a 70-day race against a Democratic frontrunner with statewide name recognition, Khazei said he can win.

He said the low turnout of voters anticipated for the Dec. 8 Democratic primary can work in his favor, as his grassroots campaign can mobilize supporters to the polling places.

Khazei said the Democratic frontrunner for the Senate seat — Coakley — hasn't "sealed the deal" in the race.

"She's not running to win, she's running not to lose," said Khazei.

Whoever wins the Dec. 8 primary will face either Scott Brown, a state senator from Wrentham, or veteran candidate for political office Jack E. Robinson.

Khazei's campaign hasn't been free of missteps. Khazei said he made a mistake earlier this month, when he said he would never meet with a lobbyist. He was responding to a question from Capuano during a debate. After a leader of the Sierra Club noted he is a registered lobbyist, Khazei later clarified he meant he wouldn't take lobbyists' money.

"I said, 'OK, I'm an idiot.'"

Khazei said he opposes the Iraq War and, from the beginning of his campaign, was against sending more troops into Afghanistan, and believed President Obama should not have relied on the recommendation of Gen. Stanley F. McChrystal to increase troop levels.

COURTESY PHOTO
Alan Khazei founded the volunteer program City Year in 1988.

"I'm going to listen to the president, (but) there isn't anything he'll say that will sway me to support 30,000 new troops," said Khazei.

He said the problems in Afghanistan is not just military, but include dealing with an Afghani government that faces widespread charges of corruption. At home, Khazei said he supports imposing a "war tax" to support U.S. military operations in that country.

"If the American people don't want to pay for it, maybe we shouldn't do it," said Khazei.

Khazei, whose father is Iranian, said he opposes a nuclear Iran. He said the U.S. should take advantage of widespread dissatisfaction among that country's people for their government."I think Iran is now where the Soviet Union was, somewhere between 1975 to 1985," said Khazei.

Khazei supports a second economic stimulus package, but one targeting job creation, he said. The first stimulus didn't do enough to build jobs, he said, and there should be tax credits for businesses to add to their workforces.

He also said the nation needs to stem the tide of rising foreclosures and give homeowners the opportunity of using bankruptcy courts to renegotiate mortgage terms.

"You'll force the banks to renegotiate, because they don't want a judge to decide, because (banks) will get a worse deal," said Khazei.

'Business career readies me for Senate'

By John Hilliard
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

A self-described "people person," Steve Pagliuca says his years of building businesses and promoting job growth distinguishes him from the career politicians and lawyers that make up much of the Senate.

"We need more people like when the country was founded, who were printers… and merchants," said Pagliuca.

Pagliuca, 54, a Weston resident and managing director at Bain Capital, is one four Democrats running for the U.S. Senate seat previously held by Ted Kennedy, who died earlier this year.

Pagliuca has never held elected office, but said his 25 years working in business and finance would make him a good fit for the Senate.

Pagliuca is also co-owner of the Boston Celtics and has a personal fortune estimated between $200 million to $400 million. But Pagliuca said he came into his wealth later in life, and points to his upbringing in Framingham and New Jersey as one of three children to his mother, a school teacher, and father, a veteran of World War II and Korea.

Noting his start in the workforce in high school and college as a mover, he stated, "The money I have is a byproduct of venture capital and building business."

He said building business here in Massachusetts means reforming health care and building up the state's high-tech, biotech and clean energy industries.

Reforming health care — which now costs the country $2.4 trillion — is key to helping business growth, as health care costs are stifling them.

Steve Pagliuca is managing director at Bain Capital.

"That's killing our competitiveness, our ability to grow," he said.

While two of his Democratic competitors for the Senate — Attorney General Martha Coakley and Congressman Michael Capuano — said they will not vote for a health care bill that doesn't include a provision for abortion funding, Pagliuca said he'd vote for such a bill, and work to restore support for abortion later.

"If we blow the health care thing, we'll have 36 million people not covered," said Pagliuca, who is pro-choice.

He also supports tax credits for businesses to create new jobs, provide job training and invest in the state's infrastructure to support industries like life sciences.

"We have all the ingredients to do it — we just have to put it all together," said Pagliuca.

He said his work experience prepares him to respond to constituent concerns. He would work closely with Sen. John Kerry to ensure those needs were met. He also noted that he established the Celtics' Shamrock Foundation — which supports local children — and he's president of the Massachusetts Society to Prevent Cruelty to Children.

He said he opposes our current wars, and is for bringing troops home from Iraq and Afghanistan. He also favors shutting the prison for enemy combatants at Guantanamo Bay.

Before entering the political field, Pagliuca supported both Democratic and Republican candidates for office. Pagliuca, who said he holds to "progressive Democratic values," said he became a Republican for a period in the 1990s so he could vote for his friend and former boss, Mitt Romney, when the latter ran unsuccessfully against Sen. Ted Kennedy in 1994.

WCVB reported Pagliuca donated to Democrats and Republicans, including former President George W. Bush in the 2000 election, former Massachusetts Gov. William Weld in 1996, as well as President Barack Obama during the 2008 campaign.

Shunning political labels, Pagliuca said voters should concentrate on his values.

"They got to judge me on who I am," said Pagliuca.

The Boston Globe reported Pagliuca also missed four state and national primaries since 1996, and missed several local elections in Weston, where he lives.

"I regret that… it's certainly not a good thing to do politically," said Pagliuca of the missed votes.

Republican Party Candidates

Republican U.S. Senate candidate Jack E. Robinson.

Cutting taxes is the key to Robinson's plan to get the United States out of its current economic crisis.

By Matthew Nadler
MNADLER@CNC.COM

Republican U.S. Senate candidate Jack E. Robinson promises not to be reliable.

That is, when it comes to following the directives of Republican leadership in Washington.

Robinson, who says he's a 35-year resident of Duxbury, and calls himself a "progressive Republican" in the mold of Teddy Roosevelt, says that unlike his Republican opponent in next Tuesday's primary, State Sen. Scott Brown, R-Wrentham, he'll be a "truly independent" senator.

That, he says, will give him more influence in Congress than either Brown, or any of the four Democrats running. "Scott Brown will just be invisible," he added.

Robinson, who was the last major party candidate to enter the race, says he decided the run "about one minute after the first Democratic debate," when he concluded none of the candidates "had any real solutions" to the problems facing the country.

While his policy differences with the Democrats are "too numerous to mention," he did list his specific disagreements with his Republican opponent.

Their positions on taxes are a big difference, said Robinson, who stated that he had a 100 percent approval from the National Taxpayers Union, which describes itself on its Web site as "a nonprofit, nonpartisan citizen group whose members work every day for lower taxes and smaller government at all levels." He also signed the no new taxes pledge issued by the anti-taxation group Americans for Tax Reform. Brown, Robinson said, has not taken that pledge. "He cannot be trusted to cut taxes," said Robinson.

Cutting taxes is the key to Robinson's plan to get the United States out of its current economic crisis. He proposes eliminating all capital gains taxes on investments made in 2010, which he claims, will "unleash trillions of dollars in new investments and jobs. We'd be out of the recession by the end of next year."

On the flip side, while Robinson has a conservative position on taxation, he's more liberal than Brown on the issue of gay rights, saying that, unlike his opponent, he supports same-sex marriage. His Web site also lists his opposition to the defense of marriage act and calls for repealing the military's "don't ask, don't tell" policy.

He also claims to be a better candidate on environmental issues than Brown, who, he says, "only says 'no'." Robinson says he supports reducing greenhouse gas emissions by 20 percent by the year 2020.

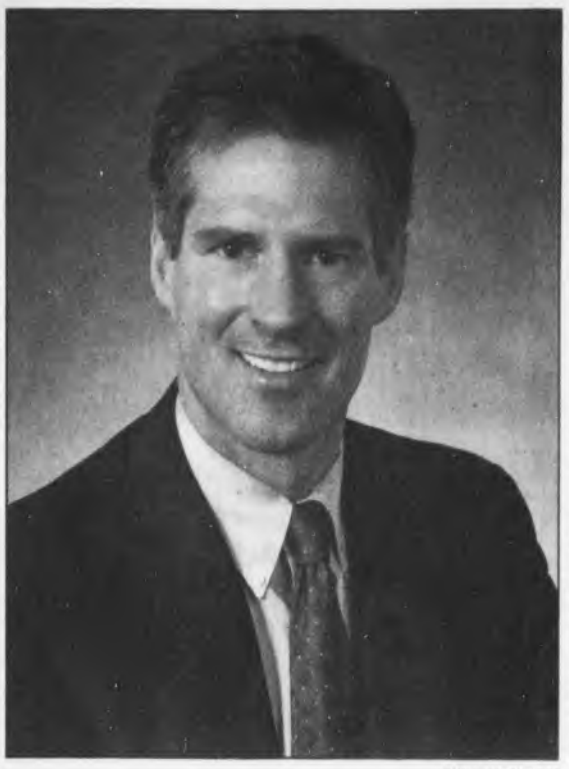
Brown's worst sin though? Perhaps it's that he once voted for Al Gore, a fact he admitted in an interview on WTKK-FM. "I've never voted for a Democrat" said Robinson.

But his most important qualification, said Robinson, is that's "created over 1,000 jobs in 25 years in the private sector."

According to his Web site, Robinson founded, and later sold, "the largest digital cellular company in the Caribbean," Oceanic Digital Communications. Prior to that he worked for Eastern and Continental Airlines, and now serves as general counsel for Benistar, which administers health and welfare benefits for businesses.

Being the last candidate in, Robinson admits that the campaign started slowly, but he claims to be gaining momentum and that it's "now on a glide path to victory."

Interest in the race has been "tepid" on both sides of the ideological fault lines, he said, but "we don't blame anyone for that."



Robinson says that his experience, education and qualifications "eclipse" any of the other candidates. And that his temperament, "I'm not hot-headed," he says, is also an advantage.

With his hometown representatives, State Sen. Bob Hedlund, R-Weymouth, and State Rep. Daniel Webster, R-Pembroke, have both endorsed his opponent, Robinson says he's "close" to the pair.

"We're asking for the people's support," he said, asking that people vote in the Republican primary for "real leadership."

Robinson has run for a number of offices before, including a 2006 run for Congress in Mass. 9th district, at which time he listed a Brockton address as his residence. In 2002 he was the Republican candidate for Secretary of State, and he listed a Boston address as his residence. He was also the Republican candidate against Senator Edward Kennedy in 2000. Despite the various addresses, Robinson stated in an e-mail that, "I've had several residences in Massachusetts, many simultaneous. But I have always considered Duxbury my permanent residence."

Anti-incumbent sentiment a boost

"I haven't heard of anyone in Massachusetts who's benefited from the stimulus package except the sign makers..."

Massachusetts voters "are mad enough" to fill Ted Kennedy's vacant Senate seat with a Republican, state Sen. Scott Brown, R-Wrentham, said Monday.

"There's a lot of anger out there and a lot of people hurting," Brown said in a MetroWest Daily News editorial meeting, and their anger will tip the scale in his favor in January. "I would be going down to Washington as the anti-incumbent."

Brown faces Duxbury attorney and businessman Jack E. Robinson in the Dec. 8 Republican special election primary, but Brown's focus is on the four Democrats in the race.

"I'm not like the others," Brown said of Democratic hopefuls U.S. Rep. Michael Capuano, D-8th, Attorney General Martha Coakley, City Year co-founder Alan Khazei and Boston Celtics co-owner Stephen Pagliuca, who are squaring off in their party's Dec. 8 primary.

Likening himself to U.S. Sen. John McCain, Brown said he puts ideas ahead of party allegiance, and cited his support for funding the state METCO program, in which urban students attend suburban schools, as an example of siding with Gov. Deval Patrick, a Democrat.

"The Sarah Palins aren't coming through the door to help me," he said of high-profile Republicans. "They're not helping me get elected."

Although Brown said he wants to be the "41st senator" on the Republican side of the aisle, rather than allow Democrats to control 60 Senate seats, his mission on Capitol Hill would be "to look out for the interests of my state."

Those interests, he said, would be best served by keeping tax cuts in place.

"We cannot, in this economic time, have taxes go up," Brown said, and tax cuts due to expire, such as capital gains, child care credits and the standard deductions for joint tax filers, will have an effect on "just about everyone."

"I would keep in place the tax cuts that are in place," he said, and "look at tax credits for businesses that are working to create jobs."

Brown said federal stimulus money has not created jobs.

"I haven't heard of anyone in Massachusetts who's benefited from the stimulus package except the sign makers" responsible for adding new mile markers on local highways. Of the $1.6 billion used to shore up the state budget, "hard choices weren't made," so "it's an artificial backfill. The big hurt is going to be coming very, very soon," which Brown predicted would be layoffs of municipal employees.

More money isn't the answer, he said.

"I'm not going to support a second stimulus right now. The first one hasn't worked. ... We should recapture the money that's still out there" and put it toward transportation and infrastructure projects.

Brown, a lieutenant colonel in the Massachusetts Army National Guard, backs President Obama's caution in announcing a new strategy for the war in Afghanistan.

"I thought he got it right in March, when he said this is the most important war we're in," Brown said. "I think it's naive for the other four (Democratic) candidates to call for (troop) withdrawal, to say they don't know what the mission is" in Afghanistan.

The goal should be to prevent al Qaeda and the Taliban from joining forces, and "to move on Pakistan and get control of the (nuclear) weapons there."

Adding more troops will lead to more national debt, but "we still have to react to these national and international threats."

Though he voted for a form of cap-and-trade emission policy on the state level, "I wouldn't vote for it again. It hasn't saved money," and it pushes employers such as EMC out of state because of the high cost of doing business in Massachusetts, he said.

He supported state health reform, but opposes national health reform.

"Why should we subsidize the rest of the country? They have their own legislatures, senators and representatives. Why should we sacrifice what we've done here?"

He would not support amnesty for illegal immigrants but faults the federal government for not providing the resources to allow a quick path to citizenship.

The Troubled Asset Relief Program "was necessary," said Brown, but "I think it's a question of overregulating vs. enforcing the regulations we already have.

"Every business I know is mired in quicksand. ... We need to get the economic engine moving again, not stifle businesses with more regulation."

Polls are open Tuesday at Town Hall 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Valiant effort

Skippers come up just short in playoffs

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

The Cohasset football team got off to a blazing start with an 85-yard touchdown return by Brendan Doonan on the opening kickoff of their Div. 3A playoff game against Holliston on Tuesday night, but the Skippers couldn't find much more as the Panthers came back and earned a trip to Saturday's Super Bowl with a 14-6 win at Bridgewater-Raynham High School.

Dana Valentine ran for 167 yards on 29 carries, but Holliston's defense, penalties and turnovers kept Cohasset out of the end zone after the opening play.

On the other side, Holliston quarterback Sean Mayo connected on nine-of-13 passes for 106 yards and ran for a touchdown in the first half to lead Holliston to the win.

"I'm so unbelievably proud of this team,"

Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw after the Skippers playoff loss to Holliston

Still, it was a valiant effort by the Skipper defense, which held Holliston's prolific offense to less than half of it's average scoring average.

Holliston came into the game averaging 39 points per game.

Part of that was Valentine, who kept the ball in Cohasset's hands for a good chunk of the night.

While the offense couldn't get the ball in the end zone, they fought well.

"She plays defense and is a huge factor keeping opponents off the scoreboard. Her leadership back there is tremendous. She was a huge asset in the tournament."

Simply FANTASTIC

Field hockey has impressive season

By Susan Franklin

The Cohasset Girl's Field Hockey Program delivered an impressive performance this season, earning an invitation to the MIAA South Division 2 tournament. Under the direction of first year varsity coach Laura Giuliano, the Cohasset team posted a 9-5-4 record on the season. A well-balanced and fiercely competitive squad, including seven seniors, the team delivered standout performances on both ends of the field.

Field Hockey

Senior co-captain Lucy Noble was the heart of Cohasset's near impenetrable defense.

Noble delivered consistent play all season, working in concert with juniors Sarah Mavilia and Emily Toomey to disable the opponent's offense.

Seniors Hannah Burgess, co-captain Taryn Donohue and Kate Durant solidified the Cohasset defensive machine. Sophomore Whitney Jaffe had an impressive start, making crucial saves that at one point placed her on top in the league for least goals allowed with just six goals against in 12 games played. However, Jaffe suffered a concussion, so Kate Durant stepped up to defend the goal, where she too was successful with seven goals against in six games played.

Senior Izzy Franklin led a strong group of talented midfielders adept at transitioning the ball. Starters Franklin, junior Kelsey Erler and sophomore Sage Stebbins proved they had the stamina to run the field all game. Possessing speed, stick skills and field sense, these midfielders were able to successfully push the ball up field to create scoring opportunities, as well as contain the ball in the opponents end.

Seasoned junior Eliza Kinnealey and speedy sophomore Amber Silvia brought enthusiasm and quickness to the field.

Powerful sophomore Kayla Orner delivered solid, intimidating drives.

"The team allowed only 12 goals in 19 games which is a testament to the strength of the defense and the midfield," Giuliano said.

Senior co-captain Hilary Gaumer, juniors

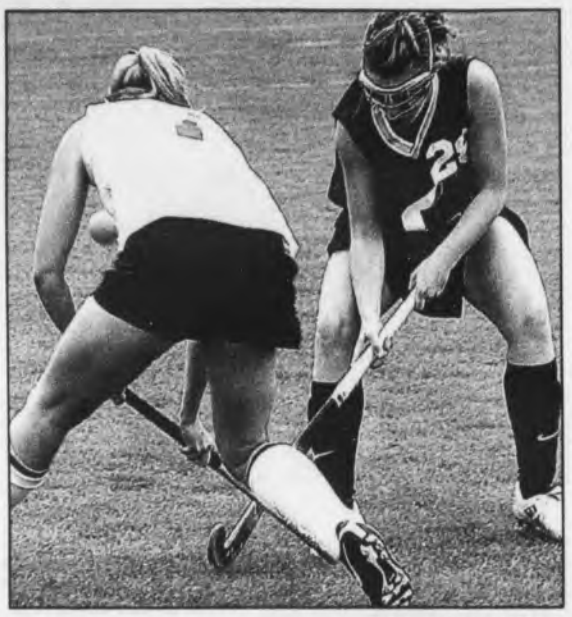
Natalie Dignam and Olivia Murphy and sophomore Caitlin DeAngelis comprised the team's four-forward formation, which proved difficult to defend. All possessing speed and notable stick skills, these players made opponents uneasy. Aggressively working the sidelines, Dignam consistently found fellow forwards on the posts. Senior Chelsea Silvia, junior Elise Quebec and sophomores Amber Silvia and Sage Stebbins brought depth to the offense, contributing to successes on the field.



Cohasset was ranked 13th out of 18 teams in the Division.

"At the start of the season our goal was to be a .500 club and get to tournament", said coach Giulino. "We accomplished both of these goals and actually broke the .500 goal, finishing the season at .611."

The squad's 9-5-4 record won the team a playoff berth. They faced 15-1-2 Old Rochester Regional High School in the Division 2 South opener where Old Rochester fought hard to get a lone goal to defeat Cohasset. Delivering a great performance, Cohasset was a formidable opponent. Though disappointed in the loss, the team has much of which to be proud. They came to the field this season having not made playoffs in 2008, despite making it to the quarterfinals in the 2007 season. A group of skilled, driven athletes who respect the game, their school, their coaches and each other, they played aggressively and competitively all season.

All players made contributions on the field. In terms of scoring, Olivia Murphy led the team with 9 goals and 4 assists along with Natalie Dignam with 9 goals and 3 assists. Izzy Franklin posted the most assists at seven.

Recognized for their consistent play, Lucy Noble (defense), Izzy Franklin (midfield) and Kelsey Erler (midfield) were voted South Shore League All-Stars. Additionally, Kelsey Erler, Olivia Murphy, Sage Stebbins and Angela Cipolla were selected to participate in US Field Hockey Futures program.

Cohasset's Sarah Mavilla was a big part of Cohasset's stifling defense.

"Through the season we've enjoyed the support and expertise of the Cohasset Club team which is run by Beth Gilman", said Coach Giulino. "Through Beth we were able to access the coaching expertise of Sue Paull, Caitlin Condon and Lillian Curley. Sue helped us develop some specialty skills on the field and Caitlin and Lillian worked to develop our goalies. Beth has also been our biggest cheerleader."

The 2010 season looks promising with the return of a cadre of stellar players, an impressive group of junior varsity players who will migrate to the squad and a capable coach who truly loves the game and her players.

The season ended, the girls decided it was time to quell the endless chatter of the boy's football team, so they offered them an opportunity to put their sticks where the mouths were. The boys had been arguing that field hockey was not a sport and that the new turf field was all about football not field hockey. So, the coaches put on referee hats and the girls donned their skirts and took the field against the boys.

The boys brought a hard hitting, herd like approach to the sport. Despite the danger of errant balls flying off the boy's sticks, the girls played boldly and with finesse. They posted the first score on a goal by Izzy Franklin. The boys answered with a bullet off the stick of Dean Driscoll. Late in the first half, the boys went out ahead on a sizzler by Dana Valentine but Angela Cippola quickly replied to even the score at 2-2. Players from both sides battled it out at a dizzying game pace with fans noting that Kayla Orner may have had the hardest drives of any player out there. With time waning in the second period, there was one stick broken and plenty of bruises to prove that play was intense. But there was no way the girls were leaving the field any way but victorious. Coming in from the sidelines after taking a brutal shot to the knee, Izzy Franklin iced the goal that put the girls on top, silencing a semester of chatter. Coined the Fall Ball Polooza the teams vowed to meet on the turf again next season.

Cohasset's Martin named Liberty League Rookie of the Week

TROY, N.Y. – The Liberty League has announced its weekly award winners and Rensselaer student-athlete and former Cohasset High School Basketball Team Standout Daniel Martin was named Rookie of the Week for the week ending on November 29. He helped the Engineers to a 2-0 record, providing solid minutes off the bench.

A freshman forward from Cohasset, Mass., Martin averaged 4.5 points, 5.5 rebounds and recorded a team-high five blocked shots, with no turnovers in two games. He scored five points with five boards, an assist, a steal and a game-best four blocks in an 85-80 victory over Mount Saint Mary on Tuesday. He then added four points and six boards with a blocked shot in Sunday's 104-51 win against Paul Smith's.

On the season, Martin is averaging 5.0 points and 4.4 rebounds, while seeing time in all five of Rensselaer's games. Averaging 10.5 minutes, the Cohasset High School graduate has a team-best 11 blocked shots to go along with three assists and three steals. He is shooting .500 (10 for 20) from the field and .833 (5 for 6) from the free throw line.

The Engineers, who have opened the 2009-10 season with a 4-1 record, return to action this weekend, when they host the Tri-State Shootout Tournament at East Campus Arena. Southern Vermont College and Massachusetts College of Liberal Arts open play on Saturday at 6 p.m., followed by Rensselaer taking on Albany College of Pharmacy at 8p.m.

The Skippers didn't go three-and-out all night, but couldn't fight the turnovers and penalties.

"It was the same thing as Thanksgiving," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said. "We had too many turnovers and penalties."

The turnovers were costly, with quarterback Jeff Cavanaro tossing an interception at the Holliston two-yard line with 43 seconds left in the first half, ending a six-play drive that took the Skippers from their own 33 to the Holliston 29.

The other turnover was a Valentine fumble when he was stripped of the ball after an eight-yard gain.

That ended a promising drive that took Cohasset from their own 18 to the Holliston 38.

Holliston took a 7-6 lead on a 10-play, 53 yard drive capped by a seven-yard touchdown run by John Collins.

The drive was aided by a pass interference call against the Skippers.

Holliston added to the lead with an eight-play drive that covered 39 yards, capped with a one-yard keeper by Mayo.

Valentine credited the offensive line for getting him the yardage he had, and added that this is a season he'll remember.

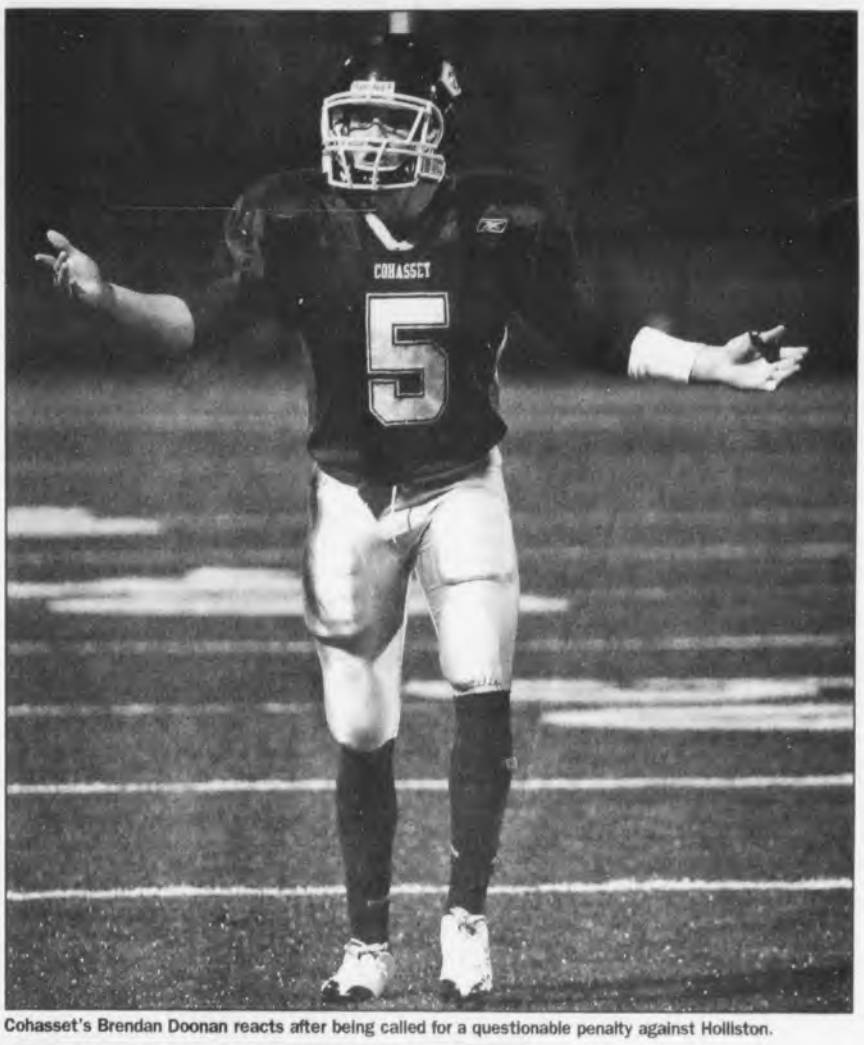
"This was a special group of guys," Valentine said. "This team came together, a great group. We didn't make history, but it was a great accomplishment getting here. I will take this season with me forever."

Valentine, who said he'll probably look to prep school next year before heading to college, was humbled by the fact that his team looked to him so much in a big game.

"It's nice that they feel I'm the go-to player," he said. "We have so many great players with Jeff, Dean (Driscoll) and Brendan (Doonan). To give me the ball was an honor."

Afanasiw will remember this season as well.

"I'm so unbelievably proud of this team," Afanasiw said. "We're a school of 363 against a school with 900 kids to choose from. It really was David and Goliath. They have the highest rated offense in the state and we held them to half of what they usually score. I'm very pleased with the defense. They got us a couple of turnovers, interceptions. The defense gave us a chance. We won the special teams. We won the defense. It wasn't for a lack of trying.



"The seniors had their moment. They got to play on this field. The kids did themselves proud. They played their butts off."

Jack Carrier and Robert Jones both had second half interceptions for the Skippers.

For many Skippers, there won't be much rest.

While they won't be playing Saturday, basketball season starts soon.

"We have a day off tomorrow," Valentine said. "The we start basketball. I'm looking forward to the season. Right now there are only three players practicing. The rest of us move on together."

Cohasset's Brendan Doonan reacts after being called for a questionable penalty against Holliston.

Rough Turkey Day at Hull

Nothing seems to work for visiting Skippers

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

If it could go wrong, it did for the Cohasset football team in its Thanksgiving Day matchup at Hull.

Cohasset fumbled three times, including one at their own one yard line, rang up more than 75 yards in penalties and Hull came away with a 15-7 win on what was a perfect day for football.

Hull was able to keep Dana Valentine under control, with a little help from their slippery field that was still wet and muddy after the last few days of rain.

Still, the Skippers had chances.

Cohasset drove to the Hull 25 in the first quarter before turning the ball over downs.

Two plays later, the Skippers had the ball back at the Pirate 31 after Brendan Doonan recovered a fumble, but Cohasset couldn't capitalize, turning it over on downs again, this time at the two on a fourth-and-goal play from the five.

Cohasset finally got on the board with a 53-yard drive that covered four plays, capped b y an eight-yard touchdown run by Valentine with 2:15 left in the first half.

The next two times Hull had the ball, Cohasset ended drives with interceptions, one by Doonan, and another by Robert Jones to end the half.

Then the real trouble started for the Skippers when penalties knocked them from a second-and-five at their own 38 all the way back to the 25, setting up a third-and-25 play.

"We had 75 yards in penalties and at least two fumbles," Cohasset coach Pete Anafasiw said. "That's not a winning recipe when you're playing a winning football team."

The Skippers wound up punting and couldn't slow Mark Mainini's return that gave Hull a first down at the Cohasset nine.

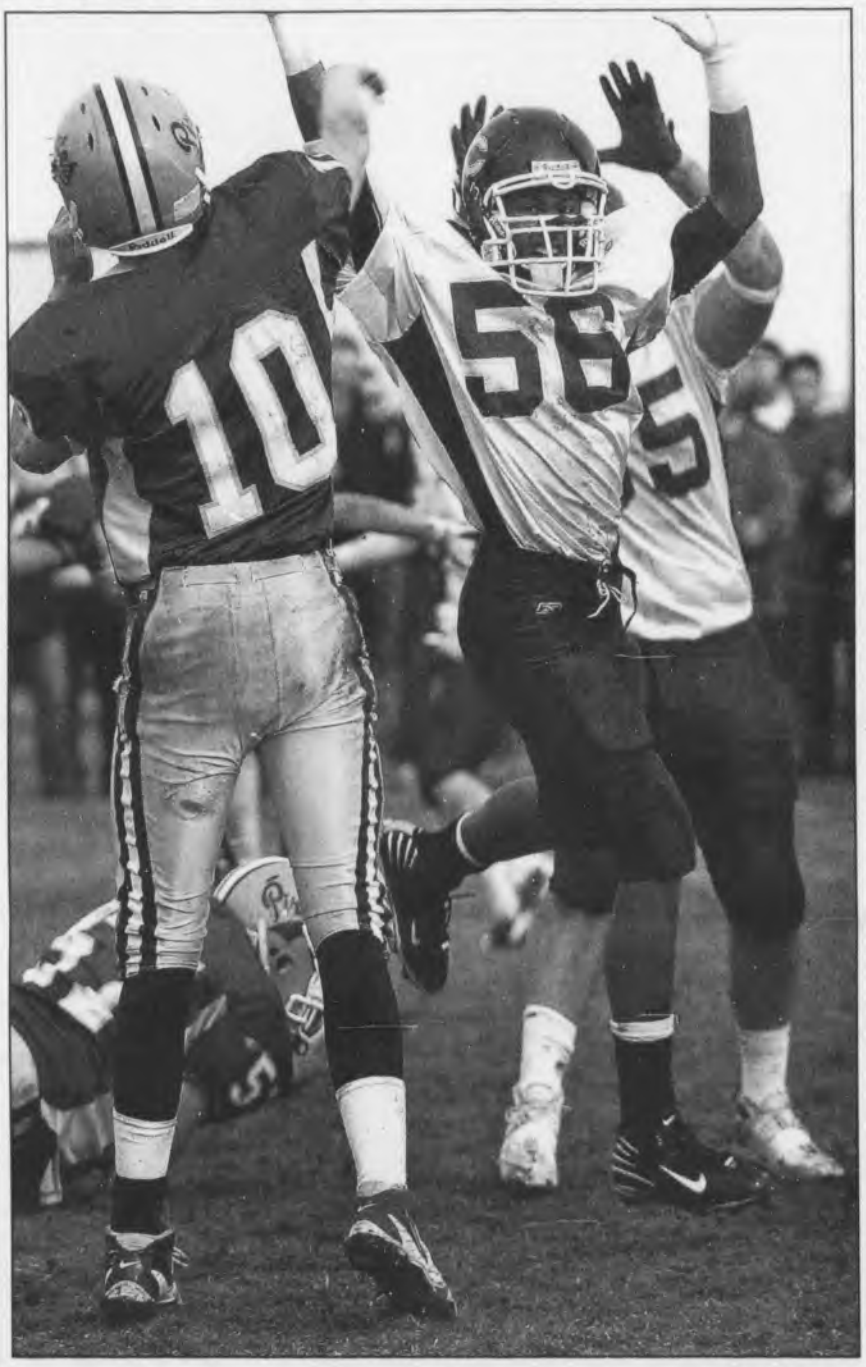
The Skipper defense held though, getting the ball back at the one, but on the next play the Skippers fumbled and one play later the game was tied 7-7.

The Pirates shut down Cohasset again on their next drive and followed with a 90-yard drive that covered 12 plays, sparked by a 31-yard pass play. Mainini finished the drive with a six-yard run, while Dan Shea keyed the ground attack.

Shea added a two-point conversion after a Cohasset penalty on the extra point gave the Pirates a second chance after a miss.

The Skippers got into more trouble when they fumbled the kickoff.

Still, Cohasset had another chance when Cam Washak recovered a Hull fumble at the Cohasset 30 with 2:41 left to play.



A dropped pass and a fumbled snap cost the Skippers though, and quarterback Jeff Cavanaro's fourth-down pass into the end zone just missed Doonan's diving try in the end zone.

Afanasiw was disappointed with the outcome.

"Ugly," Afanasiw said. "That's the only word I can think of to describe the game. Everyone had an off game. I think we let emotion get the better of us. We had too many penalties. That's not what undefeated teams do. The kids fought hard. They wanted to win. We just weren't dialed in. Maybe this was our trap game. We've gotten past a few of them. maybe this was the one."

As for Valentine's troubles, Afanasiw said he had equipment trouble.

"Dana didn't have the right cleats on in the first half," he said. "He was slipping and sliding all over the place in the first half. It was unfortunate. Hull did a nice job on him."

Thanksgiving is way too underrated

LIFE AT CHS

SEAN MACCARTHY

Not to mention, your lunch for the next week and a half is pretty much set because of all the leftovers.

I don't know about you guys, but I would have to say Thanksgiving is the most underrated holiday. An abundance of family love and an abundance of food is such a sweet combination. Oh…and it gives you a super long weekend.

Of course, there is always an event that comes before this awesome holiday. This event should be made a holiday too because it just reeks of awesomeness. This event is of course powder puff. The one day of the year that showcases the tackling abilities of senior and junior girls. Anyone who thinks a girl can't hit should of seen some of the crazy collisions at this game. Most notably, now probably my favorite person in the world, Lucy Noble derailed a certain junior. The hit was so earth shattering that she had to be kicked out of the game. Legendary. Despite a badly twisted ankle and an ejection, the senior girls thoroughly handled the junior girls throughout the game winning 28-12. Seniors run show.

In the A.M. of Thanksgiving, many Cohassetians…wait no Cohassetites? Cohassetinians? Forget it; many residents of Cohasset took the trek out to the Hull gut to see the annual Cohasset vs. Hull Thanksgiving football game. Cohasset unfortunately lost to the pirates who used their really bad and muddy field that they are used to against the skippers who are not used to such bad field conditions. At the end of the day, Hull had to give up all of their equipment that day and Cohasset was headed to the playoffs and could call themselves South Short League Champions. Now who is the real winner? Oh yeah, it's definitely Cohasset.

After a glorious, and much needed, Thanksgiving break, the students of Cohasset High School returned on Monday, rejuvenated and full from all that food. Speaking of food, Monday saw the final tally of the food donated by each grade for the Cohasset High School food drive. The sophomores led the way with 91 food items donated. Second came those "fragile" freshmen with 53 items donated. The seniors donated 46 items. Juniors came in with a WHOPPING 14 items of food donated. Hooray? Of course hooray! Because if my math is correct (which I have my doubts about) we were able to donate 204 items of food to the Cohasset Food Pantry. Thanks a bunch for your donations. They mean a lot.

On Tuesday, many residents of Cohasset (I am pretty sure they are called Cohassetians) took an even longer trek to Bridgewater-Raynham High School for their playoff match up against Holliston. In a tough and hard fought game, Cohasset fell to Holliston, a school that has 950 kids to choose from for their football team. Just sayin'. Way to go guys. It was a great season and you have made Cohasset proud.

Wednesday saw the beginning of signing people up for the blood drive. On the first day alone, we already got 30 people to verbally commit to donating blood on Dec. 8th. Remember, everyone over 110 pounds and the age of 16 is eligible to donate blood and save lives. Be great and donate. It shows you appreciate. Saving lives before it's too late. Before this evolves into a rap written by yours truly, I am going to have to sign off.

It's been a good week to after a well rested 4 and a half day weekend. It's been fun. Can't wait to write about next week as some big things are coming up! Woo Hoo!

Sean MacCarthy discovered a new found love for gravy on Thanksgiving.

Christmas in the Square Friday & Saturday

Santa is coming to downtown Hingham on Friday Dec. 4th during the 27th annual Christmas in the Square from 6 to 8pm at the corner of Main & North streets, and the celebration continues all day on Saturday Dec. 5th throughout the downtown.

Festively decorated shops and streets, a visit from Santa, a Festival of Trees, holiday music, and an overriding spirit of goodwill are just a few of the features that will draw hundreds of people to the annual Christmas in the Square, sponsored by the Hingham Downtown Association along with other civic groups and area businesses.

FRIDAY EVENING

Hingham Square – Main Street from North to Elm, and South Street from Central to North - will be closed to traffic on Friday at 5pm. The festivities begin at 6pm, with Santa scheduled to make his dramatic entrance atop a fire truck at around 6:30pm. Streets will be filled with eager children on parents' shoulders trying to catch a glimpse of the jolly old fellow. Santa will spend the rest of the evening on Main Street visiting with one and all.

Holiday Performances, 6 to 8pm — introduced by Garrett Bradley, Bob Hedlund and Peter Roth: Derby Academy Middle School Chorus; Emmy Giarrusso; SS Conservatory students; Hingham Girl Scouts Troop 4795; St. Paul School Chorus; Hingham High School Choral group; Maura Farden with Joe Micarelli; and Mike Boucher & Friends

• Giant Peppermint Sticks, mugs, jingle bells — Groups of young revelers will parade through the Square, oversized peppermint sticks in hand, sharing the season's excitement. These peppermint sticks, emblematic of the night's festivities for decades, are sold by the Hingham Downtown Association for $2 each to raise funds for the event, which is sponsored by local businesses with help from the Department of Public Works and the Police and Fire Departments.

• A Festival of Trees and Gingerbread Houses —The Festival of Trees is back for its fifth year at Old Derby Academy, 34 Main St., from 5:30pm to 8pm on Friday, Dec. 4, and 10am to 3pm on Saturday, Dec. 5. The Historical Society's Out of the Ordinary gift shop, with all kinds of Hingham gifts and souvenirs, will be open during these same hours.

This event, sponsored by the Hingham Mothers' Club and the Hingham Historical Society, transforms the Old Derby Academy into a wonderland of decorated trees, gingerbread houses, wreaths and centerpieces, all available through a silent auction and through a children's raffle. All proceeds benefit the Mothers' Club Hingham High School Scholarship Fund and the Diane Edson Fund.

SATURDAY DOWNTOWN

Finding the holiday spirit should be easy on Saturday Dec. 5th with special holiday fun from 9am to 4pm through out historic downtown Hingham. High School students will welcome visitors as Girl Scouts caroling fill the streets with favorite holiday songs (10-11:30am).

At 11:30am, A Different Spin – a circus and fire arts performance troupe – will perform on South Street. Their highly engaging circus arts variety show for all ages features juggling, acrobatics, comedy, audience participation and more. One of their members, Ricky Hawkins, was born and raised in Hingham before meeting the rest of the members of A Different Spin in college and moving to Boston. They are very happy to be adding their own unique circus flair to Christmas in the Square this year.

Horse-drawn hayrides leave from the corner of Main & North streets from 12 to 3pm (free). This lovely Downtown tradition, made possible by locally owned businesses, continues on Saturdays, Dec. 12 & 19.

A special artistic shopping event takes place at Wm Raveis Real Estate, 40 North St., from noon – 4pm.

Mike Tierny and his family have raised alpaca on their farm in Westfield since 1993, and will share their wealth of knowledge about the alpaca with the public on Saturday.

Alpacas are sold in the United States for financial investment as well as for household pets. The cost of ownership can be as little as $300 for a pet alpaca or more than $20,000 for an investment-grade alpaca. Alpacas are clean, safe, quiet, intelligent and disease-resistant. With soft padded feet, they are gentle on the land and can easily be transported in the family van. For more information, come to Alpaca Suri on Saturday or visit www.maplebrookfarm.com.

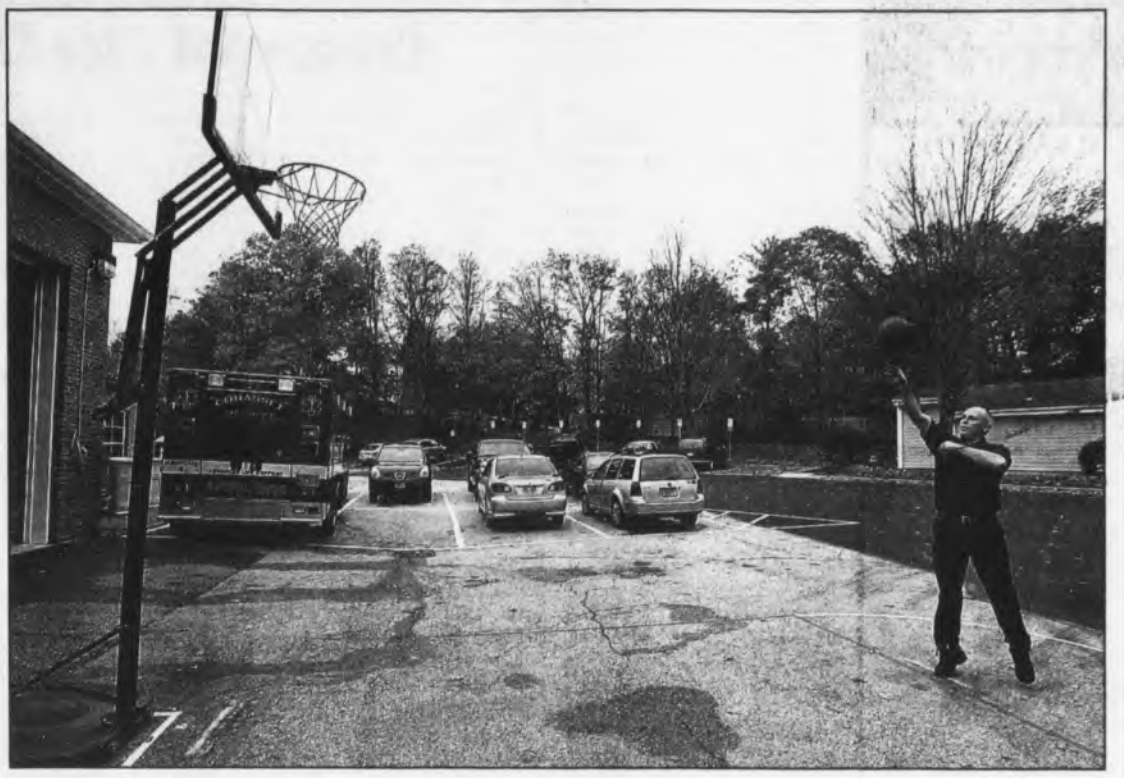
Caroling On the Common is Dec. 19

Hey there, Merry-Makers! Once again, First Parish is sponsoring a Holiday treat for young & old: the well-loved Cohasset tradition — Caroling on the Common — on Saturday, Dec. 19th.

Everyone is welcome! This is a community event for young and old, especially those with school-age children. Bring some friends! Exceptional singing voices are NOT required; carols will be familiar and simple — there will be songbooks for everyone. Because it gets dark quickly, you are asked to bring flashlights.

Participants will gather at the Parish House (23 North Main St.) between 3:45-4 p.m., for cookies and cider. Carolers will then leave to do their singing near the duck pond. At approximately 4:45, everyone will return to the Parish House for hot cocoa, cider and cookies (cookie donations will be much appreciated).

Everyone is asked to bring a pair of white cotton socks (or two or three) which will be donated to Boston Health Care for the Homeless; both men's and women's sizes are welcome.



Come join your friends for an old-fashioned holiday get-together, and pass the word! The more the merrier! For further information contact Sandy Bailey at the church office (383-1100) or Woody Chittick (383-3215).

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF DEC. 14, 2009

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Make your holiday preparations one step at a time in order to avoid being overwhelmed and leaving things undone. That confusing family situation continues to work itself out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Ease this year's holiday money pressures by letting your thrifty side guide you as you look for those perfect gifts that typically reflect your good taste and love of beauty.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You'll have a good handle on potential holiday problems if you delegate tasks to family members, friends or co-workers — most of whom will be more than happy to help out.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Right now you are especially vulnerable to holiday scams that seek to take advantage of your generosity. Best advice: Check them out before you send out your checks.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The upcoming holiday season gives the Big Cat much to purr about. Relationships grow stronger, and new opportunities loom on the horizon, just waiting to be pounced on.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A changing situation brings conflicting advice about how to go forward with your holiday plans. Your best bet: Make the decision you feel most comfortable with.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Holiday plans get back on track after some confusion about the direction you expected to take. A potentially troublesome money matter needs your immediate attention.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your holiday preparations are on track. But you need to confront a personal situation while you can still keep it from overwhelming everything else.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Tight financial matters ease a bit during this holiday season. But the sagacious Sagittarian is well-advised to keep a tight hold on the reins while shopping for gifts.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Don't put off making decisions about this year's holiday celebrations, despite the negative comments you've been getting from several quarters. Do it NOW!

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) The holidays will bring new friends and new opportunities. Meanwhile, be careful to use your energy wisely as you go about making holiday preparations.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) There's good news coming from a most unlikely source. And it could turn out to be one of the best holiday gifts you have had in years. Remember to stay positive.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Artist Bettina Lesieur's Holiday Open Studio and Gallery will feature the Lesieur Collections

As we embrace this festive season, Bettina Lesieur welcomes the public into her studio located at 301 St. George St., Duxbury. A holiday tradition for the past 15 years, visitors are invited to share the ambience that inspires Bettina's award-winning paintings while perusing her broad collection.

This year's holiday open studio and gallery will take place Dec. 4, 5 and 6 and will continue on Dec. 11, 12 and 13, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.; viewings are also available at other times by calling 781-934-5103 for an appointment. The Lesieur Collections include original paintings, prints, and giclees from Bettina's extensive body of work along with pieces created by her late father, artist Robert W. Lesieur.

Captivated by the beauty found in the natural landscape, Bettina is passionate about capturing her surroundings on canvas. Her paintings depict the meandering inlets, serene salt marshes, and stunning beaches of the South Shore and Cape Cod. From Back River sunsets to bayside pathways to island fishing shacks, Bettina transforms familiar vistas with fresh perspective. A recipient of the Grumbacher Art Award, she also depicts faraway settings, including European and Caribbean landscapes, along with still lifes and enchanting gardens.

Bettina, who has been drawing and painting for as long as she can remember, was mentored from an early age by her father Robert, an accomplished Boston area fine artist. She pays tribute to him in this season's open studio and gallery by showcasing many works from his portfolio which includes both originals and prints of his portraits, still lifes, landscapes, and house portraits.

A longtime teacher of after school painting classes, Bettina greatly enjoys sharing her gift with others. Opening her studio during the holidays is a tradition she looks forward to every year. "It is a wonderful time of year, it's great to have people coming by. I am able to connect with my collectors, former students, and people who have just discovered my work," says Bettina. "It is a very rewarding, fun, and festive experience."

Scituate Arts Association presents Patricia A. McCarthy

Award winning Scituate Arts Association member, Patricia McCarthy is the featured artist at the Scituate Library Foundation's Gallery for the month of December. Her exhibit is called "By Land and Sea." A "plein air" painter, Patricia feels that her best work is done when she is drawn to the subject matter. She paints directly on dry paper and completes her painting in one session while the smell of the sea or flowers surrounds her. She feels she responds to the subject with more emotion and freedom when outdoors.

She has won numerous awards and her work has been judged as "clear reality with a personal touch" and "my favorite work – love the color and sunlight, and the use of shadow and realism." She is a Copley Artist, a Gallery artist and instructor at the South Shore Art Center. She is a graduate of the Art Institute of Boston.

Her artwork is part of the permanent collection of the Dana Farber Cancer Institute where reproductions of her paintings are used for greeting and memorial cards in the hospital gift store. 250,000 cards have been sold with all profits benefiting the DF Cancer Institute.

Stop in at the Scituate Library and enjoy Pat's works. Further information on the SAA's events, classes, etc., can be found at scituateart.com or contact Janet Cornacchio by email at jcornacch@aol.com.

Turbine hearing rescheduled

Jan. 6 is first public hearing

The court has set a strict timetable for the Planning Board to adhere to.

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The Planning Board will once again take up the CCI-Energy wind turbine application following the holidays.

After having to cancel the initial advertised public hearing on Nov. 24 because the official remand order from Land Court had not been received, the planning board has scheduled the hearing for Wednesday, Jan. 6.

The project application, put forth by a private developer, Plymouth-based CCI-Energy, proposes the installation of two 1.65-megawatt sized wind turbines sited off Route 3A on the hill behind Graham Waste Services and Hingham Lumber.

The three-page official remand order from the Land Court was received by the Town Clerk's office on Monday, Dec. 7. It orders the Planning Board to hold a public hearing on the modified application from CCI.

The court has set a strict timetable for the Planning Board to adhere to. The first public hearing has to be held within 45 days from the date of the order, and if a second public hearing is neces-

High school students 'give life'

Student council blood drive a success

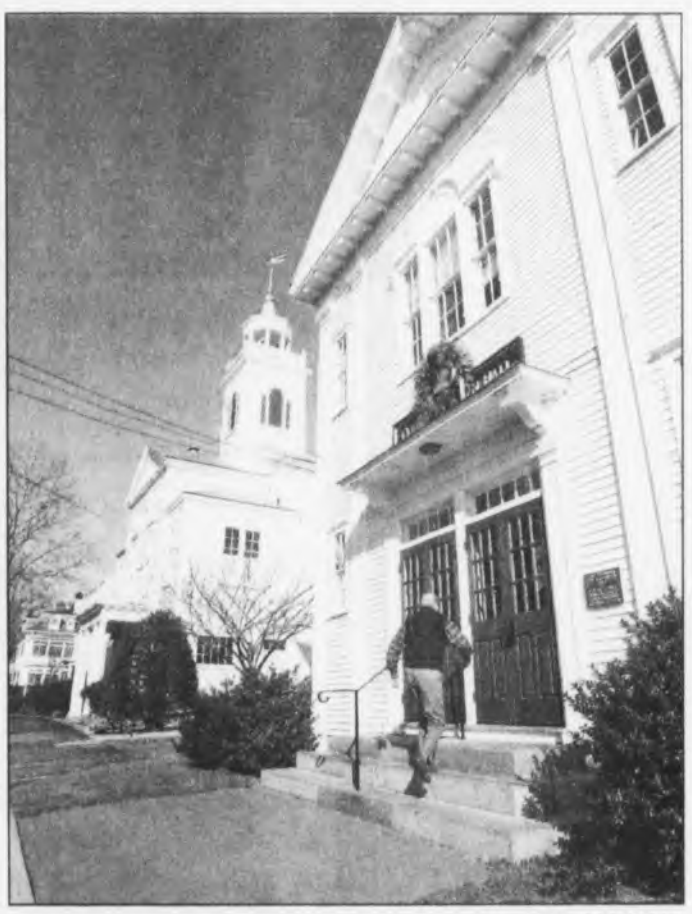
By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

On Tuesday morning more than 50 Cohasset High students gave a part of themselves — quite literally.

The American Red Cross, with its green cots and friendly nurses, descended upon Cohasset High to collect pints of blood from willing students and staff.

The Red Cross blood drive was the first one held at Cohasset High School in recent memory. But, the response was so positive it is unlikely to be last blood drive.

The high school student council organized the blood drive and was able to fill up the appointment schedule fairly easily.



"We really got the word out, put up Red Cross flyers, and really informed people. We held sign-ups at lunch and we got more people than we expected," said Sean MacCarthy,

Local voters like Coakley, Brown

22 percent turned out at polls

Unlike most election days where candidate supporters line up on Highland Avenue with signs and friendly waves, there was no one out stumping for any of the candidates on Tuesday morning.

Cohasset voters mirrored statewide voter choices for the primary election on Tuesday.

Attorney General Martha Coakley won the Democratic primary for the late Ted Kennedy's U.S. Senate seat with 47 percent of the Democrat vote statewide.

In Cohasset, Democrats and unenrolled voters who pulled Democrat ballots, gave Coakley more than 50 percent of the vote. She received 470 votes out of 868. U.S. Representative Michael Capuano and City Year cofounder Alan Khazei had nearly equal support from Cohasset voters. Capuano garnered 148 votes and Khazei received 149. About 11 percent, or 96 votes, went to Celtics coowner Steve Pagliuca.

State Senator Scott Brown won the Republican primary in a landslide vote, garnering 85 percent statewide over his rival, Duxbury businessman Jack E. Robinson. The story was the same in Cohasset, where 289 voters who pulled Republican ballots voted for Brown out of a total of 328. His rival, Duxbury businessman Jack E. Robinson, got 32 votes.

Last week, with just a dozen absentee ballots pulled, Town Clerk Marion Douglas predicted a 5 percent turnout. She was happily surprised when 22 percent of the registered voters made their way to the Town Hall to cast their ballot on the rare December election date.

The town clerk's office reported some surges in voters, especially in the after-work hours, but for most of the day voters trickled in, in ones or twos.

Unlike most election days where candidate supporters line up on Women face larceny and credit card fraud charges

The complaint alleges that the women stole a wallet from a Scituate woman while she was shopping at Shaw's Supermarket and subsequently used a credit card to make several purchases at Wal-Mart in Hanover.

Two Hull women were charged in criminal complaints in Quincy District Court on Dec. 4, with larceny from the person, and credit card fraud over $250.

The complaint alleges that on Oct.14, Heather A. Vergobbe, age 30, of Hull, and Jessica A. Simmons, age 29, also of Hull, stole a wallet from a Scituate woman while she was shopping at Shaw's Supermarket in Cohasset and subsequently used a credit card that was contained in that wallet to make several purchases at Wal-Mart in Hanover.

If convicted of the charges, Vergobbe and Simmons could face up to five years in prison.

Vergobbe was also charged in criminal complaints in Quincy District Court on Dec. 4, with uttering a false check, larceny of property under $250, and receiving stolen property under $250 (four counts).

That complaint alleges that on Oct. 15, Vergobbe passed a stolen check belonging to a Scituate woman at Stop & Shop in Cohasset. On Oct. 17, Cohasset Police detectives executed a search warrant at Vergobbe's residence where items belonging to the victim were recovered.

If convicted of the charges, Vergobbe could face up to 10 years in prison.

The Cohasset Criminal Investigation Division investigated both cases.

POLICE BEAT

No license, road rage, sick raccoon and car crashes

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Police said the operator of the car, a 76-year-old Quincy man, was lost and tried to turn around when the mishap occurred.

No license

A 24-year-old Weymouth man, driving a 2000 Mazda Protégé, is being summonsed to court for operating without being licensed following a traffic stop at Summer and Border streets last week for having an expired registration sticker.

Police said the only identification the man could provide was a Brazilian passport. A check with the registry showed he did not have a license. He is being summonsed to Quincy District Court for operating an unregistered motor vehicle and unlicensed operation. The traffic stop occurred at 9:17 a.m. on Monday (Nov. 30).

Hunting rules

A South Main Street resident went to the police station last week to ask about hunting rules in Cohasset. The resident was concerned about hunters in the area. Police said no hunting is allowed on the ocean side of Route 3A in Cohasset. There is very restricted hunting permitted on the west side of Route 3A. Further questions should be directed to the Environmental Police (781-740-1163 Hingham HQ).

Road rage

A Cohasset woman went to police headquarters last week to report a road rage incident at the RTF over a parking spot involving a man in a white Chevrolet pickup truck the previous Saturday (Nov. 29). He apparently became irate when he thought the resident had taken his spot and a verbal argument ensued. The woman thought the man was menacing and thought police should know about the incident, police said.

Deer struck

A 58-year-old Scituate woman driving a 2005 Nissan Murano struck a deer on Route 3A between the train station and the Golden Living Center last week, police said. The woman was traveling north at 6:33 a.m. on Tuesday (Dec. 1) when she hit the deer. The deer was killed; there was heavy front-end damage to the car, which was leaking fluids and had to be towed.

Police said the number of deer/car accidents continues to be high this time of year and they urge motorists to use caution.

Car crash

An 80-year-old Cohasset man in a 2001 BMW pulled out from a parking lot onto King Street (Route 3A) at about 3 p.m. on Tuesday (Dec. 1) into the path of a 1999 Chrysler sedan that was traveling north. The operator of the sedan was a 67-year-old man from Scottsdale, Ariz. The Cohasset man was trying to take a left when the accident occurred; he was cited for failure to yield to oncoming traffic, police said. Both cars were towed; no injuries were reported.

Sick raccoon

A raccoon was put down on Stockbridge Street last Tuesday (Dec. 1) after a concerned resident reported the animal was walking down the middle of the street. The Hingham Animal Control Officer responded and found that the animal was so sick, it had to be destroyed. Police said anytime a wild animal is acting bizarrely, rabies is suspected. However, the state does not test for rabies unless there is evidence the animal had bitten someone or came in contact with a domestic animal, police said.

The Cohasset Animal Control officer, who is shared with Norwell, works in Cohasset 10 hours a week. Cohasset Police asks Hingham Animal Control for help in emergency situations when the Cohasset ACO is not available.

Expired registration

A 2008 Mazda III was towed last Thursday (Dec. 3) after a traffic stop because its registration had expired. Police explained unregistered vehicles are not allowed on the roadways.

Stuck in mud

A motorist, who was lost, got stuck in the mud at a residence off Beechwood Street last Thursday (Dec. 3). The call came in about 12:48 p.m. while the caretaker at the property was checking the house and found a 2000 Ford Contour sunk in the mud off the driveway. Police said the operator of the car, a 76-year-old Quincy man, was lost and tried to turn around when the mishap occurred. The car had to be towed out of the mud that was a result of the heavy rain last week. The car was in the mud so deep that the driver could not open the door. The Quincy man had to pay for the tow. The operator is responsible for damage to the property and that matter will be settled between him and the property owner, police said.

Trash dumping

A 16-year-old, who is working at a local restaurant, left about 20 bags of trash outside the facility's dumpster last Friday (Dec. 4). The boy had permission to use the dumpster, his parents said, but apparently that message was not cleared with all the management at the establishment who called police. The parents were contacted and agreed to remove the trash, police said.

BMW rage

A concerned resident went to police last week after reading about a road-rage incident on Thanksgiving involving a man in a BMW. The resident reported that she had been involved in a road-rage incident in town with the operator of a BMW about two months ago and thought it might have been the same person. She did not have the plate number.

Police took the matter under advisement.

Public comment policy under review

School Committee to establish protocol for community input

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"A lot of things get people emotionally charged and upset, but for us to sit here and get attacked it is not a way to have a civil discussion."
— Alfred Slanetz, vice chairman

The School Committee wants to develop a policy for dealing with public comment.

In recent months, the School Committee, which typically has a sparse live audience, has been the center of debate and hours of public comment.

As a result, Chairman Adrienne MacCarthy put an item on the agenda to discuss a procedure for dealing with public comment moving forward. MacCarthy was absent from last week's School Committee meeting, but the committee did spend some time discussing the issue.

"Public comment is recent history has been, shall we say, ruckus at times," said School Committee vice chair Alfred Slanetz, adding there could be some level of guidelines set for public comment.

Earlier this fall, the school committee had several meetings where about a dozen members of the community came out to speak about President Barack Obama's back-to-school speech, which was not shown in Cohasset Public Schools.

First, Slanetz said it would be nice to ensure a topic is on the agenda so the school committee members can be prepared.

"If (a subject) is not on the agenda, it is very hard for the committee to come to good decisions," Slanetz said. He suggested if an item was not on the agenda, but members of the community wished to speak to an issue the committee could devote five or 10 minutes to get an overview of the issue, then possibly place it on an upcoming agenda.

"A lot of things get people emotionally charged and upset, but for us to sit here and get attacked it is not a way to have a civil discussion," Slanetz said. "I think public comment should be constructive and promote working together as a community."

Slanetz said if something is on the agenda, the committee could spend a "reasonable amount of time" on public input as long as there are new ideas coming being brought forth from the public.

School Committee member Paul Schubert agreed with Slanetz in that "time was of the essence" because the committee had a lot of work to do during most meetings.

Member Helene Lieb said it was paramount that the community felt "comfortable" coming to meetings.

"We should not take excitement for being disrespectful," Lieb said. "We don't want members of the community to feel cut off…if they do then we are not doing our job, we're not listening."

Member Lucia Flibotte came to the table with a different perspective, one she gained from being on the other side of the table.

"I have been shut down by the school committee and felt like I was not listened to," Flibotte said, adding the committee should keep in mind most of the time there is no one in the audience.

The committee requested the policy and standards sub-committee develop a protocol for public comment and bring a draft back to the committee at a later time. School Committee members Flibotte and MacCarthy sit on the policy and standards sub-committee.

sary it must be opened within 60 days of the order. A written decision on the application is required within 30 days after the close of the public hearing(s).

The remand order states if the board votes to grant the special permit requested in the modified application, the board may conduct additional public hearings on special permit conditions proved the board delivers the special permit, with all conditions, to the Town Clerk for filing no later than April 9, 2010.

The public hearing process, which began in early September 2008 and concluded in early May, for the CCI-Energy's special permit application, the first under the town's wind energy conversion bylaw, was contentious, controversial and drawn out. During the process, there were hours of developer and public comment entered into the record as well as hundreds of pages of data and public comment submitted.

In early May, the Planning Board voted 3 to 1 to approve the application. However, the vote was effectively a denial of the application because under state statutes, the application had to be approved by four members of the five-member board. (Planning Board member Jean Healey took office after the public hearing began and could not vote on the project.)

Planning Board vice chairman Stuart Ivimey was the sole opposing vote. The Planning Board's special permit decision was filed with the Town Clerk on July 9 and CCI-Energy filed its appeal of the decision to Land Court on July 20.

The Planning Board office has also received two submissions of public comment regarding the remanded wind turbine application.

Conrad Langenhagen of 24 Sanctuary Pond Road, a vocal opponent of the project during the public hearings earlier this year and a professional in the wind energy business, submitted a seven-page letter with a 3/4-inch thick attachments detailing a technical response to the new materials provided by CCI-Energy in the modified application.

A second letter is from Hingham-based attorney Adam Brodsky who has been retained to represent a group of 13 Sanctuary Pond Road, Rose Hill and Fairoaks Lane households. The 9-page letter alleges procedural requirements have not been met by CCI-Energy and suggests the Planning Board take no substantive action in regards to the application.

Cable competition

Verizon to begin cable service in Cohasset

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"The material terms are identical to Comcast."
— Town Counsel Robert Hillman

For the first time residents of Cohasset can get cable service from Verizon.

As of last Monday night (Nov. 30), the town of Cohasset, with unanimous approval from the Board of Selectmen, granted Verizon a non-exclusive 10-year cable license.

Town Counsel Robert Hillman said in function the Verizon license is nearly identical to the Comcast license granted back by the town in the spring.

"The material terms are identical to Comcast," Hillman said.

With the advent of the competition, cable TV providers are approaching local access television, dubbed public, educational and governmental access, differently. For a total of 25 years, Cohasset has utilized a television studio on Route 53 in Norwell (and before that a studio in North Scituate) to film local programming like the popular local talk show "Our Town." Local programming is viewed on channels 10 and 22.

In July Comcast closed its Norwell studio and in leaving the town without the ability to produce local access programming. With Comcast moving out of the studio business, the town will take over that role — with funding help from cable providers and their subscribers.

Every municipality can grant non-exclusive television licenses to cable providers. Until recent years, there has been little to no competition in the realm of cable television. Comcast has been the only cable provider for Cohasset in the last decade. The town renewed Comcast's cable license in a 10-year contract in April.

To jump start the local access television, Verizon is providing a $20,000 capital grant for the creation of the studio and its equipment.

"(This license) is as advantageous a license with Verizon as any peer town has achieved," Hillman said.

Hillman said the signing of the license would effectively allow Cohasset customers to begin service with Verizon.

"I like to think of it as there is a giant switch somewhere that says 'Cohasset,'" Hillman said.

Representatives from Verizon told the Selectmen they could begin cable service in the vast majority of homes and businesses in Cohasset by the end of the week.

"I obviously think it is a good idea for competition," said Selectman Ralph Dormitzer, however he questioned some of the language in the license agreement. Hillman said Verizon has more "aggressively pursued" uniform language in their license agreements across the state and the country than other cable providers.

There was no public comment on the license and the Selectmen voted unanimously to adopt the agreement.

First round of police chief interviews wraps up

Griffin expects the second, public round of interviews with the finalists to be held the first week of January.

Town Manager Bill Griffin and his candidate evaluation team finished up the initial round of interviews for the position of police chief earlier this week. Nine candidates were interviewed over the past three weeks.

Griffin previously said the candidates were a mix of internal candidates, current police chiefs and high-ranking officers in other municipalities.

In an e-mail this week, Griffin said the candidate evaluation team will be narrowing the field to 2 to 4 finalists.

Under the Town Manager Act, Town Manager Griffin is responsible for the appointment of the Police Chief. The Board of Selectmen has the power to "veto" the appointment within 15 days of its announcement.

Griffin expects the second, public round of interviews with the finalists to be held the first week of January. He was not sure when the finalists names would be announced.

In late September Police Chief James Hussey, who held the post for the past five years, resigned to return to the Boston Police Department where he started his career. Brian Noonan, who served as Cohasset's police chief from 1993 to 2002, is serving as interim police chief.

In the job description, Griffin placed strong emphasis on "teambuilding and community outreach."

A salary range of $100,000 to $120,000 was established for the position after Griffin surveyed the South Shore region for police chief's salaries.

Briefly

Hall of Fame

A Hall of Fame to honor the athletic accomplishments of Cohasset High School alumni is well in the works. Athletic director Ron Ford said he is working on developing a Hall of Fame constitution and plans to induct the first members of the Hall of Fame over Thanksgiving 2010.

Ford said he has a long-standing commitment from the Clark Chatterton Fund to provide the initial start-up costs for the Hall of Fame.

The Hall of Fame athletes will be nominated by a nominating committee, and then chosen by a voting committee.

Ford said he would return to the School Committee in the spring with a constitution for its approval.

Ice rink floated for Alumni Field

Fenway Park is doing it. Gillette Stadium is doing it. Why not Cohasset High?

At last Wednesday's School Committee Meeting, Athletic Director Ron Ford floated the possibility of placing a regulation ice rink on Alumni Stadium during the three months of winter. Right now, the idea is just an idea, but he is looking into the specifics to see if it is feasible.

Across the South Shore, Ford said athletic directors are experiencing a "severe lack of ice time," which has sent them on a hunt for open rink time for their high school hockey teams. Ford said as of last week's meeting he still had two games unscheduled.

Still just a concept, Ford told the School Committee an ice rink could be a community asset and possibly a fundraiser for the schools and the department. The rink could be rented out to local high schools or private groups looking for ice time.

"We have the ideal facility for it," Ford said. "I think it has tremendous potential."

Ford is currently speaking with Ice Rink Events about the project and seeing if they could develop a business plan for a Cohasset High ice rink.

School Committee vice chair Alfred Slanetz was supportive of the idea, but was concerned the rink could damage the turf field.

"The ice rink would not damage the field, that's obviously a first priority," Ford said.

The rink would have a chiller and a Zamboni machine to ensure ice was playable in nearly all weather, except rain and heavy snow.

"This is a great idea, especially if it is self-sustaining," said School Committee member Helene Lieb. The committee gave Ford the go-ahead to pursue the idea.

HAPPENINGS

Caroling On the Common is Dec. 19

Hey there, Merry-Makers! Once again, First Parish is sponsoring a Holiday treat for young & old: the well-loved Cohasset tradition — Caroling on the Common — on Saturday, Dec. 19th.

Everyone is welcome! This is a community event for young and old, especially those with school-age children. Bring some friends! Exceptional singing voices are NOT required; carols will be familiar and simple — there will be songbooks for everyone. Because it gets dark quickly, you are asked to bring flashlights.

Participants will gather at the Parish House (23 North Main St.) between 3:45-4 p.m., for cookies and cider. Carolers will then leave to do their singing near the duck pond. At approximately 4:45, everyone will return to the Parish House for hot cocoa, cider and cookies (cookie donations will be much appreciated).

Everyone is asked to bring a pair of white cotton socks (or two or three) which will be donated to Boston Health Care for the Homeless; both men's and women's sizes are welcome.

Come join your friends for an old-fashioned holiday get-together, and pass the word! The more the merrier! For further information contact Sandy Bailey at the church office (383-1100) or Woody Chittick (383-3215).

Celebrate New Year's Eve

The Hull Knights of Columbus is having its New Year's Eve celebration, at 7 p.m. Dec. 31, at the K of C hall 440 Nantasket Ave. A roast beef dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m. Music for dancing will be provided by DJ Bob Caldera. Tickets are $30 per person. Champagne and noisemakers. Everyone welcome. For reservations call 781-925-1712.

Cohasset goes country

Guitar teacher and CHS sophomore produce music showcase for local cable

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Over the past two years, country music star Taylor Swift has helped change the face of country music. She has sold millions of albums, amassed numerous industry awards, and sold out concert venues. At 19, she has become a force to reckon with not only in the country music world, but also in the worldwide music industry.

Could the next music industry changing talent be walking among us in Cohasset?

If you ask local guitar instructor Jim Armstrong the answer is absolutely.

And to showcase some of the local music talent, Armstrong and Cohasset High sophomore Anya Gruber have co-produced a television show that will soon be featured on the local cable access station (see sidebar).

"Nashville North presents: A Tribute to Taylor Swift" features 13 girls, age 8 to 17, playing guitar and singing their favorite Taylor Swift song.

Anya, 15, and Armstrong worked together from conception to post-production on the hour-long music revue. In addition to performing Taylor Swift's first hit single "Tim McGraw," Anya is the host of "Nashville North" and interviews each performer before they begin their performance.

In an interview on Sunday morning at French Memories it was clear Armstrong is not just Anya's music teacher, but also one of her biggest fans. After each lesson they talk about the music industry, which is how they were able to brainstorm the idea for the "Nashville North" show.

At the beginning of last summer, Anya and Armstrong were lamenting how difficult it was to get music playing gigs during the winter months. An initial thought was to put on a coffeehouse-type showcase with a group of Armstrong's students. However, Armstrong said he had done that before and found it difficult to coordinate with all the different kids and families.

Then, Anya suggested filming a television show.

"I'm not sure if I was completely serious," Anya said, but the idea took off.

They put their heads together and things started to fall into place. The Armstrong Brothers Band, which consists of Jim and his brothers Joe and Gerard as well as drummer Bill Holbrook, would back-up the young talent. Taylor Swift, being a favorite artist among his young female students, was the natural theme choice for the production.

Armstrong came up with the show's title "Nashville North" — a name he has had in the back of his mind if he ever is able to found his own record label.

Nashville being the country music capital of the world lets people know the country roots of the show and music, "we wanted to let everybody know there's a country scene north of Nashville," Armstrong said.

The filming of the showcase was done in one afternoon in August at the Our World Children's Museum music room. Each performer brought a small delegation of friends and family, who provided an audience and post-performance applause.

Anya's passion for music blossomed in middle school when she started learning to play guitar from her Spanish teacher. As her passion and talent for music grew, she signed up for lessons with Armstrong after seeing him with play with his students on the PSO Telethon.

Her initial love for the guitar was nurtured by listening to country artists, like the Dixie Chicks.

In addition to playing the guitar, Anya sings and is a member of the high school chorus.

Less than three years after first placing a guitar pick in her hand, Anya is a musician and performer with confidence, talent and a variety of industry skills, according to Armstrong.

"As much as I can possibly practice, I do," Anya said. "I love being on stage, I love singing and being on the microphone. It's hard to describe."

Anya has played with the Armstrong Brothers Band at numerous different venues from the Marshfield Fair to local farmers' markets to Cohasset Day.

On the upcoming holiday break, Anya, with Armstrong's help will be recording a demo with at least three original songs gleaned from a nearly five-inch notebook of lyrics and music.

"I know for sure she's going to be working in the music industry in a few years," Armstrong said. Anya wholeheartedly agreed. She is currently searching for a summer internship in the music industry. She has been looking for internships at local independent record labels. "I want to get my name out there and gain experience."

It is Anya and Armstrong's aim to produce three or four "Nashville North" television programs each year. The hope is to feature budding musical talent for country music and across all genres.

Armstrong and Anya are planning to send Taylor Swift and her record company, Big Machine Records, a copy of the "Nashville North" DVD.

"Maybe she'll watch it and be touched by it," Armstrong said, adding he and his students would be more than willing to be one of her opening acts when she comes to Gillette Stadium next summer.

In addition to Anya, the young Cohasset talent featured in first installment of "Nashville North" includes Jenna Neer, Colby Smalzel, Sophie Stone, Emma Steele, Holly Maher, Lily Hillstrand (of Norwell), Leanne Hayden, Kaitlin McGovern, Olivia Arnold, and former Cohasset residents "The Brown Sisters Band," Abby, Sarah, and Audrey Brown (now of Boulder, Colorado).

Coming soon: Local cable access

The "Nashville North presents A Tribute to Taylor Swift" is in the can, as they say in the television business, but is waiting for local cable access to be back up and running.

Cable Advisory Committee chair Pat Martin said it could be February before regular cable access is available again. In the meantime, only live town meetings can be shown. However, she is looking forward to having new equipment, new technology and a studio based in the Town Hall.

With the license agreement signed between Verizon and the town of Cohasset as of last week (see related story page 5), Cohasset residents now have two cable television providers to choose from.

Because of competition in the cable television, Comcast is no longer providing television studio access to residents. With financial support from the cable providers and their customers (through a monthly surcharge), Cohasset will set up its own studio and residents will be able to develop their own programming.

Right now, the Cable Advisory Committee is working with a consultant to develop a bid package for what is needed as far as technology and infrastructure. Cohasset architect Clark Brewer is designing the space for the studio, which will be located in the front corner of the Town Hall auditorium.

"Once the bid process is complete it should be relatively easy to get the studio up and running," Martin said. They are aiming for a February date to have local cable access fully back online. "I feel bad the access is black…people really look to it."

However, Martin said despite the hiatus from "Our Town" and other local cable channel favorites, she and others have been developing and filming new programs. "Nashville North presents: A Tribute to Taylor Swift" is one of the programs.

She and "Our Town" co-host Mark DeGiacomo have been filming a new series with the Historical Society called "Living Histories" featuring verbal oral histories from long-time residents.

With the new system, Selectmen and other town government meetings can be taped and shown multiple times. The first phase will deal primarily with updating the video equipment at the town hall and building the studio. The second phase will address the systems at the schools.

"We're anxious, but the wheels of government grind slow," Martin said.

senior class president.

At total of 53 students and 10 teachers volunteered to donate blood and many more volunteered to help run the drive, which took place on Tuesday in the high school gymnasium.

"For many students it is the first time they are donating blood," said Jeff Kotter, high school foreign language teacher and student council advisor.

Three girls had filled out their paperwork, had the iron in their blood checked, and were waiting patiently to be called to one of the cots in the center of the gym floor.

"We're a little nervous," said Olivia Murphy, a Cohasset High junior, who was joined by senior Hannah Burgess and junior Elise Quebec.

"My mom donates blood religiously, so I know it is a good thing. It's so easy to do and you know you are saving someone's life," Hannah said.

Several students volunteered to do the double red blood cell donation, which takes slightly longer than the regular blood donation. The needle has to stay in an arm for about 30 to 40 minutes.

Among them was senior class president MacCarthy who said he found out about the possibility of the double red blood cell donation at a Red Cross informational presentation to the student council.

"It has more benefits than the average blood donation," Sean said while the nurse finished up his donation.

One of the nurses commented that her favorite blood drive to do was at high schools, because she felt she was inducting new blood donors and often times getting them over their fear of needles.

The Red Cross aimed to collect at least 30 pints of blood from the Cohasset High community, but with over 60 scheduled appointments, they expected to well exceed that goal.

"We delighted Cohasset High partnered with us for this drive," said Diane Morrissey of the American Red Cross. While the Red Cross currently has a three or more day inventory of blood that inventory can dwindle rapidly with flu season and winter weather on the horizon, Morrissey said.

Massachusetts' lawmakers recently changed the law so 16-year-olds with parental consent could donate blood (the lower age limit was previously 17-years-old with parental consent). The change allows high school blood drives to be more successful because most juniors and seniors can participate.

"High school blood drives really create a situation where eligible donors can donate blood and hopefully remain committed donors as they continue into their adult years," Morrissey said. "The need for blood donations will always be there."

On any given day in the greater Boston area there are 10 or more blood drives. The blood collected by the Red Cross is sent to over 200 New England hospitals.

To find a blood drive, call 1-800-GIVE-LIFE or visit www.givelife.org.

Doug Armour, a Mobile Unit Assistant with the American Red Cross organization, packs a cooler full of donated blood by Cohasset High School students and teachers with ice.

Morgan McCarthy, treasurer of the sophomore Student Council and Elise Quebec, secretary for the junior Student Council, made sure everyone's paperwork was in order before they donated blood during the blood drive.

Middle School Engineering and Technology teacher Brad Mingels does his part in the Blood Drive by taking time out of his day to donate blood.

A Red Cross worker searches for veins and then marks where they are in the arm of Cohasset High School junior Ashley Howard before her blood is drawn.

Max Wellmann, 3, of Cohasset, tells Santa Claus what he wants for Christmas at Coldwell Banker on South Main Street during last year's Cohasset Holiday Stroll.

No place like home for holiday shopping

Stroll is Saturday on 3A and in the Village

By Linda Fechter
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

The annual Cohasset Holiday Stroll is tomorrow, Saturday, Dec. 12th. This town-wide celebration offers a great opportunity to do some holiday shopping locally while at the same time celebrating the season with family and friends. New for this year's Stroll is that the good cheer is spreading to Route 3A, as well as in the traditional downtown village location. Cohasset Chamber of Commerce Members and friends who are located along Route 3A will join in the celebration from 12 to 4 p.m. Participating businesses will be marked with balloons and wreaths.

"This stroll is an event that the merchants host for the town. It's our way of saying thank you for the support the community gives us throughout the year," says Darilynn Evans, Chamber of Commerce President and local business owner. "Our hope is to maintain this holiday tradition year after year in which all generations of Cohasset residents can come together and enjoy a sense of community and fun."

The celebration in the Village is from 4 to 7 p.m. Festivities will be kicked off with a carillon concert by Mary Kennedy and will include Open Houses, entertainment, ice sculptures, a visit from Santa and a holiday procession through downtown at 5 p.m. The procession will include costumed characters, sled dogs, a bagpipe player and some local school teams showing their holiday spirit. This holiday "parade" will end at the holiday tree in front of the hardware store, which was generously donated by Cohasset Village Greenery. The tree was put up by the Service Center and decorated by local merchants.

The Holiday Stroll welcomes the newest merchants including JJ's; Jailhouse Rocks, 5 South Main, Cohasset Confectionery, Jerry Herman Photography, Hoadley and Martinez, Santi Holistic Healing and the Windsor Tea Shop. The new businesses, along with the more seasoned ones, will all have something special going on for holiday strollers of all ages. Hot chocolate, popcorn, cookies and cider will help take the chill out of the December afternoon. Ports will have their traditional "live" models in the window, and new this year will be a Salvation Army Bell Ringer to fill the streets with that familiar sound of the season. The Red Lion will host a puppet show. There will be fun surprises every step of the way including a balloon man, face painting, letters to Santa and an opportunity to visit with Santa.

For those keeping banker's hours, be sure to visit Hingham Institution for Savings, which will have coffee and bagels to start the celebration early in the morning. Pilgrim Bank will be selling raffle tickets for the beautiful gift baskets that are on display in the downtown location. Even the Cohasset Recreation Department is showing their spirit this year with popcorn, hot chocolate, and a dance from 5 – 7 p.m. Each year the tradition grows bigger and this year's will surely be a holiday affair to remember.

So bundle up and be prepared to have fun while at the same time getting checking things off that holiday list by shopping at your local merchants. Everything you need for under the tree or next to the menorah is all within 02025.

Check out the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce website at www.cohassetchamber.org or look for the ad in this week's Mariner for specific details on this wonderful holiday tradition.

'A different sort of Christmas pageant'

First Parish to host Cappella Clausura and Creationdance

Cappella Clausura and Creationdance will present "Gloria! A Renaissance Christmas Pageant" at First Parish Cohasset on Sunday, Dec. 20 at 4 p.m. This concert will be in the Parish House, which is located at 23 North Main St.. Admission will be $15 for adults and $12 for seniors and children.

In a truly different sort of Christmas pageant, suited to the entire family, Cappella Clausura, Amelia LeClair, director, and Creationdance, Helena Froehlich, director, join together to create a magical foray into the variety of music written to celebrate the mother of God and the birth of her son.

For this very special concert of music and dance, Cappella Clausura has chosen works from its repertory of lush medieval, renaissance and baroque music by Hildegard von Bingen, Sulpitia Cesis, Raffaelia Aleotti, and Chiara Cozzolani, as well as the amazingly beautiful contemporary music of Patricia Van Ness inspired by ancient chant.

All this is topped off with some lively laude, or processional hymns, from 14th century Florence, which our audience is invited to sing and enjoy with us!

Froehlich and company provide spectacular choreography, stunningly beautiful costumes, and giant puppets to enchant and delight as Cappella Clausura sings the Christmas story all the way from Gabriel to the visit of the Magi.

Solar LED streetlight on display Saturday

COURTESY GRAPHIC

The solar LED street lights are self-contained and can provide illumination for up to ten days without sunlight.

During the Holiday Stroll in Cohasset Village this Saturday from 4 to 7 p.m., you will have a chance to see a solar LED streetlight.

The Cohasset Alternative Energy Committee has arranged the demonstration to give residents and merchants a chance to see whether they would like the town to seek a grant for installation of the solar LED lights. The fixture is 12 feet tall with two solar panel-banner arms. The solar LED streetlights are self-contained and can provide illumination for up to 10 days without sunlight. The LED source will last up to 15 years and will eliminate power cost to the town.

Representatives from SolarOne, the solar panel manufacturer, and Hurry Associates, the vendor for the streetlight, will be on site from 4 to 7 p.m. to answer questions about the fixture. Stop by to learn more and weigh in with your opinion.

We'll make you smile.

Take a bow

The Student Council at Cohasset High School has quite literally stood up and been counted.

The student-governing group organized the first-ever blood drive at the school on Tuesday.

More than 50 students gave blood; faculty also took part.

We think "kids" today are by and large a great group. They are aware of the world around them and will inherit the challenges of "globalization" – whether those are climate issues, world hunger or economics – in a way previous generations could not have imagined.

The Student Council at CHS is thinking beyond the bounds of the high school. By hosting and participating in a blood drive – they have provided a life-saving gift to others. The organization and publicity for the drive also served to educate themselves and their fellow students about the importance of "giving the gift of life."

Student Councils and student government (class officers) provide leadership opportunities for our youth.

In this blood-drive effort, the Student Council showed its leadership potential. We also believe that many who participated will become lifelong blood donors, a special group. According to the American Red Cross, only three out of every 100 people in America donate blood and 5 million receive blood transfusions every year.

Here are the some reasons from the American Red Cross to give blood:

- You will walk a little taller afterwards — you will feel good about yourself.
- You will be helping to ensure that blood is there when you or someone close to you may need it. Most people don't think they'll ever need blood, but many do.
- It's something you can do on equal footing with the rich and famous — blood is something money can't buy. Only something one person can give to another.
- You will be someone's hero — you may give a newborn, a child, a mother or a father, a brother, or a sister another chance at life. In fact, you may help save up to three lives with just one donation.
- It's the right thing to do.

The Student Council says another blood drive at CHS will be scheduled in the spring.

We take our hats off to the students and faculty who took part in Tuesday's blood drive.

We thank them as so will countless people out there who will receive their special gift in their time of need.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thanksgiving dinner meant a lot

TO THE EDITOR:

Editor's note: a copy of this letter was provided to the Mariner..

Mr. Steve Cronin, Manager
Stop & Shop Supermarket
Dear Steve:

On behalf of the men and women of the Cohasset Police Department, and Chief Brian Noonan, I wanted to personally thank you and The Stop & Shop Corporation for your generous donation of a fully cooked turkey dinner for our police personnel that worked the Thanksgiving holiday.

As public safety professionals, we are use to working long hours, which always include nights, holidays, and weekends away from our friends and family. We find it comforting to know that people such as you appreciate the job that we do and the safety and service that we provide to our residents and merchants.

Again, thank you so much. It means a lot to us.

Lieutenant William P. Quigley
Patrol Division Commander
Cohasset Police Department

Police thanked for assistance

TO THE EDITOR:

In this holiday season, I would like to extend a long overdue "thank you" to the Cohasset Police for proactively working with a witness who saw a truck badly damage my car mirror while parked on the Cohasset Common on Sept. 15.

The police officer was able to radio the Hingham police who were able to pull over the truck heading north on Route 3A. With the truck driver's information, I was able to pursue an insurance claim through his insurance company.

Thanks to the quick thinking and initiative of the Cohasset Police, I saved $300 getting my mirror fixed.

Sand, salt available at DPW

The Cohasset D.P.W. reminds residents that a sand and salt mixture will be available in the upper corner of the town parking lot.

When snow is in the forecast, residents are asked to not park on streets plowed by the town to expedite snow removal. Vehicles that obstruct snow removal operations will be towed at the owner's expense. Residents and contractors are reminded not to move snow, ice or water onto roadways that may impede traffic.

The town is not responsible for damage to mailboxes, driveway aprons, walkways, stonewalls, grassed areas, shrubs, trees or fences that fall within the town layout.

More illnesses on 'presumptive list'

VETERANS
JOE MCELROY

During October, the Veterans' Administration added Parkinson's and ischemic heart diseases as well as B cell leukemia to a long list of presumptive diseases for those who served in Vietnam and along the DMZ in Korea for a brief specified period.

The aforementioned diseases join a long "presumptive list" to include: Chloracne, Non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, Soft tissue sarcoma, Hodgkin's disease, Porphyria cutanea tarda, Multiple myeloma, Respiratory cancers, Prostate cancer, Peripheral neuropathy, Diabetes mellitus (Type II Diabetes), and Chronic lymphocytic leukemia. Moreover, Agent Orange is recognized as the cause of Spin bifida in children of Vietnam veterans.

While Agent Orange is the single most infamous cause of "presumptive illnesses" there are diseases unique to other conflicts...

There are more than 18 other children's birth defects linked not to herbicide exposure but rather to service in Vietnam.

Earlier this year, Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerossis (ALS); or more commonly referred to as Lou Gehrig's disease, was recognized as presumptive for all periods of conflict.

While Agent Orange is the single most infamous cause of "presumptive illnesses" there are diseases unique to other conflicts (for example, the Gulf War has three "presumptive" conditions: fibromyalgia, chronic fatigue and irritable bowel syndrome.

Surviving spouses may be eligible for an entitlement called "Dependency and Indemnity Compensation (DIC) if the service member's death is attributable to "presumptive" diseases. It is suggested that a disability application be filed if you or children are afflicted with the aforementioned.

For more information and help, call Joe McElroy, Cohasset Director of Veterans' Services at 781-383-0505 or cohjoe@aol.com

Paving takes a long winter break

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

It's All Over for Now! – This past week was the paving finale for 2009. As the weather gets colder, the cost of asphalt literally "goes through the roof" and the final paving product is just not as good as when paving is done during warmer weather. A week ago today, we started the last group of paving by starting on Whitehead Road. Monday and Tuesday of this week we finished all of the other roads on the ocean-side of Atlantic Avenue up to and including Hobart Lane, which is the last road before Cunningham Bridge. The roads on the other side of Atlantic Avenue will have to wait until 2010 before we can attack them.

Paving our narrow roads like Hobart Lane or Whitehead Road is logistically difficult. The contractor must move his paving machine to the far end of the road and start paving from the dead end. The trucks bringing asphalt to the paving machine must back all the way down the narrow road so they can dump their hot asphalt into the mouth of the paving machine. Imagine backing a semi trailer the full 2000 feet length of Whitehead Road, over hills and around corners to the end of the road. To put this into perspective, have you ever tried to back a boat trailer into your driveway? We can assure you, it's not that easy. Well, a large semi-trailer is even harder!

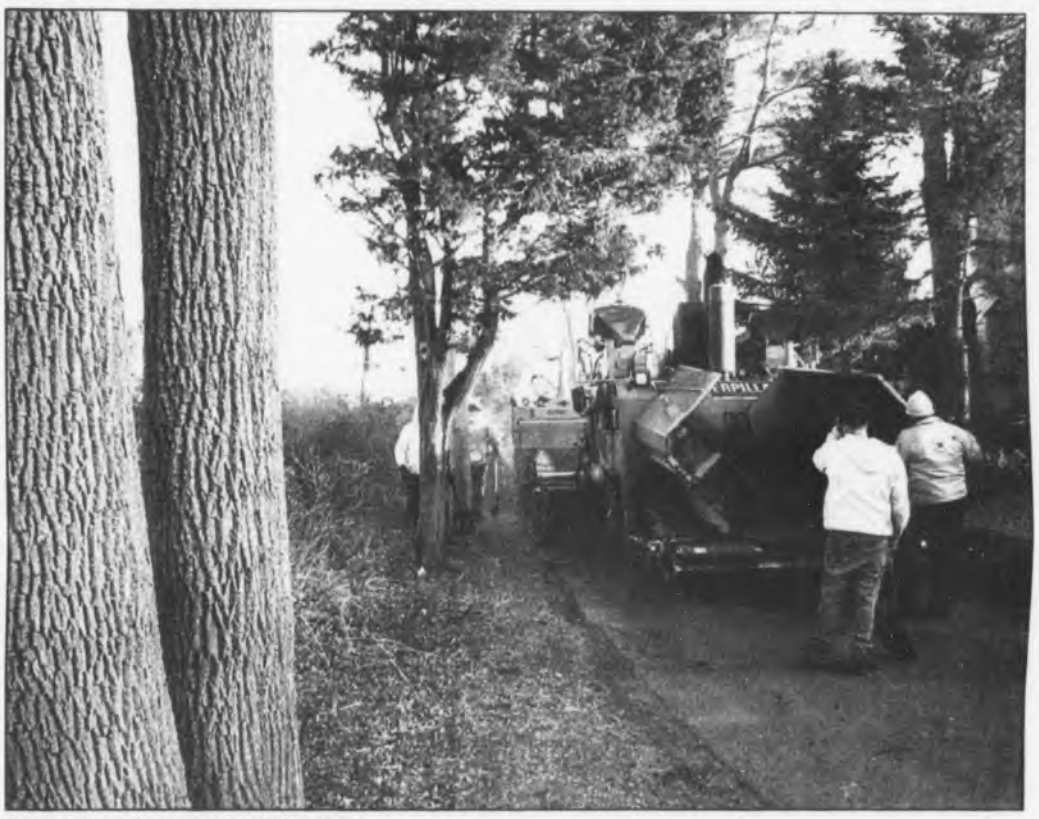
As a result of the narrow road width, paving these roads is a one-truck-at-a-time operation. Very often there is quite a period of dead time while one empty truck pulls out and the next full truck backs into position. So, the paving on smaller roads generally goes much slower that it does on roadways with relatively easy access.

Next year will continue to be busy for us since there is still a lot of paving for the Little Harbor Project to be completed. The main roads of Jerusalem, Atlantic Avenue and Beach Street will be resurfaced in 2010. In order to do a good job on these roads, we will need to do more than just overcoat the paving that is there. More than likely, we will cold plane the roads, which grinds off an amount of the surface asphalt equal to the depth of new asphalt to be added back when we pave. There is an outside chance we could reclaim portions of these roads. The decision concerning the surface preparation method will depend to some extent on the settling that takes place as these roads over winter. When we reclaim the roads there is a much greater chance of damaging the underground infrastructure. Remember, reclaiming grinds all of the asphalt and usually six to eight inches of the road's base material below the asphalt into a homogenous mixture. The pulverized material is then graded to reestablish the road contours and any excess material is removed.

When we reclaimed the area around the Common we ended up damaging 24 below ground structures that had to be totally excavated and replaced. This type of grinding is not a selective process. Anything in the way of the grinding teeth just gets ground up, period! Replacing the damaged structures was time consuming and expensive. In general, reclamation does let us build a superior road surface, but we need to weigh its cost against the benefits. We are not so sure that the benefits really outweigh the expense. If the road is on a stable base and the areas disturbed by construction have settled adequately, cold planing will be as effective, but at lower cost. Of course, as the main roads are being resurfaced the side roads will be addressed, as well.

We know the roads are not in perfect condition going into the winter. Consequently, there are remedial tasks that will be done to attempt to make the most egregious areas passable for the winter. Maintenance will also be required during the winter to attempt to keep the roads as passable as possible. Clearly, they won't be really good until they are resurfaced next year. Please drive slowly, and watch for pedestrians as you drive through the less smooth areas.

So Here's What's Next – We mentioned last week, that we will be reducing our hours during the winter months. Next week will be the last article in this series until activities pick up in the late winter. There is just not as much activity for us during the winter months. So, what will be happening during this "quiet" time? We will be overseeing the design being done by outside engineers on the project to replace the tide gates at the harbor with a single free-flowing gate. In addition, this project will replace the crumbling channel adjacent to the Legion Hall with a precast concrete structure. This project will improve the Town's ability to drain storm water from the Jacobs Meadow and will also enhance our ability to get salt water back into the meadow to enhance the native salt marsh.



We'll also be planning the paving for the coming year and planning for several other smaller projects around Town.

Giving the gift of music and the Arts

CONSERVATORY NOTES

KATHY CZERNY

With the holidays around the corner, kids and adults alike are making their lists and checking them twice. For many the lists are filled with toys and gadgets that will soon be outgrown or obsolete. But for some, the gifts they are longing for bring pleasure today and last a lifetime.

Music and the arts bring friends and families together – singing carols, attending concerts, playing Rock Hero – and the holiday just wouldn't be the same without them.

A toddler is delighted with a drum and tambourine on Christmas morning.

A gift in the arts has a long lasting effect, especially on children. Early exposure to the arts can foster a lifelong love for music, dance or drama, and forever open the door for another Beethoven or Bono, a Bernhardt or Barrymore, a Baryshnikov or Ballas who might reside in your home. At the very least it will enrich and support your child's innate creative spirit.

But the arts are not just for children. Music and the arts bring friends and families together – singing carols, attending concerts, playing Rock Hero – and the holiday just wouldn't be the same without them. Holiday music sets the stage for our memories and rings in the season.

The Conservatory has teachers and classes that can nurture and grow young talent, bring parents and kids together, include grandma and grandpa, or get you started on that guitar or keyboard you always wanted to play. For those who prefer to be audience members rather than participants, brilliant concerts are offered throughout the year with a variety of programming designed to engage everyone. For example, we are very excited that our friend Bill Harley will be joining us in February for an afternoon of fun. More on this at another time, though.

The Conservatory's gift certificate is a fabulous way to give a gift of the arts. These certificates may be used for lessons, classes, concerts, or our annual Chase Away the Winter Blues bash in late January, and you don't have to worry about sizes, colors or batteries. There's something here for everyone. When you give the gift of arts and music you are giving a gift for life.

For more information on Conservatory programs and concerts, please visit www.sscmusic.org.

Kathy Czerny has been the president of South Shore Conservatory since 2006. Before joining the Conservatory she shared her love for the arts with students of the Music School of the Rhode Island Philharmonic as their director for 10 years.

HEALTH NOTES

Town-wide seasonal flu clinic tomorrow

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Flu Clinic Tomorrow: We have enough seasonal flu vaccine to sponsor a town-wide "seasonal" flu clinic for all Cohasset residents. The clinic will take place on tomorrow, Saturday, Dec. 12, from 10 a.m. until noon at the Town Hall Auditorium located at 41 Highland Avenue.

Remember the drill:

- The flu clinic is open to all citizens of Cohasset over 9 years of age.
- Wear a short sleeve shirt.
- Seniors, bring Medicare part B and/or Senior Health insurance cards.
- If you have any questions, call Mary Goodwin RN at 781-383-2210.
- For more information call Tara Tradd 383-4116

Also, remember the simple steps of personal protection you can take: Wash your hands, cough into your elbow, stay home when you're sick.

The differences between Seasonal and H1N1:

- Seasonal flu and H1N1 are caused by different flu viruses.
- Seasonal flu occurs every year, most often during the winter and early spring.
- Because H1N1 is a new virus, our bodies have no resistance to it. Thus many people may become ill.
- Pandemic flu, like H1N1 flu, occurs once every 30 years or so.
- Seasonal flu most severely affects people 65 years and older.
- H1N1 is being seen more often in children and young adults between 5 and 24 years old.
- A vaccine is available every year to help prevent seasonal flu.
- A small amount of H1N1 vaccine is slowly beginning to be received by some doctors and clinics.
- You will be notified when Cohasset receives any vaccine.

Some people should not get a flu shot. Those sick with a fever at the time the shot is available, people with certain allergies and with certain medical conditions. Those who had Guillain-Barré syndrome within six weeks of a previous dose of flu vaccine should talk with their doctor before getting the flu shot.

Can pregnant women get flu vaccine during their pregnancy? Yes, it is safe to give seasonal and H1N1 vaccines to pregnant women anytime during pregnancy.

Flu vaccine doesn't work right away. It takes about two weeks after vaccination for antibodies to develop in the body and provide protection. In the meantime, you are still at risk for getting the flu. That's why it's better to get vaccinated early in the fall, before the flu season really gets under way. Results of testing the H1N1 vaccine suggest that the body develops a similar response to H1N1 vaccine in the same amount of time.

Other vaccines available: Pneumonia is a serious complication of the flu. The best way to prevent one common kind of pneumonia is to be vaccinated against it. The vaccine is called pneumococcal vaccine. People who should get this vaccine include:

- Children ages 2-24 months old
- Adults age 65 years and older
- People ages 2-64 years old who have serious health problems or weakened immune systems, or are smokers or have asthma

Talk with your doctor about whether you or your family members should get this vaccine.

Homework, pizza and fun!

Library's Tuesday night center is a success

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The high school tutors work on their own homework until someone asks them for help during the study session.

Third grader Michael Brash, front, starts reading "Jack Sparrow" while senior Matthew Beck helps another student with his homework.

Can homework and fun make sense in the same sentence?

Now in its second year, the homework center's concept is to provide a place where kids can get their homework done, get help (if needed) from National Honor Society high school students, socialize with their friends – and eat a slice of pizza.

"We get the help we need and I'm able to have fun doing my work," said eighth-grader Brodie Jackisch, a regular attendee of the homework center. "The high school kids have had the experience and can help us through our work."

At this past Tuesday night's Homework Center about 25 students in elementary and middle school came out to get some help on schoolwork, visit with their friends, and eat pizza. The kids trickle in around 5:30p.m. and take up seats with their friends, then crack open their binders and textbooks and get to work.

Some have already started their homework, while others come ready to tackle multiple subjects, The tutors, who also bring along their homework, sit among the students and are ready to help with a math problem or social studies question, if called upon.

The Homework Center, which has found a new home this year on the first floor of the Our World Global Discovery Children's Museum located in the rear portion of the library building, has one room devoted to the elementary students and one room devoted to the middle school students.

The program got its start last fall and is made possible by a grant from the Friends of the Cohasset Library. The grant pays for the weekly pizzas, which are purchased at a discounted price from Cohasset House of Pizza, and Middle School guidance counselor Kate Nelligan's time. She organizes and supervises the program, the National Honor Society tutors and the students.

The program got its start last fall and is made possible by a grant from the Friends of the Cohasset Library.

"Most of the kids leave with most, if not all, their homework done," Nelligan said. "It's been so successful. Parents are requesting we do more than one night."

Three seventh grade girls, Zoë Young, Christina Dow and Maddie Tesauro, worked at one of the tables.

"I'm able to get all my homework done, meet up with my friends and have pizza," Zoe said. The girls admitted the homework center gives them a chance to socialize and complete their assignments.

The middle school students said they receive between an hour and hour and a half of homework every night, so the 5:30 to 7p.m. homework center allows them to get in all done in a focused, if not noisy, setting.

Each student has his/her own system: Maddie Tesauro typically brings one subject to work on and once she's finished she spends time catching up with friends and drawing. Merideth Roche, a seventh grader, said she usually tries to do most of her homework after school, then comes to the homework center with questions to get some help.

"The high school kids are smart and they're really helpful, too," Merideth said. One of the advantages of having the program at the library is easy access to the library's resources – computers and books.

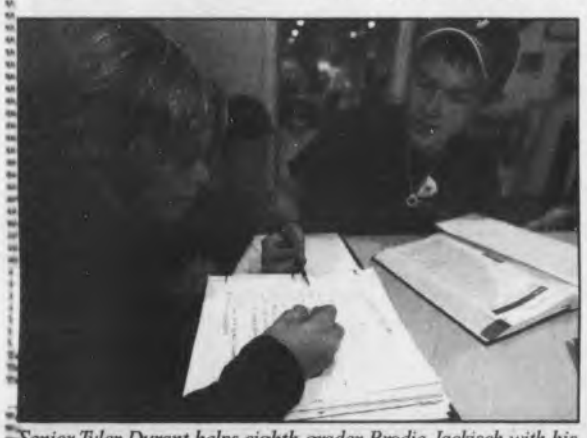
The National Honor Society members volunteer at the Homework Center as their schedule allows. A few are regular tutors, and usually there are about five or six high school students there to help the younger kids.

"It's fun to look back and see where we used to be," said Christine Coner, a Cohasset High senior and president of the National Honor Society. "It's a way to show you're grateful to those who helped you along the way."

Christine said there is often a give-and-take between the students and tutors, "sometimes they have a problem and it is taught a different way than when we learned it so they end up teaching us something."

Maddy Altholtz, a Cohasset High senior and National Honor Society member, is a regular tutor at the homework center. She gravitated toward the elementary school students on her first night and hasn't left since.

"It's really good – you get to know the kids. I have a lot of fun. I don't get a lot of (my own) homework done, but that's okay," Maddy said. She helps the younger kids finish their assignments and then they play games or chat until parents arrive. On Tuesday, one of the elementary students had brought a trivia book and was quizzing the high school students resulting in giggles from all parties.



"The kids really form a connection with tutors, which is great," Nelligan said.

The Homework Center is every Tuesday night from 5:30 to 7p.m. following the school calendar at the Our World Global Discovery Museum.

COULD THE TIMING BE BETTER?

Automobiles have either timing belts or timing chains that control the timing of the engine's valves. While timing chains are constructed of metal and can be expected to last for quite a long time, timing belts are constructed of rubber, which makes them more apt to break. Because a broken timing belt can result in catastrophic engine damage, timing belts must be replaced at recommended intervals, usually around 60,000 - 100,000 miles. If not, a broken belt in a so-called "interference" engine, in which the valves and piston share the same space, will result in bent valves and a costly fix. Even in a "non-interference" engine, a broken timing belt can leave the driver stranded in a non-operating vehicle.

Replacing a timing belt is cheap, especially when compared to replacing your entire engine. That's why you need to bring your car down for some regular maintenance at ATLANTIC TIRE & ALIGNMENT today. Our ASE-certified technicians will provide the regular maintenance that your car needs to stay in good condition. Plus, we can catch small problems, like a worn or fraying timing belt, before they become big problems, like a dead engine in the middle of holiday traffic. Call 781-925-3200 or visit our shop today at 25 Atlantic House Rd. If you've gotten in an accident, be sure to check out our sister store, Cohasset Collision Center, 179 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy., Cohasset, 781-383-3001.

HINT: Symptoms of a worn timing belt include excessive exhaust, a hard-to-start engine, and shaking (due to poor timing).

Highland Avenue with signs and friendly waves, there was no one out stumping for any of the candidates on Tuesday morning.

In Cohasset, more than two and a half times as many voters took democratic ballots than republican ballots Tuesday.

There are a total of 5,430 registered voters in Cohasset; of those 1220 are Democrats, 1189 are Republicans and seven are Libertarian. There are 3007 who are unenrolled in any political party. On Tuesday, 1196 people voted in the primary. Unenrolled voters can pull a Republican, Democrat or Libertarian ballot and it does not change his or her unenrolled status.

With the primary over, the candidates look ahead to the Tuesday, Jan. 19 general election where Coakley will face off with Brown for the U.S. Senate seat.

Coakley, a 56-year-old former Middlesex district attorney who lives in Medford with her husband, a retired police deputy superintendent, if she wins in January would become the state's first female senator and the second woman in the current congressional delegation.

Brown, 50, husband of a local newscaster and father of a former "American Idol" contestant, would become the state's only Republican elected to Washington or statewide office.

Kennedy's seat has been held since September by Gov. Deval Patrick appointee Paul Kirk.

Voter turnout for the primary was actually higher than expected on Tuesday.

Ivy loves her Hingham home

This week, Hull Seaside Animal Rescue wants to share news about Ivy, who was recently adopted. After only two hours or so of hiding when she first got to her new Hingham home, she made herself very comfortable. She explored the whole house from top to bottom, comes right away when called and is amazingly comfortable and content in everyone's laps.

"…. thank you so much, again, for taking such good care of her prior to her joining our family!"

Skipper head coach Pete Afanasiw calls in a play to his team during their playoff game against Holliston. Afanasiw was pleased with the way his team stepped up all season.

Great year makes coach proud

Gridders season special

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

For Cohasset football coach Pete Afanasiw, the recently finished football season was a special one.

Football

Yes, there was the disappointment of losing the final two games of the season, but there was more of a good feeling for everything the team accomplished.

Cohasset won the South Shore League, they won nine games and of course, made it to the playoffs, where they played a tough game against a much bigger Holliston school.

Ready to roll

WWASSERS@CNC.COM

Cohasset wrestling coach Torin Sweeney is hoping for a return to the glory days of the early and middle parts of the decade.

This would be a good time to do it.

Cohasset will host the Division 3 State Championship tournament this year in February.

The Skippers hosted in 2004 and had three champions that year.

Wrestling

Sweeney isn't expecting three champions this year, but he's hoping a tougher schedule and a group of dedicated and talented wrestlers will help the team improve on a 13-7 record from last year.

"We have 27 wrestlers this year," Sweeney said. "That includes 11 freshmen. Typically we don't have that many freshmen. I'm pleased with that."

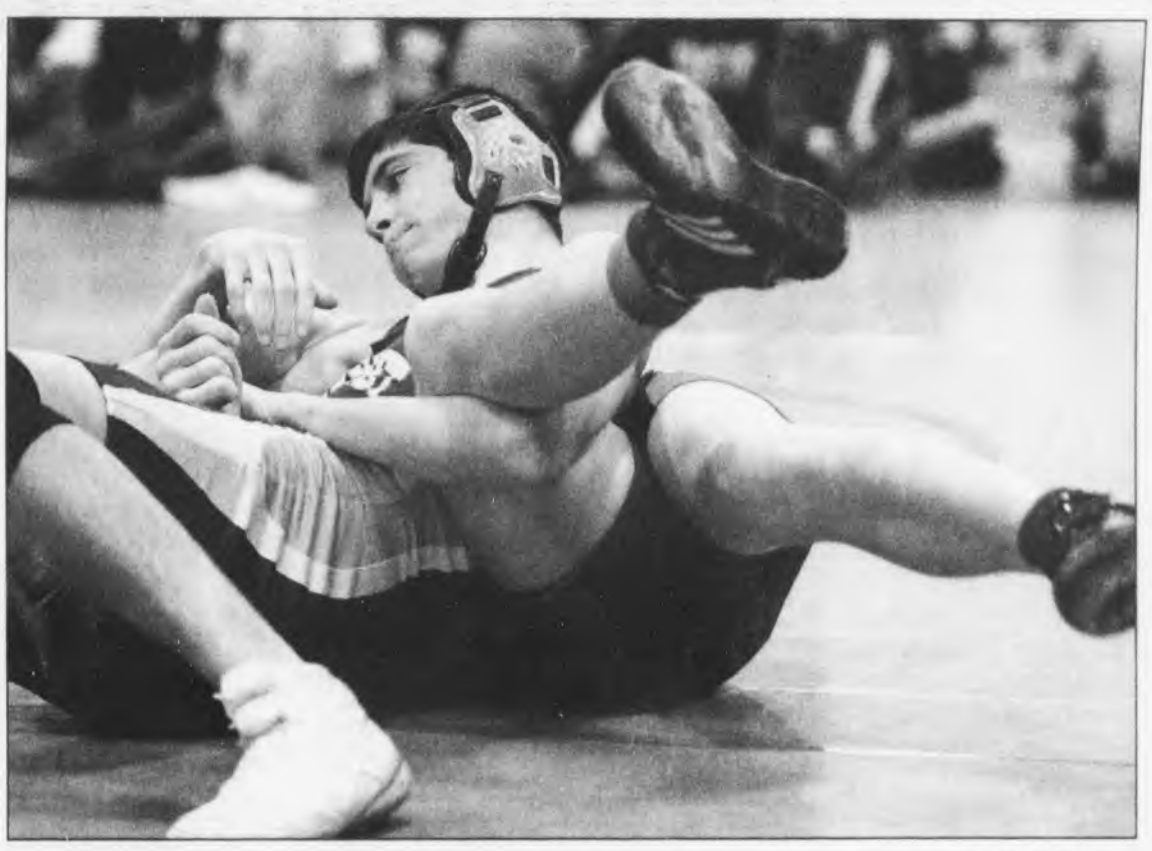
The team will be anchored by senior captains Andrew Littauer, Jack Murphy and Matt Dooley.

Having Littauer and Murphy provides a conundrum for Sweeney.

Both are naturally around the 152 weight area, so someone will have to move a class.

That might be easier if one of them were noticeably better, but both are excellent.

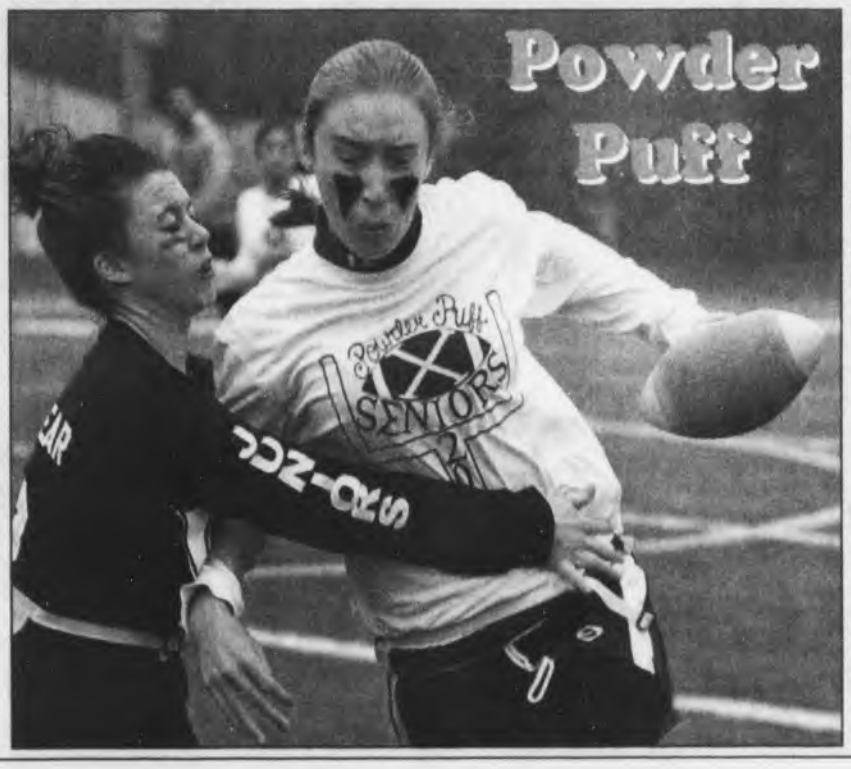
Both finished third in the Div. 3 South Sectionals last year.



"Jack was third at sectionals last year and he was sectional champ two years ago," Sweeney said. "Andrew is a four-year starter and he was third in sectionals last year. He'll probably start at 152. He's looking very tough in practice. Jack is his workout partner. He'll be between 145 and 152. We'll have to see which one of them works best in each class. They're almost too close. One of them will be working a little harder."

Dooley, meanwhile is a two-year starter who will be starting his third season.

He'll be at 119.



"He's worked hard in the off-

South Coastal Men's Hockey League roundup

By Mark Ducharme
CORRESPONDENT

The race for the four playoff spots in the three divisions is getting tighter in the South Coastal Men's Hockey League.

In the Classics Div., the Bruins got goals from Dan Sloan of Abington and Tom MacInnes as they held on for a 2-1 win over the Maple Leafs to take over fourth-place. Jeff Gauthier scored for the Leafs.

The Roadrunners, who were tied with the Vipers took over fourth-place in the Masters Div. as Bob Ward scored two goals to lead them past the Wolves, 5-2, while the Vipers lost to the Aeros, 3-2.

The Vipers and Aeros, who split their season series meet this Sunday to decide their playoff position Marshfield's Brian Kennedy, David DiLoreto and Ken Sweezey scored the other goals for the Roadrunners, while Keith Smith of Marshfield and Ben Perrotta scored the Wolves goals.

Pembroke's Sean Taylor scored two goals and Joe MacLeod also of Pembroke added another in the Aeros, 3-2 win over the Vipers. Dan White and Peter Racicot scored the Vipers goals.

Mike Maguire of Hanover scored two goals, Tom Maguire had a goal and two assists and Ed McVeigh scored one goal in the Masters Div. leading Thunder to a 4-3 win over the Grizzlies.

Joe Bevilacqua of Abington scored two goals and Joe McCafferty scored the Grizzlies goals.

Mike Martin of Pembroke scored two goals, John Davey, Tom Lema of Marshfield and Kirk Souza added a goal each in the Canadiens Classic Div., 5-2 win over the Red Wings. Chuck Morrison of Marshfield and John Guilderson scored the goals for the Red Wings.

John Maguire of Norwell and Steve Concannon of Scituate both scored two goals each in the Whalers, 4-0 win over the Toros in a Legends Div. game.

Jay Kavanagh of Hanover broke a 2-2 tie with 4:52 left to give the Stingers a 3-2 come from behind Legends Div. win over the Saints.

Chuck Gosselin and Joe Murray of Norwell were the other goal scorers for the Stingers, who trailed the Saints, 2-1. Peter MacPherson of Hanover and Todd Roach scored the goals for the Saints.

Marshfield's Tim Cruz scored three goals to lead the Sharks to a 7-4 win over the Crusaders in the other Legends Div. game. Kevin MacAlesse, Richard Petrosino of Marshfield, Dana Dolabany of Norwell and Hanover's Mike Murphy were the other goals scorers for the Sharks.

Allen Costa and Ed Burke of Marshfield scored two goals each for the Crusaders.

"I'm very proud of the kids," Afanasiw said. "The season might not have ended the way we wanted, but really, the kids overachieved. It wasn't a given that we'd win the league. The kids had to fight every step of the way. Until Thanksgiving, they rose up and met every challenge. They did real well. Even the last two games, the other teams both played very well."

That said, Afanasiw said the playoff loss could have gone either way.

"On tape it wasn't as much they beat us as we beat ourselves," he said. "We had too many mistakes. A fumble, interception, penalties. Those add up."

The finish might be a motivator for next year's crew.

While some of the biggest names on the team will graduate, there is a group of younger players ready to step into the limelight.

The seniors did a great job carrying the game," Afanasiw said. "But there were a lot of kids who contributed. Some of them we didn't rely on as much, but they played important roles. Those kids are going to be primed to take leadership roles next year."

Afanasiw was talking about players like Robert Jones, Jack Carrier, Kyle Livingstone and Jake Kissick, all players who came up big this season, but maybe didn't get noticed as much because of guys like Dana Valentine and Brendan Doonan, who received the bulk of the attention this season.

"Some of those younger kids knew that they could make a mistake or two," Afanasiw said. "And they learned through that."

Valentine and Doonan will both graduate, along with linemen Danny Sullivan, Will Lynner and Thomas Barrett.

Valentine and his 1,500 yards and scoring will be hard to replace.

His numbers and leadership would be hard for any team to replace, but any number of players could step up.

On the line, Sam Leahy, Eric Wasel and Robbie Mahoney all return and should be able to fill the gaps.

Quarterback Jeff Cavanaro, who had a strong season, will return, and so will Thomas Flibotte.

Both players could be big keys to the offense next year.

Afanasiw said some of his players are already itching to get back.

"Unsolicited, a couple of kids told me they were exited to come back," he said. "They're already coming up with plays and suggesting things we should try next season."

Afanasiw said his upcoming seniors are already setting goals.

"This year we were 8-2, last year we were 7-4," he said. "The kids know it and want to do better than the class in front of them. They will do well. I'm not going to say we're able to reload like Abington can do, but I think we'll be very competitive. If we put them in the right spot for success."

There will be some changes next season in the league, as Rockland moves into the South Shore League from the Patriot League Fisher Division.

After next year, things could really change, as there is a proposal for a radical realignment on the table that would change the structure of the sport to match teams against schools with matching enrollments, making it more similar to playoff qualifying for other sports.

The idea is to get more teams into postseason play, and then match them with schools their own size in the playoffs.

More schools would qualify for playoffs and there is talk of an actual state championship as well.

Afanasiw hasn't made a decision on his feelings about that realignment yet.

"I just got an email about it a few hours ago," he said. "The MIAA will vote on it in the spring. I haven't really digested it, so I can't say anything yet."

He did say that most of the schools on the current schedule would be a division higher, some two up and others, like playoff opponent Holliston could be three division up based on enrollment.

"It would be a whole different world," Afanasiw said. "It would be tough to lose some close rivalries, but we'd be more fairly matched up. Every year our kids are playing above their level (enrollment wise). It's a great way to get them matured and get experience, but we can't always be overachieving like we have been. We wouldn't be expected to play schools two or three times our size. Still I'd need some time to weigh a judgement."

A special invitation for Lady Skipper hoop alums

This is your chance to shine if you played basketball for the Cohasset High School girls basketball team between 1945-2009. If those hoop skills are still there, we want you to play but if they have disappeared we still want you to come and be acknowledged for your role on this long basketball road, as well as, to support the other alumni on December 23 at 5:30pm in the Cohasset High School gym.

After this game between the current team and the alumnni, there will be an excellent opportunity to meet and greet some old friends, and to mingle and network and provide valuable advice to our current young players.

Please bring your spouses, young or old children or friends as your personal cheerleaders. It should be a fun filled night of basketball, music and holiday chatter.

Admission is free so come one and come all.

Save the date, December 23 in the Cohasset High School gym at 5:30. For further information call John or Mary Levangie at 781-545-0383 or just show up.

season," Sweeney said. "We'll look for big things from him."

As an experienced wrestler in one of the lighter classes, Dooley should have a bit of experience on many of his opponents, who are generally younger in that class.

Senior Cam Washak will be another wrestler with high expectations.

Washak will be grappling at 215.

"He's a nose guard on the football team," Sweeney said of Washak. "He did a lot of weight training in the off season. He jumped right in after the football season."

Another senior is Chase Stebbins, who will be at 130.

"This is only his second year," Sweeney said of Stebbins, who played golf for him as well. "He's intense and works hard. We'll see what we get from him. He's willing to work and willing to learn."

Another football player is Alex Kinnealey.

Kinnealey will wrestle at 205.

"He's another defensive tackle," Sweeney said. "He's real strong. He and Washak work together. The two of them will move around as needed. A.K. is at about 205 naturally and Washak is 225. That's their wrestling weight. Wrestling weight is totally different from football."

Sweeney said wrestling does help football.

"In the Midwest, Ohio, Pennsylvania and that area, football players who don't play basketball automatically wrestle. It's automatic. The skills from wrestling transfer, especially for linemen. In New England it's more of a basketball area. We don't have the same intensity for wrestling here as basketball."

Another football player is Thomas Flibotte at 171.

"Thomas was fifth in the sectionals last year," Sweeney said. "He's worked real hard in the off season.We should get some good matches out of him."

Sophomore Gus Helbech is also expected to have a good year.

"Gus was fifth at sectionals last year," Sweeney said. "He was at 103 last year. He'll be at 112 this year."

Sweeney said he has a good feeling about this squad.

"I have a good feeling," he said. "A lot will be how we spread out in weight. I'm not a proponent of cutting weight. Usually things settle out in workouts. You can get an idea of kids' good wrestling weight. The difference we have this year is that we've upgraded the schedule this year. I thought we'd be a little stronger so we dropped a few weaker teams and added some stronger teams."

Cohasset opens on Saturday with Foxboro, Plymouth and Pembroke at Pembroke.

All of them are tough.

"We jump right into the frying pan," Sweeney said. "We'll see what we can do. We're hoping to get back to where we were in 2002-2003."

Home Instead SENIOR CARE

by Alan Carney, Director & Jennifer Moran, CSA, Community Liaison

CARE HERE AND THERE

It is not unusual for families and friends to be separated geographically. Adult children move for various reasons such as job opportunities. Parents may retire to other, warmer communities. If the day comes when those loved ones who are at a distance require caregiving, there are home health service providers who offer a network that provides national assistance. Should the senior move seasonally, a seamless caregiving program is planned to meet his or her special needs and requirements. Many options for services include assistance with bathing and showering, preparation of meals, light housekeeping, medication reminders, and assistance in going to appointments and attending outside events. Distance from family need not eliminate the option of a loved one remaining at home.

If you live far away, it can be nerve-wracking to worry about your loved one's health and well-being. Let us help. We provide companions who can help with many of the day-to-day tasks, such as cooking, bathing, cleaning, transportation, and errands, as well as make sure that your loved one is happy and healthy. Call 781-878-2994 today to learn about our wide variety of services, including a flexible schedule of care, from occasional respite to 24-hour care. We are located at 145 Washington Street, Suite 11. Students, faculty line up to give blood

SEAN MACCARTHY

Hey yo! Twas' a top notch week at Cohasset High School, with the exception of the Wednesday morning where we all had to clear off our cars of slush. It's time to get those winter jackets, gloves, and ski caps out because it is getting chilly fast. My friends and I have a bet on when it will the first snowplows will be used. I bet Dec. 14th and I hope I am wrong.. Give me my 70-degree weather back!

Monday capped off this busy, busy week. The day was average with nothing special going on, but the night was different. The one-act play auditions were held in the CHS Auditorium. — ATTENTION! We interrupt this weekly recap with a rant from the writer: The auditorium is legitimately freezing. I could honestly see my breath on stage. How come the school can't just have every part of the building heated throughout the day? It's annoying how the heat is turned on in some rooms but is off in others. The school's heating really grinds my gears. Now back to your beloved recap: There was a good turn out of hopeful actors and actresses. All were attempting to obtain a roll in this year's one-act play, Check, Please. It's a great play with lots of humor so it will be very enjoyable for all of YOU to watch when we are done producing it. I bet you are looking forward to it already.

Tuesday was also an incredible day. Why? Because Tuesday was the first-ever Cohasset High School Blood Drive brought to you by the Student Council and the Red Cross. It was like that really annoying song, "Sunday, Bloody Sunday" by that extremely overrated band, U2, except it was a bloody Tuesday and there wasn't repetitive high pitch screeching from Bono. I didn't even need to put that in there. I just don't like U2 (Sorry Bibbs). Anyways, back to important matters, many students and teachers at CHS over the age of 16 and over 110 pounds donated blood. Some of the people that signed up ahead of time were turned away because they had recently been to the southern hemisphere or had been recently sick. It's okay though because those bad blooded people (the people that would be muggles in Harry Potter) didn't have good blood anyway! Instead, others stepped up to the plate the day of the blood drive and decided to donate. I'm not entirely sure on how much blood was donated, but all I know is that enough was donated so that we will be having another blood drive in the spring! Hooray for saving lives! Batman didn't even save as many lives as us. What now Christian Bale? What now?!?

Wednesday was that crappy day with all the slush in the morning. My jeans got really wet when I was cleaning off my car that morning. A huge glop (if that is even a word) of slush splooshed (if that is even a word) right onto my left leg. That resulted in me punching the hood of my car…hard. Just thought I would share that with you.

Thursday: I am going to use my skip card on this one. This takes us to Friday. Friday is the day of the Cohasset Music Day Tour. The band and the chorus will be traveling to different locations, like Linden Ponds, the Deer Hill Elementary School, and the Osgood Elementary School. Mr. Marks is the outstanding director of the Chorus and Mrs. Moriarty is the exceptional director of the band. These two will lead their students in bring cheer to others through music. Good music at that. Good music performed really well. The band and the chorus will also be recording their songs to be put on a record. The Cohasset High School Chorus and Band recently signed a recording contract with the #1 record label in the country, Warner Music Group. On Friday morning, both the chorus and the band will be flown into the Warner Music Group headquarters and hit up the recording studio to make a record set for a release in late 2010. If you actually believed that, it says gullible under your seat. In all seriousness, the chorus and the band will be recording some CDs of their Christmas music and will sell these CDs to fundraise for the trip to Philadelphia in the spring. Buy! Buy! Buy!

I'd say I am done with this article. Hope you all enjoyed it. Bundle up because it is getting freezing out there. Oh and drive safely. Let's not get in a car accident this winter. By the way, quote of the week is definitely, "That is the sexiest sack of blood that I have ever seen at a blood drive."

Sean MacCarthy saw 2 pints of blood leave his body and 1 pint enter back into his body. That was weird.

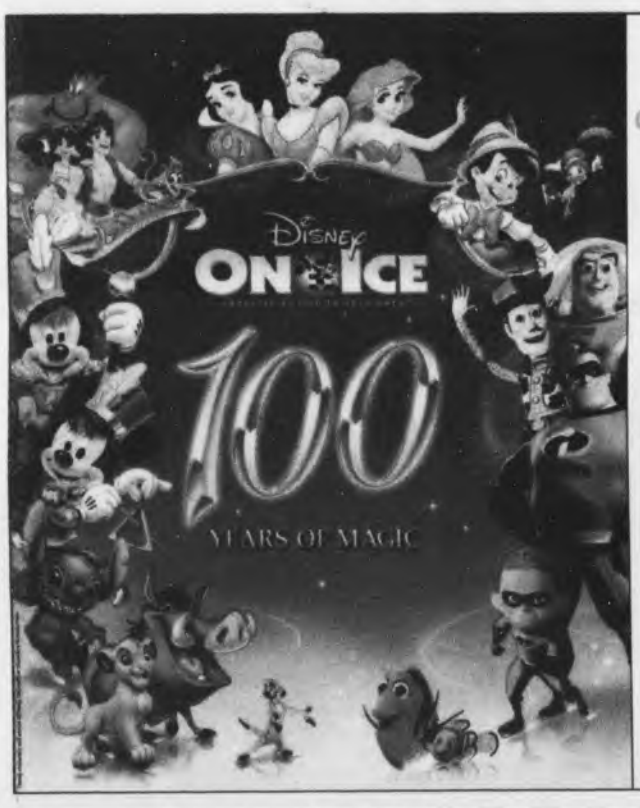
Partnering to support South Shore families in need

Through a series of promotions and incentives, the Norwell Coastal Nissan dealership has teamed up with Hull's Wellspring Multi-Service Center to assist South Shore families in need. Tom Norton of Coastal Nissan and New England Patriots running back Kevin Faulk, who played a key role in these efforts, delivered $2,200 to Wellspring today at a check presentation. Combined with the 2008 initiative, Coastal Nissan has donated $6,000 to support the local community through Wellspring programs.

This year during the month of November, Coastal Nissan pledged $100 for each catch and first down made by Kevin Faulk; he made 12 catches and 10 first downs last month, generating the dealership's donation. "This promotion provides extra motivation for me in November. Wellspring is a great organization that helps out people in tough situations. It feels good to do my best and benefit others, too," said Mr. Faulk.

Coastal Nissan also sponsored a collection drive for food and personal care donations, offering participating customers a discount on vehicle services at both locations (Norwell and Cohasset) in exchange for donations of cash or food to Wellspring.



"Over the past nine years, we've grown our business by being good community citizens and treating our customers well," says Mr. Tom Norton, co-owner of Coastal Nissan and a Cohasset resident. "We're thrilled to give back to the community, and hope our efforts will help people during these challenging times."

Mr. Vinny Harte, executive director of Wellspring, says the partnership with Coastal Nissan has provided immediate relief for local families. "Wellspring is so grateful to Coastal Nissan their ongoing support during these difficult times," says Mr. Harte. "Their generosity helps us to fulfill our mission of helping people become more independent, productive members of the community." He also noted that the partnership has served as a great opportunity to educate the public about Wellspring, and its year-round efforts to assist struggling families.

Mr. Richard Walker, also a Coastal Nissan co-owner and Hingham resident, says the dealership is committed to serving the community beyond its core business. "We look forward to our ongoing partnership with Wellspring, and hope to continue finding new, creative ways to positively impact the South Shore," says Mr. Walker.

In addition to its partnership with Wellspring, Coastal Nissan has sponsored an "Athlete of the Month" program since 2007, which honors a local high school athlete each month with a $500 donation to the school's athletic fund.

Coastal Nissan's dealership is located at 109 Accord Park Drive, Norwell and the Cohasset Auto Center is at 742 CJC Highway in Cohasset. For more information about its community outreach programs, visit www.coastalnissan.com. SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF DEC. 21, 2009

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your love of the holidays creates a special bond between you and the people in your life. Use this as a way of building stronger relationships that will carry over well beyond this time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A new approach could go a long way toward resolving a painful estrangement, especially at this holiday time. And since your aspects favor friendship this week, why not go ahead and try it?

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your positives continue to dominate, and any negative factors that squeeze in can be dealt with easily. The secret is to tackle them at once and not allow them to benefit by your neglect.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Good news: A colleague's remarks could help you move toward ultimately resolving that persistent workplace situation. Meanwhile, enjoy the holidays with loved ones.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) No one reflects the bright holiday more than all you Leos and Leonas who love the shimmer and glimmer of the season. P.S.: There just might be a very special something from Santa.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Celebrate the holidays by being more receptive to new experiences. Overriding the Virgo reluctance to try new things could be the best gift you've given yourself in a while.

LIBRA (Septeber 23 to October 22) Good news about a loved one makes the holidays even more festive. Expect some unexpected gifts, so be prepared with a few nicely wrapped packages of goodies to offer in return.

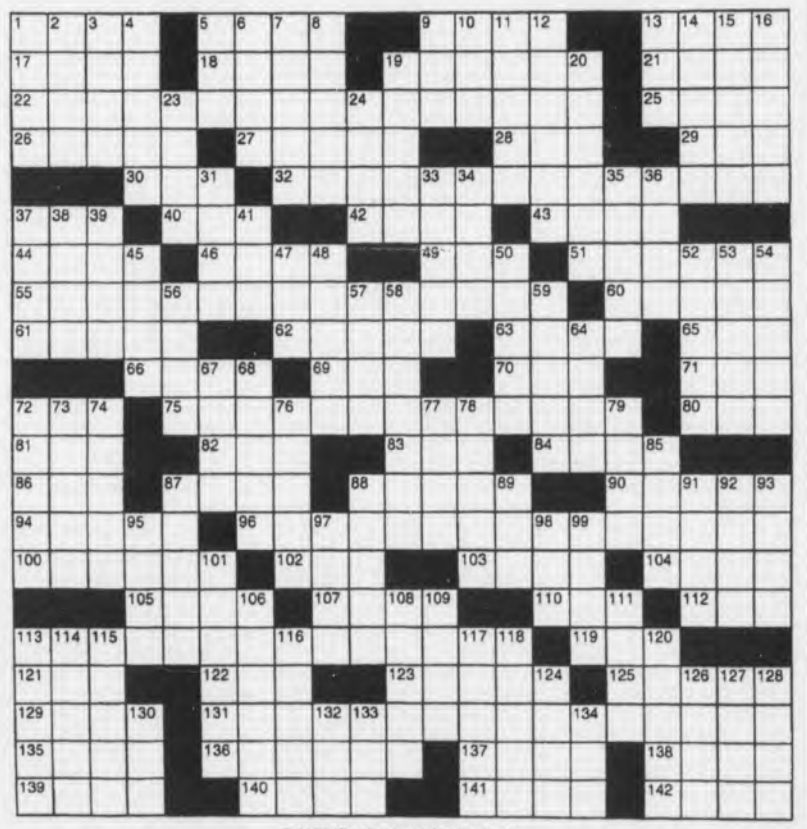
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The holiday season provides an opportunity to meet new people, some of whom you might even consider "worthy" enough to join the Scorpio's select group of friends.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You always bring your own wonderful sparkle and light to the holidays, and don't be surprised if this year someone special reaches out to respond to your warmth in kind.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Togetherness is the dominant theme for the Goat's holiday celebrations this year. That means reaching out to bring everyone you care for into your very own special circle of light.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A reminder of a very special moment from the past makes the holidays more memorable for the romantic Aquarian. New friendships hold the promise of a romantic future as well.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Getting into the swim of things for all you party-loving Pisceans is easy enough this holiday season. And, of course, you can expect to impress people wherever you go.



(c) 2009 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your dedication brings you the success you strive for, and your generosity impels you to reach out and help others on their way up.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Church youth group gets education on homelessness

On a recent Sunday, residents and staff from Father Bill's Mainspring Homeless Shelter visited the Youth Group and Church School of Second Congregational Church for an interactive panel discussion. Tom Washington, Director of Community Relations for Father Bill's Mainspring, facilitated the discussion, which included questions from the children and responses from the panel of homeless young adults on how one becomes homeless, what it's like to live in a shelter, and what steps are necessary to secure post-shelter housing. At the end of the program, the children presented the residents with over 100 toiletry and clothing items they had collected for the shelter as part of their outreach drive.

Father Bills MainSpring in Quincy and Brockton for over 25 years provides shelter for 82 families a night, and their mission is to help people obtain a home by giving temporary shelter and food, finding safe and affordable housing, and providing permanent housing with supportive services. Through the years they have earned national recognition for their "housing first" conversional strategies of getting the people they serve many of whom are women, veterans, or disabled into permanent housing quickly. With support from local businesses, individuals, community providers, and the public sector, they deliver a range of programs focused on prevention, emergency shelter, housing, and work force development.

Hey there, Merry-Makers! Once again, First Parish is sponsoring a Holiday treat for young & old: the well-loved Cohasset tradition — Caroling on the Common — on Saturday, Dec. 19th.

Everyone is welcome! This is a community event for young and old, especially those with school-age children. Bring some friends! Exceptional singing voices are NOT required; carols will be familiar and simple — there will be songbooks for everyone. Because it gets dark quickly, you are asked to bring flashlights.

Participants will gather at the Parish House (23 North Main St.) between 3:45-4 p.m., for cookies and cider. Carolers will then leave to do their singing near the duck pond. At approximately 4:45, everyone will return to the Parish House for hot cocoa, cider and cookies (cookie donations will be much appreciated).

Everyone is asked to bring a pair of white cotton socks (or two or three), which will be donated to Boston Health Care for the Homeless; both men's and women's sizes are welcome.

Come join your friends for an old-fashioned holiday get-together, and pass the word! The more the merrier! For further information contact Sandy Bailey at the church office (383-1100) or Woody Chittick (383-3215).

Young dancer's dream comes true

Misa Kuranaga performs in Boston Ballet's "The Nutcracker."

Like many 12-year-old girls who take dance lessons after school, Alexandra Storch says she has dreamed about performing the part of Clara in "The Nutcracker" for as long as she can remember. The seventh-grader at Central Middle School in Quincy gets just that chance this holiday season in Boston Ballet's classic production of Tchaichovsky's fairy-tale ballet now at the Boston Opera House.

"It has been in my head since I was a little girl that I wanted to dance the role of Clara," explained Alexandra by telephone this past weekend from her home in Quincy. "I didn't think I had any chance, though, because when I first auditioned in October it was only to be one of the party girls."

Alexandra is one of four young dancers sharing the role of Clara. Storch has studied dance since pre-school, but has only focused exclusively on ballet since September. She first studied with Boston Ballet from the ages of six to seven, before spending five years studying both ballet and modern dance at The Gold School in Brockton. This fall, Alexandra joined Boston Ballet School's Norwell Studio. She is one of more than 30 young dancers from the South Shore appearing in this year's production, once again choreographed by Boston Ballet Artistic Director Mikko Nissinen.

Seventh grader, Alexandra Storch, dances the role of Clara in Boston Ballet's classic production of 'The Nutcracker."

Adapted from the E.T.A. Hoffmann story, "The Nutcracker and the Mouse King," the ballet follows young Clara on a magical journey during which she receives a nutcracker as a Christmas Eve gift. Her nutcracker is ultimately transformed into a handsome young prince, who leads her through an enchanted forest and on to the Palace of Sweets, where she meets the Sugar Plum Fairy. Among the ballet's most famous and memorable moments are a battle between toy soldiers and overgrown mice, a Christmas tree that grows to huge heights, the pas de deux of the Sugar Plum Fairy and her Cavalier, and a shimmering snow scene. Joining Alexandra on-stage is Boston Ballet soloist and Braintree resident Sabi Varga as Clara's gift-giving godfather, Drosselmeier

"To play Clara, you have to be able to express all kinds of different emotions that she experiences on her journey," says Alexandra, who acknowledges some nervousness about playing such a big role in such a well-known production. "I was just so excited when I found out that I would be dancing Clara. I was really nervous at the audition. I also felt some pressure at my first performance on Nov. 29, but I am still very excited to be dancing this role."

The daughter of Linda and Christian Storch, and sister to 10-year-old Max, Alexandra is the first dancer in her family. She hopes one day to study dance at The Juilliard School in New York and then pursue a career in dance. For now, she also enjoys math, geography, and traveling, including regular trips to visit family in Viersen, Germany.

Alexandra's travel will be restricted to the South Shore and Boston for the next several weeks. With school, dance classes four days a week in Norwell, additional rehearsals and performances, she won't have much free time.

"It's a challenge balancing homework and dance lessons, but I read in the car so that helps. And it's fun, too, when we carpool with some of my friends from the Norwell Studio."

The other young performers from the South Shore featured in the current Boston Ballet production of "The Nutcracker" include Kiley Crough, Kaitlyn Patterson, Diana Sturdy, and Mary Vainisi, all of Cohasset; Emily Carrick, Caroline Kelleher, Caroline Kenneally, Anne Lipsett, Jacqueline Messina, Hannah Pedone, Amelia Pedone, and Eduardo Varas, of Hingham; Lauren Herfindahl from Kingston; Kira Mohr and Rachel Navarrette from Marshfield; Julia Mastandrea, Ciara Young, and Hannah Green, of Milton; Juliet Brown, Eaveryll Henriquez, Abigail Howland, and Dallis Kehoe, from Norwell; Olivia Cadieux, Harper Edwards, and Allison Palmer, from Plymouth; Mica Curtin-Bowen, Isabella DeAmicis, Victoria DeAmicis, Bridget Durgin, Selena Natale, and Marcella Natale, of Quincy; and Angela Bishop, Rose Riley, Rheya Shano, and Nadine Smith, of Weymouth.

Alexandra Storch will dance the role of Clara on Dec. 13, at 5:30 p.m.; Dec. 17, at 7:30 p.m.; Dec. 23, at 7:30 p.m., and Dec. 26 at 1 p.m. Boston Ballet's "The Nutcracker" will be at the Opera House, 539 Washington St., Boston, through Dec. 27. For tickets and information, call the Boston Ballet Box Office at 617-695-6955 or go online at bostonballet.org.

SCITUATE HARBOR OPEN EVENINGS & SUNDAYS 781-545-9800

GNC SUPER TEAM

Cross-Country

NAME: Shannon Ferguson
SCHOOL: Norwell
GRADE: Senior
STATS: If you ran in the South Shore League this fall, you didn't want to run against Ferguson, who won all the meets she competed in for the Clippers. She set course records left and right and then went on to take fourth place at the Eastern Mass., Division 4 Championships and finish 41st at the All-State Championships.

NAME: Jonathan McKinley
SCHOOL: Duxbury
GRADE: Junior
STATS: The Patriot League knew all about Jonathan McKinley coming into the season. The opposing teams knew they had little chance against the Duxbury junior. A consistent leader of the pack during the season, McKinley went on to the individual meets and finished 18th in the Eastern Mass., Division 3 Championships with a time of 17:33 and 31st at All-States.

NAME: Paul Cina
SCHOOL: Pembroke
GRADE: Senior
STATS: When you see Paul Cina running, chances are you're looking at the back of him. Always in the top three for the Titans, the team's number one runner finished second in the Division 3 Eastern Mass., Championships with a time of 16:40 and then third (16:28) at the All-State Championships, helping the Titans win their first-ever All-State title.

NAME: Katie Sheehan
SCHOOL: Scituate
GRADE: Sophomore
STATS: Sheehan was regularly Scituate's first across the finish line, and she just missed making the All-State Meet with a 29th place finish at the Div. 3 meet, just nine seconds from qualifying for the All-State meet.

NAME: Molly Barker
SCHOOL: Weymouth
GRADE: Freshman
STATS: She just began running in August and is quickly passing everybody on the road. Barker surprised everyone at the Div. 1 championships at Franklin Park, qualifying for the All-State Meet at Northfield, then she went on to finish 52nd. Not bad for a ninth-grader.

NAME: Peter Bailey
SCHOOL: Norwell
GRADE: Senior
STATS: Facts are facts. When Bailey runs, he doesn't lose. Posting win after win after win this season for Norwell during the meet portion of the season, Bailey bettered his times as the season went on. A South Shore League all-star, Bailey finished 22nd at the Division 4 Eastern Mass., Cross Country Championships, capping off a phenomenal running career at Norwell High.

NAME: Bridget Jaklitsch
SCHOOL: Weymouth
GRADE: Sophomore
STATS: Had a starry year, highlighted by a 21st at the Div. 1 championships at a soggy Franklin Park in November. Highlight of the second was running a 17.49 to finish first against Wellesley and clinch Weymouth its first Bay State title.

NAME: Joel Hubbard
SCHOOL: Marshfield
GRADE: Sophomore
STATS: Instrumental in helping the Rams secure the Atlantic Coast League title this fall, Hubbard was one of the league's most consistent runners. His endurance carried him all the way to the All-State Championships, where he finished 26th overall with a time of 17:10. A week prior, Hubbard came in seventh overall at the Division 2 Eastern Mass., Cross Country Championships with a time of 16:47.

NAME: Heather Connick
SCHOOL: Pembroke
GRADE: Junior
STATS: Connick suffered a stress fracture at the beginning of the season. That setback forced her to sit out nearly the entire season. However, when Connick returned, she made an epic impact. She finished third overall (20:03) at the Patriot League Championships, eighth overall at the Division 3 Eastern Mass., Divisional Cross Country Championships (20:15), and 20th at the All-State Championships (20:32). Not bad for someone who didn't run for two months.

NAME: Steve Sollowin
SCHOOL: Weymouth
GRADE: Junior
STATS: Sollowin was the Bay State Conference MVP after winning race after race by huge margins. He also finished sixth in the All-Star championship and despite having the flu, he finished 15th at the All-State Championships.

NAME: Dan Joyce
SCHOOL: Marshfield
GRADE: Senior
STATS: What a way to end a high school cross country career. Joyce finished 14th at the All-State Championships with a time of 16:48, one week after taking 11th place (16:56) at the Division 2 Eastern Mass., race. Joyce came up big time and time again during Marshfield's team meets this fall, and he finished second at the Atlantic Coast League Meet (13:27 on the 2.69-mile course in Yarmouth).

NAME: Brendan Adams
SCHOOL: Pembroke
GRADE: Junior
STATS: Other teams would kill to have Brendan Adams, Pembroke's number three runner. This kid puts up numbers that would shatter pretty much every other team's number one runner's times. Adams took eighth at the Eastern Mass., Division 3 Championships (17:08) and sixth (16:50) at the All-State Meet. His finish helped Pembroke become the best team in the state.

NAME: Ryan Kelley
SCHOOL: Pembroke
GRADE: Junior
STATS: Pembroke's number two, Ryan Kelley, had a phenomenal season. That was expected of the junior, who came off a monster season with the 2009 multi-championship outdoor track team. Kelley finished fourth at the Eastern Mass., Division 3 Championships and second (16:27) at All-States, bringing home the championship hardware for Pembroke.

Schools begin budget talks

Override, increased fees are possibilities

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

On Wednesday night, the School Committee got its first glimpse at the fiscal 2011 budget – and it is going to be a tough year to make ends meet.

The possibilities of seeking an override, making the athletic program completely fee-based, and increasing the bus fees all came up during the discussion.

"Is there a need for an override? Is it more palatable for the community to have a fee-based athletic program or an override?"
— Alfred Slanetz, School Committee

"We may have to make some tough choices," said School Committee vice chair Alfred Slanetz, who was the first to mention considering an override. "Is there a need for an override? Is it more palatable for the community to have a fee-based athletic program or an override?"

Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh said this was a discussion the School Committee can and should begin having with this presentation.

Walsh and school business manager Dave DeGennaro, with the help from the school principals and other administrators, put together an overview of the Final Four

Police Chief search narrows

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The town of Cohasset is getting closer to having a new police chief. From a pool of 80 applicants, the list is now down to four finalists.

The finalists include one of Cohasset's own sergeants, the former Duxbury police chief, the Norwell deputy chief, and the current police chief of Wenham, Mass.

In recent weeks a five-member selection committee composed of Town Manager Bill Griffin and four local residents, Marty Corry, Melissa Browne, Peter Laugelle and Rob Spofford, interviewed the nine semi-finalist candidates.

Public interviews slated for Jan. 4 and 5.

The selection committee has discussed the semi-finalists qualifications and interviews, and agreed on four finalists to invite back to a second, public interview the first week of January.

The hiring process for a new police chief began at the resignation of former Police Chief James Hussey in late September. Under the Town Manager Act, the town manager is ultimately responsible for the appointment of the new police chief, with the Board of Selectmen having the right to veto that appointment within 15 days of notice of the appointment.

It is expected that each of the four finalists will undergo a public interview on the nights of Monday, Jan. 4, 2010 and Tuesday, Jan. 5, 2010.

Here is some background on the four finalists provided by the Town Manager's office:

• John Conte: A resident of Cohasset and a current Sergeant in the Cohasset Police Department. Conte has been with the department for over 25 years, including the last 16 years in the rank of Sergeant. Conte holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Criminal Justice from Northeastern University and a Masters Degree in Criminal Justice from Anna Maria College.

• Mark DeLuca: A resident of Whitman, DeLuca until recently served as Chief of Police for the Town of Duxbury since 1999. He also served as a Patrolman and Sergeant in the Boston Police Department for 12 years. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Human Services – Criminal Justice

COURTESY PHOTO

Rick Barron and his band, Rick Barron and the Quavers, are performing in Scituate at the River Club on Friday.

By Matt Whorf
CORRESPONDENT

Rick Barron will serenade you with a hot-pickin' or cool-crooning honkytonk country tune.

Or he'll coach your son's high school or youth football team to the state Division Superbowl championship, or at least respectably close in the playoffs.

All the while, he's devoted a long and varied career for more than 30 years to protect and serve with the Brookline Police force.

Barron, 60 and a Cohasset resident, has been known to New England country music fans for over 20 years as singer/guitarist/frontman of Rick Barron and the Quavers, who have performed all over New England as well as members of the band playing in Florida, Texas, Bermuda, California, Atlantic City, New York, and Ireland. And the band has released three independent CDs since 1996.

Barron and the Quavers makes a local stop this Friday night (Dec. 18) as the featured band at 8 p.m. at the River Club on Border Street in Scituate for the Gather Together Holiday Party, an all-inclusive holiday bash with entertainment and full course dinner. Barron and company will play a mix of country — original and cover — and pop music and holiday songs. Cost is $25 per person.

"The folks at the River Club told me that we should mix Christmas carols with country and pop music mixed with originals, and just have a whole lot of fun. We should try to create a festive atmosphere for the holidays," said Barron.

POLICE BEAT

Phishing email scam reported to Cohasset police

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

A 47-year-old Cohasset woman reported to police that her Yahoo email account had been compromised. Apparently, access was gained to her address book and emails were sent out under her name telling recipients that she was stuck in London, that her passport had been stolen and that she needed money, police said.

Some of those on her email list alerted her to the scam and she reported it to police last Tuesday (Dec. 8).

Phishing is the fraudlent process of attempting to acquire sensitive information by masquerading as a trustworthy entity in an electronic communication, according to Internet definitions.

Police said Yahoo secruity was notified and the woman may have to delete her Yahoo account and start over with an new one. Cohassset detectives are also investigating.

Stolen Jeep

Cohasset Police were called to a Route 3A auto body repair shop on Tuesday, Dec. 15, at about 8:20 a.m. for a report of a suspicious abandoned vehicle.

On arrival officers were directed to a 2001 Jeep Grand Cherokee that was parked in the lot. The business owner reported that the Jeep appeared in his lot several days ago complete with keys. The business owner thought that the Jeep was left by one of his customers for repair. During the week the Jeep was moved around the parking lot several times by employees while they waited for direction from the owner of the Jeep as to what repairs needed to be done.

Finally, after not hearing from the vehicle owner, the business called the person listed on the Jeep's registration, a 39 year-old male from Pembroke. The Pembroke man reported that his Jeep was stolen on Nov. 22, from a transmission repair shop in Pembroke. He had made a report to the Pembroke Police at the time of the theft.

Checks through NCIC (National Crime Info Center) showed that the vehicle was stolen. It was towed back to Cohasset Police headquarters to be processed for evidence. There was no visible damage to the Jeep.

Suspicious man

The owner of a local shop went to the police station last week to report that a man who had been inside the shop had been acting strangely. The person was gone but the shop owner thought it wise to let police know about him. The incident was reported at about 12:30 p.m. on Monday (Dec. 7).

No trespass

Business owners in Cohasset have sought a no-trespass order last week against the boyfriend of 25-year-old employee, police said. The boyfriend was allegedly making threats.

Police provide blank forms for no-trespass orders, which are a civil issue. The no-trespass order is usually sent to the person via certified mail. It can become a criminal matter if the no-trespass order is violated.

Whale

A whale washed up last week on a privately owned beach off Jerusalem Road. The New England Aquarium was notified and advised that the whale be left alone to wash back out to sea. Police were notified at about11:24 a.m. on Tuesday (Dec. 8) when a man was spotted cutting the whale. However, as it turned out he had permission from the owners of the beach to obtain some of the whale's bones, police said.

MV crashes

• At 3:05 p.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 9), a 2008 Cadillac CTS pulled into traffic after exiting Shaw's Plaza and hit the door of a 1999 Ford Explorer that has traveling north. An 81-year-old Hull man operated the Cadillac that was also going to head north. A 17-year-old Scituate girl was driving the Explorer, police said. The man was cited for failure to yield to oncoming traffic. There were no apparent injuries and neither vehicle was towed.

• At 9:45 a.m. on Thursday (Dec. 10), a 2004 BMW that was legally parked at the Post Office was struck by a 2000 Ford pick up, registered to a 61-year-old Cohasset woman. A witness provided the plate number and said that a male was driving the pick-up that left the scene. Police are not sure if the driver did not realize he "tapped" the BMW. There was minor damage to the BMW X5 SUV. The driver of the BMW, a 55-year-old Cohasset man, was inside the Post Office when the mishap occurred. The accident is under investigation.

• At 11:54 a.m. on Friday (Dec. 11), there was a minor motor vehicle accident in the parking lot of the Rockland Trust off Route 3A. The two vehicles involved were a 2005 Honda, operated by at 60-year-old Orlando man, and a 2008 Mercedes, operated by a 41-year-old Cohasset woman. Police said one vehicle backed into another. Damage was very minor and the two drivers only needed help exchanging paperwork.

• At 10:26 p.m. on Friday (Dec. 11), an 83-yar-old Cohasset man, operating a 2002 Dodge Caravan, struck and killed a deer on Norman Todd Road. The man was headed from South Main Street toward Beechwood Street when the accident occurred. The minivan was drivable and the operator was not injured.

ID theft

A 52-year-old Cohasset woman reported to police on Thursday that she was the victim of identity theft. Apparently an unauthorized, unknown person (or persons) was trying to wire money from her investment account to an offshore account. The woman was worried that her computer, which had been repaired recently, was compromised as well as her personal identification. The woman changed her account number. Police are investigating and provided her with an identity-theft packet that provides necessary information about contacting credit bureaus and includes frequently asked questions about ID theft.

Canoe found

An Aaron River Road resident is keeping an abandoned canoe he found on his front lawn to see if anyone claims it, police said. The man was walking in the reservoir last week when he saw the canoe, which is described as a green Pelican canoe. The resident reported finding the canoe to police on Thursday (Dec. 10).

Confrontation

Police responded to a tenant-landlord dispute last Thursday (Dec. 10). The tenant called police to report a break-in when the landlord arrived unannounced to show the property. Police said as it turned out it was not a break-in but a civil matter.

Warrant

A Cohasset family of a 23-year-old woman with substance abuse problems obtained a warrant of apprehension last week. Police arrested the woman and brought her to Quincy District Court where a judge can order treatment, police said.

Reflectors

A 64-year-old Atlantic Avenue man reported that four snowplowing reflectors were stolen from his yard sometime overnight Thursday to Friday (Dec. 10-11).

Police said although the reflectors have little monetary value, he wanted to let police know. The man was upset about the inconvenience the theft created.

Summons

A 41-year-old Hull woman is being summonsed for speeding and operating without a license following a traffic stop for speeding on Saturday (Dec. 13) at about 11:16 p.m. on Forest Avenue. Police said the woman was driving on an expired license; her 2001 Honda CRV SUV had to be towed.

Quincy man charged following CID investigation

The complaint alleges the Quincy man entered the women's locker room at Stop & Shop, broke into two employee lockers and stole the personal property of two employees.

A Quincy man was charged in a criminal complaint in Quincy District Court with two counts of breaking into a depository, two counts of larceny in a building and one count of malicious destruction of property under $250, police said.

The complaint alleges that on Sept. 26, John F. Sapienza, age 34, of Quincy, entered the women's locker room at Stop & Shop, 400 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, broke into two employee lockers and stole the personal property of two Stop & Shop employees.

If convicted of the charges, Sapienza faces up to 20 years in state prison.

The preliminary fiscal 2011 budget is $15,383,761, which includes negotiated salary increases with the teachers' union, transportation costs and unemployment costs. The budget is a 4.6 percent increase, or $671,761 over this year's budget.

A quarter of the increase is for unemployment costs, which have risen significantly over the last year in part because the federal government has increased the number of weeks the unemployed can collect benefits. The current fiscal year is the first time unemployment costs have been borne on the school side of the budget.

The School Committee discussed the ways they could begin getting the word out on the budget, and begin gathering feedback from the community about residents' priorities and needs.

"On the school side and the town side we are making assumptions about what the town wants as a whole and we could be making the wrong ones…Participation is necessary," said Adrienne MacCarthy, School Committee chair.

The loss of state and federal grants are impacting the budget in a significant way. State grants like for the METCO program and circuit breaker for special education are expected to be less than they were in the current year's budget.

Slanetz called the budget a "modern miracle" because it was able to increase "only" $220,000 in the face of over $400,000 losses in grants and other offsets.

Walsh said over 90 percent of the budget is earmarked for fixed costs and contractual obligations, the lion's share (about 75 percent) being salaries.

The proposed budget assumes a 2 percent reduction in additional revenue from outside sources, like gifts, donations and grants. In recent history, each year showed growing budget reliance on outside revenue. In the FY10 budget outside sources made up over 12 percent of the overall operational budget, in FY11 that is expected to drop to 10.4 percent.

The proposed fiscal 2011 include no new teachers and the main priority is to maintain level services, Walsh said.

School budget calendar for fiscal 2011

- Jan. 6: School Committee budget meeting, line item review with the middle-high school principal and athletic director.
- Jan. 12: (Possible) School Committee budget sub-committee meeting.
- Jan. 20: School Committee meeting line item review with the Osgood and Deer Hill principals.
- TBD: Budget summit with the Town
- TBD: School Committee presents budget to Board of Selectmen and Advisory Committee.
- March 3: School Committee public hearing on budget/final adoption and certification of budget.
- March 8-12: Central office staff prepares Town Meeting budget materials.
- March 12: Budget document ready for distribution.
- March 27: Town Meeting.

Walsh said the town as a whole, not just the schools, is facing a budget shortfall in the coming budget year.

"We need to make some tough decisions, but so does the town," Walsh said. She proposed having a town-wide economic summit in late January after the state financial picture is clearer.

The school budget will be updated as more information becomes available in the New Year. The School Committee and the public will hear from each school's principal, the athletic director and student services director in January. On Wednesday, Jan. 6 middle high school Principal Joel Antolini and Athletic Director Ron Ferd will present their line item budget.

"The devil will be in the details," Slanetz said.

BRIEFLY

Clarification warranted

Details in the article "Paraprofessionals pay restored" that appeared in the Dec. 4 edition warrants clarification.

The School Committee voted at their meeting of Dec. 2 to restore the paraprofessionals back to the previous year's salary rate. The Mariner additionally reported the paraprofessionals would be receiving the 10 paid holidays recently approved by School Committee in November.

However, the School Committee clarified at their meeting Wednesday night that the paraprofessionals would not be getting the 10 additional paid holidays. Superintendent Denise Walsh said the salary rate previously received by the paraprofessionals included vacation and holiday time.

"What they are getting now includes the holidays," Walsh said.

Next year, the Superintendent is developing an hourly rate for the paraprofessionals. They will receive an hourly rate, six hours a day, 180 days a year, plus 9 or 10 paid holidays (depending on if school starts before or after Labor Day).

West Corner bridge reopened

West Corner bridge is now open for one-way traffic. While construction is still on-going a stop light now allows cars traveling north and south to pass over the bridge, one way at a time. Selectman Fred Koed said the intersection is a little confusing and traffic is backing up toward DiNero's Restaurant, but hopes the kinks can be worked out.

'Going paperless'

Selectmen vice chair Karen Quigley suggested the board consider "going paperless" in the New Year as a "symbolic" gesture to save money on supplies and be more environmentally friendly. Quigley was primarily referring to "the packet," a set of relevant paperwork and correspondence delivered to each selectman before each meeting.

While Selectman Ralph Dormitzer thought it was a really good idea, it was not entirely practical.

"A lot of times we need the documents in front of us when we are at the meeting, so we'll end up printing it at home," Dormitzer said.

A public copy of all Selectmen's correspondence is available in the Town Manager's office for public review.

Avalon wants to be 'friendly 40-B'

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

It is no secret financing for large real estate projects is hard to come by these days — and the Avalon Cohasset project is no exception.

However, at the Selectmen's meeting this week, the apartment complex developers said they could finance the project on their own. But to do so they need the Selectmen's support to convert the project to a local initiative program (LIP) project, or what is sometimes called a "friendly 40-B project."

While nothing in the comprehensive permit would change, the conversion to a LIP project would enable Avalon to self-fund the project, said Scott Dale, Avalon vice president and project manager for the Avalon Cohasset.

The 200-apartment complex to be site on over 60 acres off Route 3A received a comprehensive permit from the Zoning Board of Appeals over six years ago. Issues over wastewater treatment held up the project for several years.

The process to convert the project to a LIP is multi-step, Dale said. First, Avalon developers would create an application and present it to the Board of Selectmen for approval. If the town signs off, the application will go to the state Department of Housing and Community Development. The state agency would then issue a new project eligibility determination under the LIP program.

Then, the project would need to go back to the ZBA for a "minor modification" to the existing permit, Dale said. (Later in the meeting speaking from the audience Woody Chittick, chairman of the ZBA, said his board would approve the change to the comprehensive permit making it a LIP — "we'll take our cues from the Selectmen," he said.)

The upside for the developer is they could then move forward with the project because it eliminates the need for Mass Housing financing and would allow Avalon to self-fund the project.

The impetus for this move, Avalon attorney Steven Schwartz explained in a letter to the Selectmen, is the traditional subsidy funding program run out of Mass Housing has been discontinued.

"The change to LIP will facilitate the financing for the project…and it could help the project move along faster," Dale said.

Selectman Ralph Dormitzer asked what was in it for the town, since it seemed Avalon was getting a financial benefit, adding the apartment complex will burden the town's facilities and services.

"There is no financial benefit to us, we are not doing it to save cost. It is really an issue of availability of financing," Dale said.

Dormitzer asked if there were still plans to develop the lot of land adjacent to the Avalon property that fronts on Route 3A. The property, which is roughly located across from Good Sport, currently has a derelict building on it.

"If (Avalon) could purchase it and give it commercial value that would be good for the residents and good for the town," Dormitzer said.

Dale said he has been in contact with the owner of that property and would like to do something there. He said a daycare center or small retail development were possibilities. Or, if the town needed or wanted a satellite public safety facility, that could be discussed.

"Our interest is to see that lot cleaned up a little bit," Dale said.

In conclusion, the Board of Selectmen seemed willing to explore the possibility of entering into a LIP agreement with the Avalon project. Dormitzer said he'd like there to be some collaboration with town counsel on the application.

"But, it is definitely something worth considering," Dormitzer said.

3A Sidewalk and possible expansion

In addition to the discussion on making the Avalon Cohasset a LIP project, the Avalon representatives were seeking a final determination on where to construct a Route 3A sidewalk and get the board's feeling on a possible redesign and expansion of the apartment complex.

The expansion would include enough apartment units to ensure the town would be in compliance with the state's affordable housing law, Chapter 40-B.

Under Chapter 40B, a town's zoning board can approve affordable housing developments under flexible rules if at least 20-25 percent of the units have long-term affordability restrictions. Towns that are under the 10 percent threshold of their housing stock deemed as affordable by state standards are vulnerable to 40-B projects. Because Avalon is all rental units, all the units will "count" toward Cohasset's 10 percent.

Dale said the currently approved design for the apartment complex dates back to the early 2000s and could stand to be updated. Next door at the Hingham Shipyard, he said Avalon created a village-type feel through varying architecture. The redesign would incorporate of the already approved units and possibly propose a "phase 2" with additional units.

"The additional units would be severable from the already approved units," Dale said. Wastewater treatment issue complicates the prospect of incorporating additional units.

Dale said they would like to re-orient some of the apartment buildings so they are not looking out at the potential wind turbines, if they are ultimately approved by the town.

"We want our residents to be looking out at the right direction, so to speak," Dale said.

Selectmen chair Paul Carlson said he is torn over the potential increase in apartment units, "I see the benefits and cost."

As part of Avalon's comprehensive permit there were many conditions, including the construction of two sets of sidewalks, one along Route 3A and the other up Sohier Street.

On Monday, the Selectmen agreed a sidewalk on Sohier Street was not desired, but a sidewalk on 3A from King Street to Sohier was. However, a final vote was not taken on the issue. The Selectmen want to take another look at the area before voting.

License with Cook Estate granted

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

In the event stormwater runoff from the Cook Estate development impacts an acre of town-owned land, the owners of the Cook Estate property will be responsible for the damage.

That's the bottom-line for the license agreement signed by the Selectmen between the town and Abbott Development, the owners of the 19-acre Cook Estate property.

The seven-page license incorporates protection for the town and the land, which currently has a pending conservation restriction on it.

In November, Town Meeting voted down a proposal that would have given the Board of Selectmen the authorization to grant an easement for approximately one-acre of town land to Abbot Homes, the developers of the Cook Estate. Concerns were raised about the size of the easement and what the purpose would be for that easement, if granted.

"(This license) is substantially more beneficial to the town (than an easement)," said Selectmen chair Paul Carlson at Monday's meeting. The license includes an indemnification clause, the requirement for a $2 million insurance policy, and requires the Cook Estate property owners to notify the town before entering the property.

"The easement would have been a property right, this (license) is not a property right," Selectmen vice chair Karen Quigley said in a phone interview.

Since Town Meeting Town Counsel Lou Ross and Cook Estate counsel Richard Henderson have been working on the license agreement. Ross also consulted with the Division of Conservation Services to make sure the license agreement would not negatively impact the final conservation restriction for the town-owned parcel.

As a bit of background, town meeting gave the Selectmen authorization to place a conservation restriction on the nearly nine acres of land in late 2005. Voters wanted to protect the land from development because of its proximity to Peppermint Brook, one of the tributaries to Lily Pond, the town's drinking water supply. The Selectmen did not vote to place the conservation restriction until fall 2007.

According to Quigley, the conservation restriction is still pending. The license makes clear all work done on the property to restore damaged areas is subject to the town's future conservation restriction.

Abbott Development attorney Henderson said the license would "run with the land" and the subsequent owners of the property (most like the condo association) would take on the responsibilities outlines in the license.

The signing of a drainage easement was one of the conditions imposed on Abbott Development in its special permit approval granted by the Planning Board.

The Selectmen unanimously supported the signing of the easement. Quigley, who opposed the Town Meeting article concerning the easement, said by phone she felt the document was "strong" and incorporated additional protections related to the conservation restriction.

"It's a good solution for everybody," Quigley said.

Cohasset Triathlon age groups in colorful swim caps await the swim in Cohasset's third annual Triathlon held in July at Sandy Beach. Proceeds benefit the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation.

Tri 'sells out' in record time

Start time an hour later this year

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The hundreds of athletes and spectators that flock to Cohasset to participate in the Cohasset Triathlon this year will enjoy an extra hour of sleep. Instead of an 8a.m. start, the first swimmers will hit the waters off Sandy Beach shortly after 9a.m. this year.

Cohasset Triathlon founder and race director Bill Burnett came before the Board of Selectmen to discuss the 2010 race and the possibility of moving the race back an hour.

First, Burnett gave the facts on how far the race has come since its inception in 2007.

The Cohasset Triathlon will have its fourth running on Sunday, June 27, 2010. In its three years of existence, the triathlon has become the country's number-one, third-party volunteer fundraiser for the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation (JDRF), Burnett said. In that time, the triathlon has raised close to $500,000.

In the beginning of December when the triathlon opened for athlete registration it sold out in record time — beating its own record and perhaps selling out faster than any other sprint triathlon nationally, Burnett said. In 72 hours, 875 individuals, 30 relay teams were registered for the race. Now, just over two weeks later, 225 athletes are already on the wait list.

Burnett said the reasoning for the later start was three-fold. First, Burnett said the tide was more favorable from a safety perspective at 9a.m.

"If we move the start back an hour it will be easier for all the safety teams," Burnett said.

Second, Burnett hoped the later start would allow more spectators to be part of the race and the race-course. He hopes more residents will ride their bike down to Sandy Beach to see the race and the fan fare that comes with it.

Lastly, from a weather perspective the later start time could allow foggy conditions (which occurred on race day the last two years) to clear.

Selectmen Chairman Paul Carlson said there was concern a later start time could negatively impact village businesses, many of which count on Sunday morning foot traffic.

Vice chair Karen Quigley agreed, "everybody knows this is a wonderful event for a wonderful cause. No one wants to do anything to negatively impact the race, but we need to figure out what we can do that works out well for everybody."

Burnett said he had not heard from any of the merchants and would like the chance to speak with them personally to discuss possible ways to mitigate the race's impact on village business.

Quigley also said there needed to be better communication about what roads and facilities are closed during race time. Later in the discussion, Selectman Ralph Dormitzer suggest the reverse 911 system be used to alert residents of the triathlon.

Fire Chief Robert Silvia said last year especially they had to spread out the start of the race to ensure participant safety more than expected because of the foggy conditions on the water. The elongated start stretched out the time the athletes were on the bike and run courses.

"Pushing the start back a little bit later maybe able to shorten the duration of time the road are tied up," Silvia said, adding this year they plan to institute a "drop-dead" time for the decision to be made whether there will be a swim portion of the race.

"We are the safest race by far," Silvia said, this year they plan to have double the amount of kayakers in the water to keep an eye on the athletes. "Every year we come up with little tweak that might be able to make the race a little better."

There seemed to be a consensus to allow the later start time, but Quigley asked for Burnett to come back in March to update the board.

"I am very proud of this race and the support I have for it is unbelievable," Burnett said.

Quigley added, "the community is very supportive of the event and hopefully the event can be supportive of the community."

Last minute shopping at Unique Boutique

By Kathy Gray
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Members of the Community Garden Club of Cohasset have been very busy since Thanksgiving making unique gifts and minding the store, called "Unique Boutique" Thank you to Wayne Sawchuk for giving us the use of the space. Wayne has been pleased with our merchandise. According to him, it's been almost as good as having a professional florist in the space.

The Unique Boutique is located on Main Street in downtown Cohasset, next door to Bia's. We have been very pleased with the response by the community. Because our efforts have been so well received, we will be open again this weekend, Saturday from 10 am to 2 pm and Sunday from 11 am to 2 pm.

This will be the last opportunity to buy a unique gift made by members of the garden club. We will be selling homemade fudge sauce and homemade mustard, unique note cards and calendars, our cookbook, Cohasset Entertains and our gardening guide, The Eclectic Gardener. In addition, there will be baked goods and a limited selection of arrangements with fresh greens. Also on sale are CDs by the "Rusty Skippers"

HAPPENINGS

Caroling on the Common is Dec. 19

Hey there, Merry-Makers! Once again, First Parish is sponsoring a Holiday treat for young & old: the well-loved Cohasset tradition — Caroling on the Common — on Saturday, Dec. 19th.

Everyone is welcome! This is a community event for young and old, especially those with school-age children. Bring some friends! Exceptional singing voices are NOT required; carols will be familiar and simple — there will be songbooks for everyone. Because it gets dark quickly, you are asked to bring flashlights.

Participants will gather at the Parish House (23 North Main St.) between 3:45-4 p.m., for cookies and cider. Carolers will then leave to do their singing near the duck pond. At approximately 4:45, everyone will return to the Parish House for hot cocoa, cider and cookies (cookie donations will be much appreciated).

Everyone is asked to bring a pair of white cotton socks (or two or three) which will be donated to Boston Health Care for the Homeless; both men's and women's sizes are welcome.

Come join your friends for an old-fashioned holiday get-together, and pass the word! The more the merrier! For further information contact Sandy Bailey at the church office (383-1100) or Woody Chittick (383-3215).

Seeking Lady Skipper alums

This is your chance to shine if you played basketball for the Cohasset High School girl's basketball teams between 1945-2009. If those hoop skills are still there, you are needed to play but if they have disappeared, you are still wanted to come and be acknowledged for your role on this long basketball road, as well as, to support the other alumni on Dec. 23 at 5:30 p.m. in the Cohasset High School gym.

After this game between the current team and the alumni, there will be an opportunity to meet and greet some old friends, and to mingle and network and provide valuable advice to our current young players. Bring your spouses, young or old children or friends as your personal cheerleaders. It should be a fun filled night of basketball, music and holiday chatter. Admission is free so come one and come all. Save the date, Dec. 23 in the Cohasset High School gym at 5:30 p.m. For further information call John or Mary Levangie at 781-545-0383 or just show up.

Cappella Clausura and Creationdance will present "Gloria! A Renaissance Christmas Pageant" at First Parish Cohasset on Sunday, Dec. 20 at 4 p.m.

First Parish to host Cappella Clausura and Creationdance

Cappella Clausura and Creationdance will present "Gloria! A Renaissance Christmas Pageant" at First Parish Cohasset on Sunday, Dec. 20 at 4 p.m. This concert will be in the Parish House, which is located at 23 North Main St. Admission will be $15 for adults and $12 for seniors and children.

In a truly different sort of Christmas pageant, suited to the entire family, Cappella Clausura, Amelia LeClair, director, and Creationdance, Helena Froehlich, director, join together to create a magical foray into the variety of music written to celebrate the mother of God and the birth of her son.

For this very special concert of music and dance, Cappella Clausura has chosen works from its repertory of lush medieval, renaissance and baroque music by Hildegard von Bingen, Sulpitia Cesis, Raffaella Aleotti, and Chiara Cozzolani, as well as the amazingly beautiful contemporary music of Patricia Van Ness inspired by ancient chant.

All this is topped off with some lively laude, or processional hymns, from 14th century Florence, which our audience is invited to sing and enjoy with us! Froehlich and company provide spectacular choreography, stunningly beautiful costumes, and giant puppets to enchant and delight as Cappella Clausura sings the Christmas story all the way from Gabriel to the visit of the Magi.

Cohasset native in Tanzania asks library, community for help

By Nancy White

COURTESY PHOTO

Christen Reardon, a member of the CHS Class of 2004, is in Tanzania teaching English at a Jesuit school. This picture was taken when she studied in Kenya her junior year of college; her experience in Kenya led her back to Africa post-graduation.

Halfway across the world there is a student in Tanzania reading one of the "Harry Potter" books thanks to somebody in Cohasset.

Halfway across the world there is a grateful teacher thankful to her hometown for helping to make that student in Tanzania's education a little bit richer.

Christen Reardon, a 2004 Cohasset High graduate, is in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania teaching English at a Jesuit high school. She has been in Tanzania for a year, and will spend another year there. The Jesuit Volunteer Corps International is what brought her halfway across the world.

Reardon recently contacted the Paul Pratt Memorial Library looking for help from her hometown. Her students had little to no access to books.

"Only six out of 111 students had stepped foot in a public library. The books are dated in our school library, and are not allowed to be checked out for fear of never getting them back," Reardon wrote via e-mail. It cost money to enter the public library, money many of the students can't spare.

"Education is so different here. Priorities are so different. The developing world obviously struggles with the day-to-day challenge of what is more important: having a job that will put food on the table and a roof over our heads? Or sitting in school all day paying to learn something we can't use right away?" Reardon said.

Sharon Moody, the Cohasset library's children's librarian, responded to Reardon's call for help. She recognized Reardon's name right away — Reardon was a kindergarten student in one of Moody's classes at Osgood.

Moody was able to send out a package of books almost right away.

"This town is very generous. I always have a couple of big carts of books waiting for something to happen," Moody said — Reardon's request was one of those somethings.

The first two packages jam-packed with paperback books shipped out last month. Three more boxes have been mailed out since. A Thanksgiving package contained a full set of hardcover "Harry Potter" books.

"According to e-mails from Christen, the kids are so excited," Moody said. While Reardon teaches at the high school, Moody has sent books appropriate for her students and students at the associated primary school.

However, the cost to send the books — about $20 for 40 pounds, which adds up quickly with books — is getting expensive. The library is reaching out to the community for book donations and monetary donation to help pay for the shipping.

In Tanzania, Reardon has had to teach her students to be "library patrons."

"The English Department has come up with a sign-out system in our office and it's been a success," Reardon wrote in an e-mail.

The lack of books and teaching materials to work worth is a challenge for Reardon, but the school she works in, which serves the local community is "a beacon of hope" for the area.

"The school serves students from all sides of the economic range. However, the teaching and learning materials are almost obsolete. Teachers teach from what they know and students take notes off the blackboard," Reardon said.

There is no hot water, temperatures are in the 90s nearly every day and electricity is available only about half the time.

"The difference in the school environment I grew up with and the one I am presently in now is so hugely different, almost depressingly," Reardon said, adding she has had to learn how to teach in a completely different manner than she was taught.

Seeing the poverty and everyday injustices can be wearing, she said, "my program promotes witnessing faith, building community, living simply, and working for social justice. So, some days it becomes so disheartening looking at all the change that needs to happen and knowing there is really nothing that I can do, or rather am doing."

However, she said she and the other volunteers try to take heart in the work they are doing and recognize they are part of a greater process that will outlive their time in Tanzania.

"Here I am...in a place that is still growing and needs so much nurture, more than I can give. There is only so much my two hands can do. But my students, they are the seedlings of a new generation. I am helping to shape and guide them," Reardon said. She has faith that her students will be the leaders of the country and "bring the change this is so desperately needed."

However, Reardon said her despite having so little, the people in Tanzania have welcomed her with open arms and afforded her some amazing experiences.

"The people here, so many with so little, will offer you all that they have if they can," Reardon says. "My program has let me be fortunate enough to experience in some very intimate sides of this culture, such as weddings, funerals, confirmations, et cetera. Each of these moments I have been included like the rest, although I am so different and I hardly know these people."

Reardon's father, Tom, is heading to Tanzania after Christmas to visit for two weeks. It is the first time he will have seen her in over a year.

"I'm very proud of her, it is a tremendous experience," Tom Reardon said of his 24-year-old daughter. He has been amazed at how the library and community have come together to support his daughter and her students in Tanzania.

"Those books are so valuable to everyone at that school, it is hugely important," he said. "The books sent so far quintuplet anything they had previously."

To find out more about the effort to send books to Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, see Sharon Moody in the children's room in the library or call 781-383-1348.

Barron wears many hats, and has worn many more for much of his life. With the Quavers, his music career has encompassed far more than just working the area's small club scene.

The band was hailed by the M.C.M.A.A. (Massachusetts Country Music Awards Association) as one of the Boston area's hot new country acts in 1992-1993. Barron has been a Top Ten semi-finalist in 1990 and 1993 for best single in the Billboard Annual Songwriting Contest.

He's also recorded as a talent on the Charlie Daniels Talent Show in Nashville, and later signed a publishing contract with Nashville's Cameo/Price Records as a songwriter. Also in Tennessee, he toured and appeared as a solo performer at the Bluebird Cafe, the Legarde Theater and other world-known venues in Nashville, and at the Wilson Trust Fair in Lebanon, Tennessee. He also recorded original songs at the Music Machine in Nashville with members of Merle Haggard's Band.

From the country music stage to the football field, Barron is the Line Coach for the Brighton High School Bengals, guiding the team to the Division 4 Superbowl championship in 2007. He's also vice-president and coaching director for Brookline/Jamaica Plain Pop Warner, where for the past seven years, his efforts have helped the program grow from a total of 66 to 250 players and six fully staffed teams.

In his main career, Barron is currently acting lieutenant with the Brookline Police. It's only the latest chapter of a 32-year career with the Department that, as he candidly points out, has covered virtually every facet and experience of law enforcement, including patrol and traffic divisions, training and administration and community liaison just in general, broad-stroke terms.

Most recently, Barron's training — and practice — has been in National Homeland Security, in Critical Incident and Disaster Management (with FEMA), and in Leadership and Management, including Developing Community Partnerships, Cultural Diversity and Problem Solving. He's also the FBI-trained current lead hostage negotiator for Brookline P.D.

"I actually get a lot of my best inspiration for songs from the police work. I'll get an idea and some free time and jot down a first draft of lyrics on some scrap paper that's handy."

— Rick Barron, Rick Barron and the Quavers

"I've always worked the streets as well as special departments with the Brookline police. I've been involved at one time or another with every nature of crime including murder. Also, virtually all aspects of community problem solving, including domestic violence, drug and alcohol abuse, all facets of police work within the community," said Barron.

Even as he spoke to the Mariner, Barron mentioned that he was busy with the recent string of bank robberies that have taken place in the Brookline area.

How does Barron balance music with often intensive police work?

"I actually get a lot of my best inspiration for songs from the police work. I'll get an idea and some free time and jot down a first draft of lyrics on some scrap paper that's handy. The song, 'Love Intoxication,' for instance, is from the view of a character who's pulled over at a roadblock because he's drunk on love," he said.

On or offstage, some of the musicians Barron has performed with include rockabilly legend Sleepy LaBeef (whom Barron calls his musical mentor), the Memphis Rockabilly Band, country songstress Jo Dee Messina and even Aerosmith's Brad Whitford, who once engaged him in an impromptu guitar session at Allston's Mister Music store.

Barron said he would like to mention his family in thanks for their support, including his wife, Melissa, a photographer who has a photo business at MelissasMagicMoments.com, and seven children ranging from pre-school to adult. He also said he offers congratulations to Coach Pete Afanisiw and the 2009 Cohasset Football program for their season winning their conference and qualifying for the Superbowl playoffs.

Coming dates for Rick Barron and the Quavers include Dec. 19 —The Holiday/Christmas Party at O Leary's Pub, Beacon St., Brookline; and Dec. 31 — The Saugus-Everett Elks New Year's Eve Event, in Saugus.

OPINION

Avalon Cohasset

Avalon is no longer a "four-letter" word. We are not so sure whether it ever deserved to be thought of as a project that would end small-town life in Cohasset the way we know it.

When Avalon first came to town "years ago" – Cedarmere and the Cook Estate developments were also in the works.

Fear around town was rampant that the projects – and Avalon in particular – might flood the town with schoolchildren after Cohasset had spent considerable millions on a new school and upgrading and renovating its two others.

Cedarmere was going to be a luxury, gated-like-community for affluent people in the 55-and-older set. It also had an affordable element that would be open to qualifying familes. The initial plans for the Cook Estate were to provide a housing option for older citizens that was also affordable. Both of those projects, as originally planned, were sidetracked well before the bottom fell out of the economic system last year.

The land off Beechwood Street where Cedarmere was planned remains undeveloped. The Cook Estate today is an entirely different project and is moving ahead.

Avalon has not broken ground but hopes to sooner rather than later if able to provide its own financing by becoming a "local initiative project" or LIP, also dubbed a "friendly 40-B."

The upside for Avalon is they could then move forward with the project because it eliminates the need for Mass Housing financing and would allow Avalon to self-fund the project. The traditional subsidy program run out of Mass Housing has been discontinued.

Scott Dale of Avalon was back before selectmen this week to get a sense of whether Avalon's becoming a LIP would win their support.

We feel that Mr. Dale is almost a member of the community. He is a familiar face that has been with the Avalon Cohasset project from the start. He has been accessible and forthcoming over the years. It is certainly a positive thing to have had the consistency he has provided in his role and helpful to have had someone on the Avalon side with the necessary "institutional" memory on the project.

We think it is a good thing that selectmen are willing to explore allowing Avalon to become a "LIP."

The town is familiar with the project that was thoroughly vetted over years of hearings with the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Cohasset has not met its affordable housing threshold of 10 percent. That means another developer could come to town and file for a comprehensive permit for a 40-B project.

We know Avalon. We are comfortable with them. Let's get that project moving ahead. It could solve the town's 40-B vulnerability problem.

That does not mean once Avalon comes on line, the town should abandon efforts to create affordable housing. It only means that it is more beneficial for Cohasset to have the ability to create affordable housing on its own terms without the 40-B cudgel over its head.

HEALTH NOTES

Some tips for a cool yule

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

We all know the rules we're supposed to follow during the holidays. You know: keep away from contaminated food, clean hands, and other elements of personal hygiene, but probably more important is to keep away from impulse eating. Our closets show us some of the things we wear that were bought on impulse, perhaps not by us but by well wishing gift givers. Nobody ever speaks of the chocolate casually picked up walking by a table with sweets, or the quick taste of a goodie in the kitchen. Fetching descriptions in menus and supermarket shelves all have allure which if not diet breakers, certainly can put on some casual pounds. The natural conclusion from impulse eating is growing waistlines and eventually the appearance of symptoms of diabetes. It's not always easy to practice forbearance during the holidays and not even usually necessary. But it's important to remember not to carry such habits into the New Year. Reports of a 20-something or even younger with coronary artery disease although not common, are showing up in disturbingly larger numbers.

As the holidays approach we like to celebrate by entertaining friends and family, throwing parties, and preparing feasts. From the buffet table to the office party, food moves center stage throughout the holiday season. So, in order to avoid a dyspeptic December, keep food safe by using the following good sense food safety practices for Holiday meals:

• Clean: Wash hands and food-contact surfaces often. Bacteria can spread throughout the kitchen and get onto cutting boards, knives, sponges, and counter tops.

• Separate and don't cross-contaminate — avoid allowing bacteria to spread from one food product to another; especially true for raw meat, poultry and seafood. Keep such foods and their juices away from ready-to-eat foods.

•Cook to proper temperatures. Foods are properly cooked when heated for a long enough time and at a high (>160 f) temperature to kill the harmful bacteria that cause food borne illnesses.

• Chill: Refrigerate promptly. Refrigerating foods quickly keeps most harmful bacteria from growing and multiplying. Refrigerators should be set at 40 F and the freezer at 0 F. Accuracy of the settings should be checked occasionally with a thermometer.

Friends, family or at the mall: Holidays are also the time we meet more people. Remember how germs are transmitted. Illnesses like the flu and colds are caused by viruses that infect the nose, throat, and lungs. Flu and colds usually spread from person to person when an infected person coughs or sneezes. Take care to:

• Clean your hands often When available, wash your hands — with soap and warm water — then rub your hands vigorously together and scrub all surfaces. Wash for 15 to 20 seconds. The soap combined with the scrubbing action helps dislodge and remove germs.

• When soap and water are not available, use alcohol-based disposable hand wipes or gel sanitizers found in most supermarkets and drugstores. If using a gel, rub it into your hands until they are dry. The gel doesn't need water to work; alcohol in the gel kills germs that cause colds and the flu.

• Cough or sneeze into a tissue and then throw it away. Cover your cough or sneeze if you do not have a tissue. Then, clean your hands, and do so every time you cough or sneeze.

Avoid close contact & stay home if you're sick — Avoid touching your eyes, nose, or mouth. Germs are often spread when a person touches something contaminated with germs, then touches their eyes, nose, or mouth. Germs can live for a long time (some can live for 2 hours or more) on surfaces like doorknobs, desks, and tables.

Sick or have flu symptoms? Stay home, get plenty of rest, and check with a health nurse as needed. Your employer may need a doctor's note for an excused absence. Remember: Keeping your distance from others may protect them from getting sick. Common symptoms of the flu include: fever (usually high), headache, extreme tiredness, cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, muscle aches, and nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea, (much more common among children than adults).

Holiday Travel: If you're flying, get a good night's sleep before a trip. Wear loose-fitting clothing, since the body expands slightly in flight. Keep important medical and insurance information with you during your trip. If you have dietary restrictions, contact reservations at least 24 hours prior to a flight.

If crossing time zones, prepare in advance to counteract the effects of jet lag by adjusting sleep time in the days before a trip. Retire earlier than normal if heading east, and later if traveling west. Limit alcohol and caffeine intake, which tend to dehydrate the body.

Practice other good health habits: Be physically active, manage your stress, drink plenty of fluids, and eat nutritious food. Practicing healthy habits will help you stay healthy during flu season and all year long.

Participate in all decisions about your general health and its treatment: You are in charge, so have a healthy happy holiday.

Closest guess to total pounds of asphalt

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

We have a Winner! — Several weeks ago, just after we finished one of our major paving projects in which we paved the streets around the Common and North Main Street up to and including the Red Gate Lane area, we created an informal contest for our readers to guess how many pounds of asphalt were laid on these streets. The actual amount of asphalt that was laid was 9,632,000 pounds. That's 4,816 tons, which is a lot of asphalt no matter how you count it! Keep in mind that a dump truck can carry 20 to 40 tons per trip, which means there were a lot of trips. The winner was Mary Fran Olson with an estimate of 10,429,630 pounds. She admitted to having an engineering background, which we suppose gave her a slight edge.

Water Streaming onto Jerusalem Road.

Contractor Preparing for New Drain.

This past Monday, we united Mary Fran with her award, an engraved section of Greenbush rail commemorating the grand opening of the Greenbush Commuter Rail Line.

Little Harbor Project — Most of the work, except for completing the paving and some last project punch list items, has been completed. The contractor, L M Holdings almost has both feet out of town. Other than paving and a few small items that are being done by local contractors, the sewer system is awaiting residential customers to connect.

Storm Water Problems — With all of the rain we have had over the past week trouble spots have surfaced around the Little Harbor project work area. In several places, water has been coming out of the ground and causing ice problems on the road during the sudden freezing temperatures late last week. Perhaps the worst area was on Jerusalem Road opposite Little Harbor Road. There was ice from Little Harbor Road almost down to Nichols Road.

Upon close examination, we found ground water flowing vigorously onto the road, bypassing most of the catch basins in the road. As a result, when the temperature dropped, ice formed on the road. Even though the Little Harbor Project had added new drainage structures in this area some of the temporary paving allowed the water to flow around these new drains. This week we hired a local contractor to add a storm basin near the edge of the road to capture the water before it can flow onto the road. This new structure will tie into a storm drain adjacent to it. We understand that storm water flow onto the road in this area has been a serious situation for a number of years. This rather simple fix should go a long way toward getting the storm water off of the road.

We examined several other areas where water was draining across the road, causing ice build-up when the temperature dropped. One of these looked very much like a water leak since the water was slowly oozing slowly out of a water shut-off structure in the road. However, chemical testing of that water confirmed it was not potable water, but high ground water since it contained no fluorides. So the high ground water just found a convenient place to come to the surface via a water shut-off structure. With Cohasset's ledge filled ground it is common for water to manifest itself after large or significant rain soaks the ground. When the roads are paved next year, we will be able to manage some of these high ground water situations a bit better by adjusting the contours of the roads so that the drains can catch the water. But, there will always be water on the roads coming from the ledge areas, so please be careful when driving, especially when the temperature is below freezing.

Sewer Connections — About 160 connection information packages have been sent to residents in the first wave of connections. After the first of the year the remaining first wave residents should have received their information packages. If you have any questions about your information package or what you should be doing to begin the "connection" process, you can contact Ms. Diane Hindley, the Sewer Department Administrator, at Town Hall on 781-383-4108.

The Year in Review — The Greenbush guys started our tenure at Town Hall as liaisons on behalf of the Town Manager in January of 2005. Our job at that time was to become the Town's interface with the Greenbush Project, to handle all resident issues and to inform the residents about the issues and project progress. We settled, early on, on these articles as a communication vehicle to keep you, the residents, up to date.

Since the Greenbush Railroad started commercial operation in October of 2007 and even before that date, the Town Manager has asked us to fill a variety of roles requiring engineering-related skills. Usually, they involve design and construction projects as well as construction oversight. Sometimes, they are just general support.

We thought it might be interesting to look back over this past 12 months to summarize the projects that we have been involved in:.

- Little Harbor Project Communication through this series of Articles
- Little Harbor Project paving operations
- Jerusalem Road wall stabilization project
- Border Street culvert replacement project
- Rework of the Greenbush crossing at Woodside Cemetery
- Completed all Federal, State and Town permitting for Jacobs Meadow Outfall Project
- Constructed Rocky Lane Sidewalk
- MBTA replacement of guard rail on Route 3A so sidewalk can be completed

In addition there have been other minor situations that our Town Manager, Bill Griffin, has asked us to participate in. An interesting note is that we have authored over 300 articles in the Cohasset Mariner, since we started in 2005. Wow, how time flies! From the feedback we have received, in general, our readers seem to find them somewhat interesting and informative. If that's really true, we've met our objectives.

With that being said these articles will disappear for a while and will resume when the construction activities pick up later this winter. We really appreciate your kind words and hope you continue to find our missives informative and useful. And, the Greenbush Guys wish you Happy Holiday Greetings and a very Happy New Year!

Wrapping up a busy 11 months

THE HEDLUND REPORT

SEN. ROBERT HEDLUND

Unfortunately, one of the reasons we have been so busy is that we ignored a number of pressing matters for years until they built up into a full-blown crisis that could no longer be ignored.

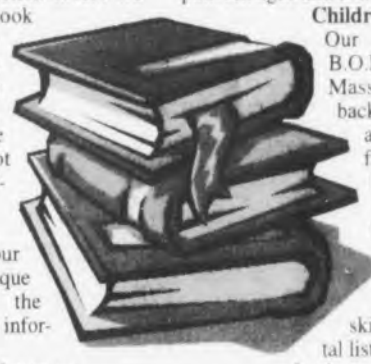
Although the Legislature does not have any formal sessions scheduled until January, both my State House office and Weymouth district office remain open. I am also one of the few legislators who regularly attend and monitor our twice-a-week informal sessions. Please do not hesitate to contact me or my staff with any concerns or questions you may have.

The Senate has had a busy 11 months. Unfortunately, one of the reasons we have been so busy is that we ignored a number of pressing matters for years until they built up into a full-blown crisis that could no longer be ignored. For example, our state leaders enabled chronic mismanagement at the MBTA and Mass Turnpike Authority until both agencies were on the brink of financial collapse. We were also slow to deal with mounting evidence of chronic abuse of the state pension system, as well as the growing number of questionable ethics practices, until voter outrage forced them to act. And years of wasteful and unsustainable spending exacerbated a state budget already hamstrung by the national recession.

Here's a brief update on some of the legislative action from the past year:

- Transportation Reform: I sat on the conference committee that negotiated the final version of this landmark reform effort, which consolidated most of our transportation agencies, and should bring additional accountability, transparency, and long-term cost savings.
- Pension Reform: Although some of the reforms contained within this bill are important – such as eliminating a provision that gives lawmakers who lose an election an enhanced pension – I have been vocal in my belief this bill is merely window dressing and does not go nearly far enough. We failed to cap pension payouts, take steps to reduce abuse of disability pension provisions, or prevent public employees from gaming the system late in their careers to receive enhanced retirement packages. And amendment I offered that would have eliminated windfall pensions for terminated state employees – a change that would have saved millions of additional dollars – was rejected by democratic leadership.
- 40B: Although support among legislators for 40B reform continues to grow, legislative leadership continues to hold up any true reform efforts. This fall I testified on behalf of several bills I filed that would give more control back to local communities, and crack down on developers trying to cheat the system. I also plan on testifying on Dec. 21 against the new 40B regulations proposed by the Patrick Administration that will put our towns at an even greater disadvantage.
- Pandemic Flu: I am currently serving on the conference committee working out differences in the House and Senate versions. I will not vote for any bill that sacrifices our individual liberties for vaguely defined and media-driven health scares.
- Anti-Tax Votes: I opposed the hike in the state sales tax and was only senator to stand up and speak out against the new tax on alcohol sales. My colleagues wouldn't even join with me in requesting we take a roll call vote on the issue. Because 40 percent of the price of alcohol consists of various excise taxes, the new sales tax on alcohol is essentially a tax on a tax.
- Budget Savings: I am proud to have co-sponsored a number of proposals that would have saved the Commonwealth more than $1 billion – money that could have been used to preserve critical social services, or prevented the need for tax hikes. These proposals included mandatory hiring and wage freezes, allowing privatization of some governmental services, and streamlining the sale of surplus state land.
- Local Aid: During the budget debate this year, I stated publicly it was my primary focus to preserve local aid. This stance was one reason why I proposed more than $1 billion worth of savings and spending cuts – so that we could preserve local aid. Unfortunately, most of my colleagues did not agree. One of the many reasons I opposed the sales tax hike was that the revenue was earmarked for an assortment of spending, but not a single dollar went toward local aid.
- Crime Bill: I voted against an 11th hour crime bill that was opposed by all 12 District Attorney's across the state. I will not support any legislation that allows drug dealers, especially those who sell to children, and in school zones, back out on the streets early.
- Veterans Bill: This latest package of benefits for veterans contained a pair of noteworthy initiatives: the creation of a Medal of Liberty to be given to families of Massachusetts soldiers killed in action, and allowing local veterans who serve multiple tours of duty in Iraq and Afghanistan to receive partial Welcome Home bonuses. I am proud to have advocated on behalf of these issues, both of which were proposed by Hingham veterans.
- Octane Ratings: Earlier this year, I introduced a bill on behalf of Cohasset resident and Hingham Harbor Sunoco owner Leland Jenkins that would have defined "regular gas" as gasoline with an octane rating of 87. Doing so would end the growing problem of gas station owners ripping off drivers by luring them in with low prices, but giving drivers who asked for "regular" higher-octane and higher-priced gas. This proposal was adopted by the Patrick Administration this fall.

I am preparing for another busy few months, once formal sessions resume in January. Please be assured that I will continue to keep your best interests in mind with every vote I take.



State Senator Robert Hedlund represents the eight-town Plymouth-Norfolk District that includes Weymouth, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Cohasset, Scituate, Marshfield and Duxbury.

Cohasset item could be headed for space

Cohasset's hometown astronaut Capt. Steve Bowen is heading to space once again. Selectman Ted Carr said he recently spoke to Bowen, who told him the news. No launch date has been set, but Bowen told Carr he hoped to bring something from the town of Cohasset into space with him.

Carr said he was awaiting details from NASA about the requirements for size and dimension, but hoped the community could be involved somehow. His first thought for an appropriate item was the new flag recently made by the Cohasset Historical Society, which has the town seal on it.

During last Saturday's Holiday Stroll in Cohasset Village, a solar LED streetlight was on display. The Cohasset Alternative Energy Committee arranged the demonstration to give residents and merchants a chance to see whether they would like the town to seek grants and donations for installation of the solar LED lights.

Sixty-five people answered the survey during the Holiday Stroll. In response to the question, "Would you like Cohasset Village to have Solar LED streetlights?," 60 people, or 92 percent, said, "Yes," four said, "Maybe," and one said, "No."

All five merchants who came by to answer the survey, two of whom are residents, responded, "Yes." All 16 out-of-town visitors said, "Yes."

Most people simply liked the whole concept. "Looks great, wise idea." The banners on the other side of the photovoltaic panels were important in winning the approval of four residents, including one of those who responded, "Maybe."

Four residents and two visitors specifically liked the quality of light. "Easy on eyes." "Very bright but soft." Three residents, including one who responded, "Maybe," wondered if the light were bright enough.

Sixty-five people answered the survey during the Holiday Stroll.

For the demonstration, the light was in its economy mode because a section of the lamppost was omitted. When the fixtures are installed at their full 12-foot height, the light on the ground underneath the lamp is at about the level experienced Saturday night, but fills a lot more area. Actual installations are designed to ensure that light levels meet or exceed the recommendations of the Illuminating Engineers Society (IES).

Two residents suggested considering using the solar LED lights in other areas — around the pond in the Common and in all public areas. One person said they would like to see the overhead wires buried when installing the solar LED lights. Three residents and four visitors specifically mentioned their enthusiasm for solar energy and saving energy. "Let's go green."

Talking money, one person who responded, "Yes," felt the $8,000 solar LED light fixture was expensive, while another said that "if the economics were even close," he would be in favor. In conversation, one respondent with property in the Village said he would be willing to pay $5,000, if a grant or other contributions would cover the other $3,000.

Two people who answered, "Maybe," were concerned that the design was incompatible with the New England look of Cohasset. The person who said, "No," felt the light spectrum was close to blue and the panel was big.

Next steps for the Alternative Energy Committee include attending a Chamber of Commerce meeting, receiving results from measurement of the sunlight along Main Street, and collecting cost data on the current lighting before making a presentation to the Selectmen.

The demonstration was courtesy of Hurry Associates, a Hingham company that carries a line of SolarOne photovoltaic products manufactured in Framingham, which are used in fixtures made in the U.S. by Phillips HADCO. To find out more about the solar LED streetlight, see the brochure on the HADCO web site: http://www.hadco.com/Hadco/Upload/Content/solar/webLEDbrochure.pdf

Centralized Dispatch Poll

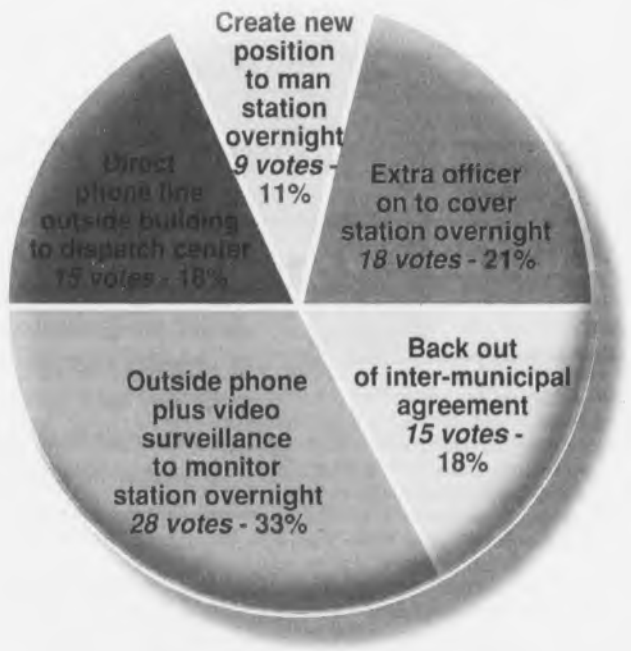
Town officials will be determining how to man the police station overnight once dispatch is centralized in Hingham.

Cohasset has entered into an inter-municipal agreement that will create a centralized police-fire dispatch center at Hingham Town Hall. The Cohasset Mariner is conducting an on-line poll gauging readers' opinions about what the Town should do with the police station overnight after dispatch is moved to Hingham.

There have been 85 votes so far. To vote, visit: www.wickedlocalcohasset.com



What should the Town do with the police station once the dispatch center is moved to Hingham Town Hall?

- Extra officer on to cover station overnight. 21% (18 votes)
- Create new position to man station overnight. 11% (9 votes)
- Direct phone line outside building to dispatch center. 18% (15 votes)
- Outside phone plus video surveillance to monitor station overnight. 33% (28 votes)
- Back out of inter-municipal agreement 18% (15 votes)

Comments:

- I wonder if even a direct line is necessary. How often do people actually come to the police station in an emergency, instead of calling? — John Campbell
- I would have checked an option that said: "Leave that decision up to the Police Chief." – Sheila Evans
- Surely the regional dispatch center permits a reduction of uniformed police officers so that manning the police station at night with only one officer is not an increase in staff. — Murray Campbell

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week.

Beacon Hill Roll Call reports local senators' final roll call attendance records for the 2009 session. No more roll calls are planned for the remainder of the year.

The Senate held 185 roll call votes in 2009. Beacon Hill Roll Call tabulates the number of roll calls on which each senator was present and voting and then calculates that number as a percentage of the total roll call votes held. That percentage is the number commonly referred to as the roll call attendance record.

Only 11 of the Senate's 40 members have 100 percent roll call attendance records. The worst roll call attendance record belongs to Sen. Susan Fargo (D-Acton) who missed 67 roll calls (63.7 percent roll call attendance record).

Rounding out the top five worst: Sens. Cynthia Creem (D-Newton) who missed 40 roll calls (78.3 percent roll call attendance record); Jack Hart (D-Boston) who missed 39 roll calls (78.9 percent roll call attendance record); Frederick Berry (D-Peabody) who missed 34 roll calls (81.6 percent roll call attendance record) and Thomas McGee (D-Lynn) who missed 21 roll calls (88.6 percent roll call attendance record).

LOCAL SENATORS' 2009 ROLL CALL ATTENDANCE RECORDS

The Senate held 185 roll calls in 2009. The percentage listed next to the senator's name is the percentage of roll call votes for which the senator was present and voting. The number in parentheses represents the number of roll calls that the senator missed.

BOTTLED WATER EVERYWHERE - A report by the group Think Outside the Bottle says that Massachusetts spent $527,107 on bottled water for various government entities, offices and agencies around the state. The group is working toward reducing the use of bottled water and encouraging the use of water from public water systems.

The report argues that production of bottled water uses more energy than the production of public drinking water. It notes that bottled water generates large amounts of waste and is simply bad for the environment.

BEHIND THE SCENES JOCKEYING FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL JOB - Jockeying continues behind the scenes among representatives who want to be appointed as interim attorney general if current Democratic Attorney General Martha Coakley should beat GOP Senator Scott Brown in the January 19 special election to fill the late Ted Kennedy's seat. The appointee would serve out the remaining 11 months of Coakley's term and then run for re-election in the 2010 election.

Under state law, a vacancy in the attorney general's office would be filled by a secret ballot vote of the state's 160 representatives and 40 senators. House members outnumber senators 4 to 1. The choice is likely to be a representative.

Some critics say that allowing the Legislature to make the appointment would be the height of hypocrisy. They note that the Legislature in 2004 took away the power of former Gov. Mitt Romney to appoint a temporary replacement to serve as senator if John Kerry won the presidency. The 2004 Legislature replaced that appointment power with a special election, arguing that vacant offices should always be filled by the voters.

The current 2009 Legislature reversed course in September and gave Democratic Gov. Deval Patrick the power to appoint a temporary replacement until a new senator is elected in the special election. Now the Legislature seems ready to use the current system that allows it to appoint a temporary attorney general instead of holding a special election.

DELEO FIRES SOME HOUSE STAFF - House Speaker Robert DeLeo (D-Winthrop) announced that a total of 28 staff positions have been eliminated from the House of Representatives. The cuts were accomplished by firings and by not filling some vacant positions. DeLeo's move also reduced the salary of several House staffers.

Supporters of DeLeo's action say that it is necessary in order to cut the Legislature's internal budget and help close the state's budget deficit during this recession. They note that some representatives who were committee chairs under former Speaker Sal DiMasi were allowed to maintain their large staff which is no longer necessary now that they have been reduced to rank and file members.

Some opponents of the action say that this is pure revenge by DeLeo against many representatives who supported Rep. John Rogers (D-Norwood) DeLeo's opponent during the fight for the speakership. Others say that many staffers were given only a few minutes notice of their layoff and were unceremoniously escorted to their offices by security to gather their belongings and then leave the building.

BAN SALE OF NOVELTY CIGARETTE LIGHTERS (H 4369) - The House gave initial approval to legislation that would ban the sale of toy-like or novelty lighters that appeal to children 10 years of age or younger. These lighters include ones that resemble cartoon characters, toys, guns, musical instruments, vehicles or animals.

Supporters said that children often mistake these lighters for toys and noted that the lighters are responsible for fires, injuries and death.

Tapping into your child's creative potential

CONSERVATORY NOTES

JENNIE MULQUEEN

As both a parent and an educator, I find it frustrating that the pendulum is moving away from embracing diverse learning styles and multiple intelligences.

As Director of Early Childhood Programs at South Shore Conservatory, I am excited to introduce our new Arts Clusters — a variety of up to three consecutive arts-based classes for children aged three to six. These clusters are being offered in lieu of the Kinder Arts concept we launched in the fall, which rolled all the classes together. Now families can opt for one class or up to three in a row!

A parent of two children ages three and five, I understand all too well the need to keep things simple. I am leery of over-scheduling and spending all of our family time together driving hither, thither, and yon for one class here and one class there. On the other hand, in an age of serious budget cuts and higher academic expectations in kindergarten and even preschool, I believe children need to be exposed to the arts and creative process more than ever, or we will no doubt suffer the consequence of raising a generation of kids who do not seem to know themselves or how to express their individuality.

A recent Globe article by Patti Hartigan gets to the heart of the matter: "After years of study and practice, (veteran kindergarten teacher Christine Gerzon) will tell you that five-year-olds don't learn by listening to rote lessons, their bottoms on the chairs. They learn through experience. They learn through play." (August 30, 2009, Pressure Cooker Kindergarten)

As both a parent and an educator, I find it frustrating that the pendulum is moving away from embracing diverse learning styles and multiple intelligences. It has been over 25 years since famed Harvard developmental psychologist Howard Gardner published his groundbreaking Frames of Mind in which he proposes that human beings have many intelligences (eight named), many ways of knowing and understanding the world, and yet I find few parents who have heard of him or his theory!

While I am determined to be a voice for developmentally appropriate and holistic education in the larger cultural realm, I am thrilled and proud to work at an institution that provides a sanctuary for arts education on the South Shore, as the arts are perhaps our most powerful tool for engaging the whole child. Our delightful clusters include Drum & Sing, Curtain Going Up (Drama), Story/Art, Creative Movement, and our newest offering Yoga for Children, created and taught by Hingham's own Meg Durkin. Meg's yoga class provides an effective tool kids can use to manage life's pressures. Yes, even children feel the pressures of everyday life!

What better way to manage life's pressures than to tap into your creative potential, to build competency in all the arts with skills that enable self-knowing and expression? If you have a child ages three to six, I hope you consider checking out our clusters on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, and Wednesday mornings at the Hingham campus. Also please join us on Saturday, Jan. 23 from 9 -11 a.m. for a free Family Arts Festival. When we expose young children to the arts, we plant seeds that take root in the soul and bloom with joy and beauty for a lifetime. Visit us at www.sscmusic.org or www.SSCreativeseeds.org or call 781-749-7565, ext. 33 for more information.

Ransacked Pirates

Pucksters blank Hull

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

The Cohasset hockey team opened on a good note, blanking Hull 3-0 at the Connell MDC Rink in Weymouth on Saturday night.

Hockey

The Skippers scored three times in the second period, including a 5-on-3 shorthanded goal, while rookie netminder Jack Nelson notched his first varsity shutout.

The win was a nice opening test for Cohasset and Nelson, who takes over for Jonny Wade this year.

Brendan Doonan, Andrew McKenna and Anders Goetz scored for Cohasset, with McKenna's coming shorthanded.

McKenna got out on the break and easily flipped the puck in as Hull looked on, stunned.

"I'm impressed," Cohasset coach Bob Walsh said after the win. "After a week of practice the team has shaped up quickly. We're a lot deeper than I thought we'd be."

Cohasset has a number of skilled, experienced players back on both sides.

Forwards Doonan, McKenna and Conor Queenan lead the way offensively, while juniors Brian Scott and Goetz also return.

All five are captains.

All five were South Shore League All-Stars last season.

That means Cohasset won't be sneaking up on anybody, especially after two stunning playoff upsets that took the Skippers into the quarterfinals of the South Sectional tournament, where they fell 6-3 to Blue Hills.

Cohasset was the No. 22 seed after winning three straight games to make the tournament.

"Doonan, McKenna and Goetz are well known," Walsh said. "They play together as a line. As a group they stick handle and control the line very well. They're a core group to build around."

On the defensive side, Cohasset has six solid defensemen including Scott.

For the Skippers, this has been a bit of a banner year as far as numbers go.

Continuing excellence

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

It didn't take long for the Cohasset girls basketball team to get right back into their winning ways.

One game in fact.

The Lady Skippers got 13 points from Meredith Kelly and another 10 from Lindsey Davis on the way to a 67-35 win over East Bridgewater in the season opener.

Girls Basketball

It's no surprise that Cohasset is going to be very good this year.

They won a state title two years ago, and were seconds away from playing for another last year when they lost a buzzer beater to state champion Millis in the Division 4 South Sectional Finals.

Cohasset wasn't devastated by graduation.

The Lady Skippers lost Sammi Lehr, who is currently having an outstanding freshman season at Colby-Sawyer College in New London, N.H., and they also lost Carly Salerno and Kayla Farren. All three were captains.

Beyond that, the same group is back and loaded with senior experience and leadership.

Tori Lehr takes the mantle from sister Sammi at the center/forward position, while Kelly will be looked on for scoring from the off guard position.

Tori has been having a special year on the field so far this year.

She was a big factor for the girls soccer team, anchoring the defense in the fall.

Her size and athleticism will give opponents trouble, especially on the rebounding end.

Kelly was also on the soccer team and was on last year's softball team that won the South Sectional tournament.

Cohasset coach John LeVangie said experience will be a big factor for his team's success.

"Our experience and leadership is great," he said. "We have great senior captains and outstanding juniors. The seniors were all here for our state championship. They know how to play. It may take some time to get our chemistry going, but we should be allright."

Cohasset boys basketball coach Bo Ruggiero

Cohasset basketball coach Bo Ruggiero has been around a long time.

Ruggiero is already a member of the Mass. High School Coaches hall of Fame and he was named the 2008-2009 Division 4 South Coach of the Year for his team's accomplishments last season, when Cohasset went from a last place team to a 15-win playoff team in his first year at Cohasset.

That said, Ruggiero is making no promises this season outside of the fact that his team will be a competitive, hard working and dedicated team that he enjoys working with.

The Skippers will have to be.

This season, the Skippers will be without the services of center Danny Martin, who is already having an outstanding season at WPI, having won two Rookie-of-the-Week awards in his league.

Also gone are John Sturino and Marcus Charles.

"You can't lose Dan Martin's size and not be missed," Ruggiero said. "Or the quickness of Marcus Charles and John Sturino."

Boys Basketball

That was last year though.

Ruggiero is looking to this season.

"We're not a big team, but we're not small either," Ruggiero said. "We're also not fast, but we're not slow. We're not an imposing looking team. We're not going to scare anyone until we play them."

That's where Ruggiero hopes everything comes together.

While there have been changes, there should be a solid mix of experience, youth and athleticism.

Leading the charge will be John Maher, a 6-3 senior center.

"Last year he averaged six points and seven rebounds a game," Ruggiero said. "We're hoping he'll improve on that.He's a co-captain and a great leader. I'm looking forward to John having a successful senior year."

Another returner is junior co-captain Robert Jones.

"Robert is going to be the point man for the offense," Ruggiero said. "He averaged 12 points-per game last season and hit 76 percent from the line. He led the team in steals and assists. This year he's stronger and more mature now. He knows the system. He knows what's expected. Robert will be the catalyst for Cohasset basketball. He's going to be the guy who makes the team go."

Robbie Mahoney also returns.

The 6-2 sophomore will see time at center and power forward.

"I'm hoping he'll be into or close to double digits," Ruggiero said. "He's grown a few inches from last year. Last year he was our seventh man as a freshman."

The three above mentioned players are the three returnees with any real varsity game action lasy year.

That doesn't mean the team is young though.

8th grade hoopsters start season with 5-1 mark

Cohasset's 8th Grade Boys Patriot League Travel Basketball Team has been at play now for two weeks, and has served notice that they will be a title contender again this year. Last year's squad advanced to the Patriot League Semi-Finals before losing a heartbreaker to a strong Bridgewater squad.

This year's Patriot League entry returned 10 players from last year's squad, and with the benefit of Coach Bo Ruggiero's pre season clinics, the team picked up where it left off last year in the season opening Marshfield Thanksgiving Tournament.

The Cohasset Blue stormed through the tourney undefeated, with three hard fought wins. On opening night, the Cohasset Five bested a tough Marshfield host by the score of 39-30. Cohasset was led by center Joe "Buck" Buckley with 8 points, and point guard Brendan "the General" O'Connell with 7 points.

The next day's action saw Cohasset prevail over Norwell by a 3, led by Henry "Chopper" Brown's 10 points, and Mark "Skywalker" Rattenbury's 8 points. The final tourney game was a thriller, as Cohasset beat Brookline at the buzzer by the score of 50-49, with Dakota "D-Train" Achin swishing a clutch corner jumper on a terrific penetration pass from Rocco "X-Factor" Laugelle.

After rolling to a 3-0 start, Cohasset suffered its only loss of the young season on the home floor of last year's defending champions, as Weymouth bested the Boys in Blue in a 44-42 thriller. "Buck" Buckley had another terrific game for Cohasset and scored 14 points, with 12 coming in a second half that saw Cohasset rally from a 10 point deficit.

The next day, Cohasset faced off against Abington, looking for a win against a squad that is always tough. The Cohasset Five put together a wonderful game, and pulled away in the second half for a 39-26 win. The defense was outstanding all game, with particularly strong inside efforts by Liam "LB" Burke and Mark "the Eraser" Brown, and pestering guard defense by Jack "the Magnet" Conte and Ryan "the Glove" McKeon. Buckley and "Chopper" Brown each scored 10 to lead the way on the offensive end, with several hoops courtesy of the sweet passing of Laugelle.

This past weekend, Cohasset took on Pembroke on its home court. The game was close for the first 5 minutes, but Cohasset's full court press keyed a late first half run that left the Boys in Blue comfortably ahead at half. Chris "Hoops" Haggerty lived up to his moniker and led the way with 10 points. O'Connell had 7, and Burke and Rattenbury each chipped in with 6. Elijah "Ups" Pontes, Jack "Stango" Stanganelli, and "the Eraser" Brown played a terrific defensive game inside, as time and again, they denied Pembroke inside looks. Conte again made like a magnet, and he and "Glove" McKeon took turns harassing Pembroke's guards into turnovers.

A big weekend approaches for the squad - a Saturday afternoon tilt at rival Hull, and a Sunday home test with a very strong squad from Silver Lake. Go Blue!

Over the past two seasons, the Lady Skippers are 38-4, including tournament play.

Aside from the leadership, LeVangie feels his team's strength will be defense.

"Our defense and work ethic will be a key to how well we do," he said. "They've committed in the off-season more than any other team. They work hard. The girls love the game. When they get out there they light up. They work hard for two hours a day to be able to play. We've had good momentum off the last two years. Hopefully we'll keep it going."

"The girls love the game. When they get out there they light up."
Cohasset girls basketball coach John LeVangie

With the way the last season ended, losing on a buzzer-beater, the motivation is there.

Tori Lehr and Kelly both had strong outings in that game, by the way, scoring 17 and 14 points respectively.

Lehr also pulled down 16 rebounds in an overtime victory over Hull in the second round of the tournament last year.

Samantha Crough will be another starter for Cohasset.

Other familiar faces include junior center/forward Carli Haggerty, junior point guard Davis, junior point guard Rachel Fredey and Carly Martin, a junior forward.

A few younger players expected to see time are sophomores Anna Seraikis, Ali Farron and Kristin Alexander.

LeVangie said his team will be fun to watch.

"It's going to be a good show," he said. "We're going to press and hustle. We just had a nice scrimmage in Rhode Island (against South Kingstown High School). The girls played well against one of the best teams in Rhode Island. It was a beautiful day. We saw Newport and played well."

Early on, the team has given itself challenges with scrimmages against Marshfield, Duxbury, Brookline and South Kingstown.

They'll be back in action tonight at Carver at 6:30 p.m.

Cohasset's home opener is Tuesday night against Harwich, then on Dec. 28 and 29, Cohasset hosts the Cohasset Holiday Festival, with Sacred Heart, Nantucket and Hull.

Cohasset takes on Nantucket at 7:15 p.m. on Dec. 28 and has Sacred at 5:15 on Dec. 29.

They'll also have a few tough non-league series against Patriot League powers Hanover and Hingham.

Richardson saw limited action with the varsity last year.

Ruggiero said Richardson will make a difference.

"He's grown a couple of inches since last year," Ruggiero said. "He's an offensive threat. He's long and lean. He has a lot of upside to his game. He's been working hard."

The fifth starter will be a familiar name to football fans.

Coming off an 1,800-plus yard season in football, Valentine will be manning the wing for the Skippers.

Checking in at 5-11, 185 for basketball, Valentine will look to get his basketball legs under him after a year away from the sport.

"He's a fine athlete," Ruggiero said of valentine. "He's competitive and he has a presence that will add to our presence. I'm real pleased he's with us. Hopefully he'll get his basketball hands and feet into the swing quickly and he'll shake off the fact that he hasn't played in a while."

Two more seniors are Jeff Charles and Kevin O'Connell.

Both are 5-10 and worked with the varsity last year while playing JV.

Senior Will Lynner, a football captain and offensive lineman, will add some size (6-4, 245) as a backup center and power forward.

This will be Lynner's first season playing basketball.

"At the conclusion of the basketball season last year, Will and Dana expressed to me that they wanted to get into basketball. Will is a raw prospect, but he's got pre unadulterated size. He's willing to learn. He's a hard worker and he always gives his best effort. He'll be a big help coming off the bench."

Other players expected to contribute are Mike Monoco, a 5-7 junior point guard who will back up Jones, junior Jack Carrier and junior Eric Wasel.Wasel and Carrier are also football players.

"Eric Wasel is another young man who had not played basketball at the high school level," Ruggiero said. "He also thought it would be good to play. He'll be a good player after his baptism of fire."

Sophomore Tyrel Jaundoo will also see some court time.

"He's very athletic," Ruggiero said of Jaundoo. "He was on our practice squad as a freshman."

Ruggiero said expectations are high – at lest when it comes to giving everything in practice and during games.

"These are the 13 best basketball players at Cohasset High School," he said. "They're expected to work hard and I expect them to be competitive. No one will outwork us or outclass us."

Ruggiero said that work and skill are the keys to winning.

With his somewhat inexperienced group, winning and losing are a secondary focus.

"There are going to be teams that will be more talented than we are, that work as hard," he said. "In those games, winning is secondary to playing your best. If the other team is bigger and better, they're usually going to win. The key is to keep the competitive attitude, play as hard as you can, and the chips will fall. We're going to press and run. Our big guys will learn as fast as they can."

Ruggiero said Cohasset has been a great place to coach.

"Everyone pulls together for the good of the team," he said. "I've had a very enjoyable experience with the players, support groups, parents. Everyone has been great. I'm enthusiastic about this season. I'm looking forward to the challenge. Not having a lot of experience gives me the opportunity to teach these kids. I feel like a rookie coach again. The kids have great energy. It's enjoyable to have my own energy enhanced by the kids I have. It will be fun working with the dynamic of this group. I love putting the team together, breaking things down in drills, teaching. Working with a group like this is like putting together a CD. You have the singer, producer, the lyrics. Everyone works together. The only difference with basketball is that there's someone on the other side trying to stop you."

Cohasset opens the season on Friday against West Bridgewater in a tournament at South Shore Regional Vocational in Hanover.

FROM HOCKEY, PAGE 17

Walsh said there are now 31 players in the program, allowing the team to play a junior varsity schedule as well as the varsity.

There were also big numbers at tryouts.

The biggest question Walsh had before the season was his goalie situation.

Wade was one of the top goalies in the area.

"After the season ended I was wondering what we were going to do for a goalie," Walsh said. "Jack came out and went to goalie camps and has made a huge commitment. He's a rookie goalie and he'll only get better. He had the shutout to open the season. Hopefully he'll peak at the end of the season."

One strength of this group is their smarts.

"These guys, their hockey IQ is up there," Walsh said. "You see a guy like Brian Scott collect the puck and not panic or rush anything. Brian will look around like a quarterback and find the open man for the pass. They play like that. When the kids are this smart, it makes it fun. You can teach new concepts and work drills in practice, then watch them click and see the kids take those concepts into games. It's a blast seeing guys executing plays."

This season the Skippers will be doing more of that, as Walsh is changing a few things around to keep things fresh.

"Teams know us," he said. "They've seen us play. We're going to change our system some to frehen it up and make it harder on opponents. "

In the Hull victory, Walsh showed his offense how much he trusts them by leaving three offensive players out to kill the 5-on-3 penalty.

That turned out to be a great call.

"The guys have the wheels to skate," Walsh said. "It's nice to have the depth to be able to call on guys like that. We didn't have any defensemen out there."

The goal was even bigger considering that Cohasset led just 1-0 at the time and Hull's netminder can be a game-changing goalie.

One Hull fan summed up the frustration of falling behind in that fashion.

"That was a punch in the face," the fan said.

Another player Walsh said could be a game-changer is senior forward Harry Cipolla.

"Harry used to be a guy who I'd try to get in there," he said. "He's on fire now. He's really impressed me. He's shown up, gotten real strong skating and has shown good handling skills and confidence. It's fun watching him play. He'll get regular playing time now."

Freshman Jack Kuppens has impressed enough to make the varsity. He's the only freshman on the squad.

For Walsh, this is the first senior class he's been with four years.

His plan hasn't changed though.

"Initially we want to make the tournament," he said. "That's our major goal. Another main goal is what I told the boys after the first and second period. I told them to play the way they're supposed to play. Play the game right. Don't worry about wins and losses. If they do that and play the way they're capable, they'll be fine.

Cohasset plays Carver at Bridgewater Ice Arena on Saturday at 6 p.m.

Checking mailboxes for those dreaded progress reports

LIFE AT CHS

SEAN MACCARTHY

Tuesday was a good day. The student council met on Tuesday at lunch. There were lots of talks about the Junior-Senior Semi-Formal that will take place late in January.

Yoooo dood. So all this week all us guys and chicks were all up in the club with each other. Pauly D was goin' crazy on the dance floor, guido stomping all night. Me and my boy, the Situation, were fist pumpin' like champs all night long.

Woops…sorry about that. That's "Life at Jersey Shore", not "Life at CHS". By the way, check out the show "Jersey Shore" on MTV…it is hands down the funniest show in the history of shows that aren't trying to be funny. That's been a show that tons of people are talking about at Cohasset High School, mainly because we all find it hilariously pathetic.

On Monday, teachers prepared to send out those dreaded progress reports to those that need it. I got a few but its okay, because I stalked the mailbox all week. Right when I saw that letter from Cohasset High School, I set it on fire (DISCLAIMER: The Cohasset Mariner does not support kids burning progress reports to hide them from parents). Remember, the Coach Klein from the movie The Waterboy said it best, "What mama don't know, won't hurt her." Man, I really hope my mom forgets to read this article this week…

Tuesday was a good day. The student council met on Tuesday at lunch. There were lots of talks about the Junior-Senior Semi-Formal that will take place late in January. Two heavily debated themes were for the dance was to have a Masquerade Ball or a Roaring Twenties Dance. I will give you more information on this topic next week as more information is cleared up. Whatever theme we choose, its sure to be an awesome event as the Student Council has really stepped up this year and delivered a healthy dose of awesomeness to the school.

And then came Wedn. Get it? It was a half day so I spelt out "Wedn" instead of Wednesday…you know because "Wedn" is half of Wednesday…yeah that's not that funny. Anywho, Wednesday was indeed a half-day. Shortened classes and getting out of school just equals a sweet, sweet day unless you are on the boy's basketball team. Practice at 11:45? That's unfortunate.

Speaking of athletics, this week was the start of most of the winter sports. The wrestling team, hockey team, boys and girls basketball teams, swimming team, and gymnastics team have kicked off their seasons in style. After all of those fall sports teams dominated, it is going to be interested to see how well the winter sports teams do. My prediction: All those teams are gonna run show. Okay, so maybe that isn't the most specific prediction in the world, but does it look like I work for ESPN? Answer: Nope.

Thursday was the day of the Winter Concert. The Cohasset High School band and chorus showcased their musical talents in front of many Cohasset residents and loved ones. In addition to spreading joy through music, the music department also spread joy to others by making the admission fee for the event one non-perishable food item to donate to those less fortunate. It is a great cause and a great show. Thanks to all those that came and helped out.

Friday was a day filled with anxiety. Why is everyone anxious? Because it is the last day before the last weekend before the Christmas Vacation. Oh no! Did I just say Christmas Vacation? I meant Winter break…oh wait…no I didn't, because it is Christmas Vacation. You know the best vacation that isn't summer. I am so excited! WOO HOO!!! I think I am just gonna cut out now and leave you with that final burst of excitement. See you later, folks.

Sean MacCarthy totally still believes in Santa…

Cohasset schools were alive with the sound of music!

THE ARTS

KATHRYN HILLMAN

Their set began with "Afterburn," a march that portrayed a pilot's joy at taking off in a jet.

Cohasset has been treated to a plethora of winter concerts this past week. Students from the Cohasset Middle School, the Deer Hill School, and the Osgood School all performed.

The Middle School Winter Concert kicked things off on Wednesday, featuring the band and chorus, both of which were directed by Cherie Goldstein. The sixth-grade chorus opened the evening with "Rise Up, O Flame," sung like a hymn in a round, with a strong harmony. They followed with "Candle of Peace," accompanied Joe Buckley and Sophie Arnold on the flute. The chorus and instruments complemented each other beautifully. They sixth-grade chorus was followed by the seventh and eighth-grade chorus, who started with "Lost in the Night." The song is complex, with multiple themes, including a call-and-response section between the girls and the boys. They proceeded to perform the classic winter song "Let it Snow," featuring the sopranos and altos. To finish off the choral portion of the evening, the two choruses joined to sing "Ani Ma'amin" and "Happy Winter." "Ani Ma'amin" is a traditional Hebrew song, accompanied by Madeline Blackburn on violin. The violin added a wonderful dimension to the choral part. The final song, Happy Winter, was an upbeat take on "Frosty the Snowman" which left everyone feeling in the holiday spirit.

The second portion of the evening was given over to the sixth-, seventh-, and eigth-grade bands. Their set began with "Afterburn," a march that portrayed a pilot's joy at taking off in a jet. The percussion provided a firm foundation, on which the brass section was able to build a powerful piece. The kettledrums and timpani added a nice effect. This was followed by "Theme from the Surprise Symphony" by Josef Haydn, in the classical style. This was followed by "Peace Like A River," a slow-moving, relaxed spiritual, Starsplitter Fanfare, a march inspired by a supernova that featured the brass section, and finally, The Angels Mix. The Angels Mix is an "intense rock groove" as the student who announced it said, and he could not have described it better. A combination of "Hark the Heralds Angels Sing" and "Adeste Fideles," the driving-rock rhythm had the whole audience groovin'.

The concert was well received by the enthusiastic audience. The organization by Cherie Goldstein was excellent, and the piano accompaniment by Jeff Williams was superb. The students did a terrific job.

The following day was the Deer Hill School Holiday Concert, featuring the fourth- and fifth-grade advanced chorus, the third-grade chorus, and the fifth-grade band. The Advanced Chorus opened the night with "Sambalele" — a Brazilian folk tune, which incorporated singing, instrumental music, and choreography. The students processed in playing hand drums, bongos, wood blocks, and cowbells, while synchronizing their steps. The chorus laid down its own beat to an otherwise a cappella song. Following this, the chorus sang Dona Nobis Pacem, ("Give us your peace"). Camptown Ladies followed – a traditional, spirited American folk tune accompanied by chorus director Ben Mafera on piano. The Advanced Chorus concluded with the classic "Jingle Bell Rock." This upbeat and festive holiday song was the perfect ending to a well-put together set by the fourth and fifth-grade students.

The fifth-grade band took the stage next, performing a set of two songs: "Jingle Bells" and "Merry Christmas to All." The former featured a strong melody and a flowing harmony throughout the piece, created by complementing instruments layered on top of each other. "Merry Christmas to All" was an arrangement of "Up on the House Top," with call-and-response between the wind instruments and the percussion, which contributed to the strong melody throughout the piece.

The evening was wrapped up by the third-grade chorus, or rather, third-grade class, as they are all in the chorus. Under the direction of Ben Mafera, they began their set with "Deta Deta (The Moon)" — a Japanese folk song. Sung in both English and Japanese, the song incorporated both singing and hand-movements. This was followed by a spirited "Chanukah Song," "Light the Little Candles." They continued with the atmosphere In the Bleak Midwinter, by Gustav Holst. The chorus displayed beautiful harmony. The final song of the evening was (the creatively named) Pizza Pizza Daddy-O, an American folk song that appears to have started out life as jump rope song. It was very creative and the students seemed to really enjoy singing it. It is particularly interesting, as this is Mr. Mafera's first concert as the Deer Hill School choral director. He said that he "…was very, very impressed with how the fourth and fifth grades were doing." He also complimented the third graders' high energy and their skill at singing a cappella. Mr. Biagini was similarly complimentary: "It was really fun and I was really pleased with how the kids performed." I think everyone could agree with that; the performance was terrific.

The final performance of the week was held on Friday, Dec. 11, at the Osgood School. The kindergarten and first-grade class were directed by Rose Hathon and Mr. Mafera directed the second grade class. The Kindergarten class opened the concert with a set of five songs including "All American Me and You," "I'm Grateful," and "Penguin Polka;" all very spirited and upbeat songs. This was followed by "Do You Know About Hanukkah?" The set was completed with the classic "Santa Claus Is Coming To Town." The first-grade class began shortly afterwards with "Grateful to be American," a patriotic look at the season's meaning. This was followed by a few "winter themed" songs such as "If I Could Fly Like A Snowflake," "For the Winter," and the classic "Bring A Torch Jeanette Isabella." After a festive (and well-known) Hanukkah song "Festival of Lights," the chorus finished up with "Celebrate With Joy."

The second grade concluded the concert, opening with the amusing and brief song "Jingle is a Happy Bell," which is essentially "Jingle Bells" from the perspective of the bell. This was followed by "Hanukah Time," the dynamic "Jolly Old St. Nicholas," and "The Polar Bear Song," based on the tune and lyrics of "Bicycle Built for Two". The final song of the concert, "Must Be Santa" had the students singing a duet with Mr. Mafera playing the guitar. The concert was excellent and the students showed a lot of enthusiasm and talent.

The Cohasset schools have turned out to be a powerhouse of talent, and the town was able to enjoy it all this past week.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
DEC. 27, 2004

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The New Year brings challenges that can change many things in your life. You need to be prepared not only to confront them, but also to deal with what happens afterward.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You have what it takes to set your goals quite a bit higher this year. Learn what you need to know and put what you learn into your efforts. A partner offers loving support.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) In true Gemini Twin fashion, you're conflicted about a decision you know you'll have to make in this New Year. Best advice: Get the facts before you make any commitment.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A friend offers you an exciting opportunity for this New Year. Although your positive aspects are strong in most respects, caution is advised. Investigate before you invest.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You can make this New Year a roaring success. Start by readjusting your goals to reflect the changes in the economy. Your den-mate offers both wise and loving support.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The New Year brings new opportunities for change. But you need to be ready to move from the comfortable status quo to the challenging unknown. It's up to you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your most important New Year's resolution should be to work out problems with a family member in order to avoid continuing misunderstandings. Do it soon, for both of your sakes.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The New Year has much to offer the intensely determined Scorpian, who isn't afraid to take on challenges and stay with them until they surrender their rewards.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You'll have many fine opportunities in this New Year. But be warned: Reject offers of "help." You work best when you're free to be your own creative self.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The New Year offers changes that you might feel you're not quite ready for. Best advice: Deal with them one step at a time, until you've built up your self-confidence.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Travel is a dominant aspect of the New Year. This could mean relocating to another city (or even another country) in connection with your education or your career.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) This New Year brings news about a change you've been anticipating. You might have a problem persuading a loved one about your new plans, but he or she will soon go along with them.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for making people feel safe and protected. You would make an excellent youth counselor.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Christmas blues got you down?

While many are whistling Christmas carols, swilling eggnog, and gearing up for holiday parties, many of us find the holidays especially difficult. Some may be grieving loved ones, memories, or personal losses. Others may be dreading the annual family gathering and the stressful emotions they sometimes generate. Still others may be anticipating the disappointment of unrealized hopes and expectations.

St. Stephen's is offering a special service tonight (Dec 18, Friday) at 7 p.m. for those in the community who are struggling with the holidays because of personal loss, grief, or the "Christmas blues."

Offered for the first time this year, "Christmas Losses, Christmas Light: An Advent Service of Anticipation," is a "quiet and contemplative way of recognizing how difficult this time of year can be, particularly with the added stress of economic loss that so many are experiencing," said the Rev. Margot Critchfield, rector of St/ Stephen's. "It's a service that creates a very sacred and safe space in which to acknowledge our feelings of sadness, loss and grief—while anticipating the coming Light of Christmas."

Christmas Losses, Christmas Light is open to everyone in the community, regardless of where they are on their faith journey.

Rev. Critchfield has had a number of losses in her own life, from the death of her first child 22 years ago to the death of her mother last June. "I appreciate the need to honor our losses in order to heal. There are no shortcuts around grief,"

The Rev. Critchfield was introduced to this service at a parish she served in Washington, D.C., where members of the prayer team and the clergy designed the service together. "It includes quiet music, scripture readings, a lovely and gentle ceremony where folks are invited to light a candle in memory of a loved one, and the sacrament of Holy Communion," she said.

Christmas Losses, Christmas Light is open to everyone in the community, regardless of where they are on their faith journey. "Please be sure to say that seekers and doubters are always welcome," Rev. Critchfield emphasized, "We think it's so important for folks to understand that faith isn't a pre-requisite to experiencing God, it's what happens as a result of experiencing God!"

Cruella cuts loose

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Rachel York stars in "The 101 Dalmatians Musical" at the Citi Performing Arts Center Wang Theatre, 270 Tremont St., Boston, Dec. 23-27.

The mere mention of the name Cruella De Vil will send chills up the spines of even the most courageous canines, not to mention their owners. After all, the dog-napping De Vil doesn't covet other peoples' pets for companionship – she likes to turn man's four-legged best friends into fur coats.

The villainess with the half-moon pastry hairstyle first appeared in the 1956 children's book, "The One Hundred and One Dalmatians" by Dodie Smith, and was immortalized in the 1961 animated feature "One Hundred and One Dalmatians" where she was voiced by Betty Lou Gerson. A 1996 live-action remake of that Walt Disney classic starred Glenn Close. The story of Pongo and Perdita and their large litter of purloined puppies is now a live musical, with a score by Styx front man Dennis DeYoung, opening next week at Boston's Wang Theatre starring Rachel York as the pelt-coveting Cruella, and featuring a cast of 30, plus 15 dalmatians.

York is a bona-fide Broadway leading lady with starring roles in "City of Angels," "Les Miserables," "Victoria, Victoria," "Dirty Rotten Scoundrels," and "Sly Fox." She also memorably played Lucille Ball in the 2003 CBS-TV movie, "Lucy." In a telephone conversation last week from a Dallas tour stop, the 38-year-old Orlando native said she was having fun playing a less-than-likeable character.

Rachel York

Town Commons: Do you remember when you first become aware of "101 Dalmatians?"

Rachel York: My first memory is seeing the movie, but I know I read the book, too. As a kid, I can even remember doing impersonations of Cruella De Vil for my family.

TC: What do think of Cruella De Vil?

RY: I think I've always loved the character, because she is just so out there and over-the-top, you can't look away from her. When I first heard they were auditioning for "The 101 Dalmatians Musical," I avoided the films so that they wouldn't be fresh in my mind. I just knew that I had the Cruella De Vil character somewhere in me and that I was ready to play her. I devised my interpretation, with help from our director, the amazing Jerry Zaks, and then I watched the animated version just to see how we were doing. My Cruella is inspired by strong females like Bette Davis, Shirley Bassey, Eartha Kitt, and Anne Baxter in "The Ten Commandments." Our Cruella still has the pallid grey complexion, of course, but she's also very glamorous.

TC: You and your fellow cast members are performing on stilts to allow audiences to see life from a dog's point of view. What's that like?

RY: They're 15-inch stilts and they weigh about 15 pounds each so it took some time to get used to them. I have a chance to get a real work-out and be ridiculously over the top every time I put on the stilts. I think they give Cruella more power, too, which is fun to play.

TC: People of a certain age know Dennis DeYoung as a songwriter and founding member of the rock group Styx ("Lady," "Come Sail Away," "Mr. Roboto.") Tell us about his score for this show?

RY: One of the highlights of this whole experience has been the chance to do a great variety of music by Dennis DeYoung which includes a terrific reggae number called "Be a Little Braver." I also have three of my own numbers including "Hot," which I do sort of like Marilyn Monroe in "Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend," "Hail to the Chief," and "Cruella Gets Her Way" which really allow me to cut loose vocally.

TC: Your canine co-stars have their own customized tour bus complete with grooming station and portable playground. Are you concerned that they might upstage you?

RY: They don't just have their own bus, they also have personal assistants. I'm not too worried about sharing the stage with them, however, because I mug more than any of the real dalmatians ever could.

Local bands rock the holidays

A Christmas Miracle benefits Cranberry Hospice

By Casey Meserve
CMESERVE@CNC.COM

PLYMOUTH – One crazy idea fell right into place for Mark Bryant.

It was just before Halloween, and Bryant, a music producer and owner of SeaSound Recording Studio in Plymouth, was going to lunch with Cat from The Cheap Seats radio show on COOL 102 FM when he learned that Bob Dylan had a new CD of traditional Christmas songs.

"Now there's an idea," he thought, and mentioned the idea to Cat.

"You are crazy," she said.

"That was good enough for me," Bryant said later.

But over the next month, Bryant brought together 19 local bands for one extra-long recording session, and recorded 19 traditional and original holiday tunes for the CD A Christmas Miracle. Bryant also found a partner to receive the CD's proceeds: Cranberry Hospice, which provides end of life care for South Shore residents, and Fragile Footprints which helps young children undergoing treatment for life-threatening illnesses. Both are operated by Jordan Hospital.

"Neither of us really approached each other. It just kind of fell into place, not unlike everything about this CD," Bryant said. "We had some ideas of who we wanted to work with, and believe it or not, the people we wanted to give the proceeds to originally just wouldn't return our phone calls! About a week later I was having an ale with Chris Smalley, who is head of marketing at Jordan. He told me about The Festival of Trees and Fragile Footprints, and I was sold. I just thought it was such a great cause for this time of year. Who ever thinks about children requiring hospice care? But it does happen, and it is an amazingly sad scenario for anyone and everyone involved."

Randy and the Oak Trees is one of 22 local bands featured on A Christmas Miracle – a just-released Christmas CD that will benefit two local charities.

The Cape band Funktapuss is one of dozens of bands featured on A Christmas Miracle, produced by Mark Bryant of SeaSound Studios.

Cat, host of WCIB's The Cheap Seats on Cool 102FM, and Mark Bryant, of SeaSound Recording Studio in Plymouth, celebrated the release of A Christmas Miracle with the 22 local bands featured on the CD.

Bands include Brian Hitchings and Jim Calandrella, Tripping Lily, Cheryl Devaux, Randy and The Oak Trees, Funktapuss, Jupiter Ray, The Jackson Weatherbee Band, The Sardonics, Sara Leketa, McCarthy, Richards & Legge, Scott Damgaard, Shaun Dever, Tex, Mad Dog and Cat, The Ticks, Meat Depressed, The Greenheads, Liz Solomon, The Gobshites, and The Jonee Earthquake Band. Three bonus tracks were recorded by Chandler Travis Philharmonic, Entrain, and Three Day Threshold.

"Most of the artists came to us," Bryant said. "Thanks to Cat's history and knowledge of the local music scene, she was able to contact some heavy hitters that were very generous to us. Really, once people knew that bands like Entrain and Chandler Travis were to be on the CD, word spread like wildfire."

Most of the bands are from the Plymouth area and Cape Cod, but a couple of bands traveled from Manchester, N.H., and Newington, Conn., to perform on the CD.

"All in all we had 19 bands and soloists join us for the CD," Bryant said.

The three bonus tracks were recorded prior to the November sessions.

The CD has been in stores for a couple of weeks but the reception has already been amazing, Bryant said.

"I can't remember being a part of a production that has received such accolades. At least once a day we are getting phone calls and e-mails and Facebook messages from people saying that they love the CD."

Bryant said he was amazed at the quality of the performances, given that each band had only an hour to record its song. Often a band will take 12 hours to record just one song.

"I was under the assumption that if these musicians want to come in and record a tune, then that is a great start. However, once the bands came in and started recording I was just blown away. I even posted on the second night of recording how humbled I was to have such incredible musicians in my studio and working on the project with me."

Tracks include covers of "Santa Will Find You" by Tripping Lily and "Silent Night" by Sara Leketa, and originals such as "Funky Christmas" by Funktapuss.

Mixing, mastering took only four days, when it usually takes between six and eight weeks.

"We did the entire project in 11 days, including Thanksgiving," Bryant said.

The CD costs $10, and $2 from each sale goes to Cranberry Hospice. Cranberry Hospice also received $200 from the project's sponsors T-Bones Roadhouse, the law firm of Winokur, Serkey and Rosenberg, Tiny and Sons Glass, Bobbie's Cleaning Services, Wood Palace Kitchens, Cape Auto and COOL 102.

NAME: Caitlin Burke
SCHOOL: Duxbury
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: The Dartmouth College-bound Burke led the Green Dragons in goals scored and was a major force on the front line. Her dazzling footwork and ability to get open at will, Burke also always knew where her teammates were on the field when she didn't have a good look at the net. She created scoring opportunities not only for herself, but for her wings.

NAME: Vicky Dinatale
SCHOOL: Weymouth
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Center back
STATS: She is a three time first team Bay State League All-Star. Probably the best center back in the league. Two-time South Sectional champion.

NAME: Sam Cristoforo
SCHOOL: Senior GRADE: Rockland

SCHOOL: Scituate
GRADE: Senior

NAME: Shannon Loschiavo
SCHOOL: Braintree
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Midfield

NAME: Emily Fougere
SCHOOL: Scituate
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Midfield
STATS: Fougere had numerous big goals for Scituate out of the midfield, all the while controlling the game both offensively and defensively. NAME:
Shannon Conneely
SCHOOL: Weymouth
GRADE: Sophomore
POSITION: Forward

GRADE: Junior
POSITION: Midfielder
STATS: Manning made the Bay State League All-Star squad as a first team selection. This year she made the switch from Center Back to Midfield. She was second on the team in points. Coach John Macintyre called her extremely versatile. She is a two-time South Sectional champion.

NAME: Emily Brook
SCHOOL: Duxbury
GRADE: Junior
POSITION: Goalie
STATS: When you play in goal in the Patriot League, you're bound to get pelted with shots, especially by the likes of Whitman-Hanson, Silver Lake, and Scituate. But Brook barely budged. She registered six shutouts during the regular season and two in the Division 2 South Sectional tournament.

NAME: Liz Leahy
SCHOOL: Hingham
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Midfield
STATS: Leahy, a second-time Patriot League All-Star, was named unanimously Hingham's MVP this season and was one of the most dominating midfielders in the area.

NAME: Kara O'Connell
SCHOOL: Norwell
GRADE: Senior
POSITION: Stopper
STATS: Head Coach Bruce Emerson said of O'Connell, "In 26 years, she's the best stopper back I've had." That sums up O'Connell's play. Her footwork, the way she saw the field, and her ability to step up as a holding midfielder proved vital for the South Shore League champions.

Christmas card déjà vu

Couples have exchanged the same card for 38 years

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The exchange of Christmas cards is a tradition many take part in this time of year. It's a chance to recognize new and long-standing friendships and celebrate the season.

"This is a friendship that's lasted a very long time."
— Nick Waterman

For two couples — whose friendship has endured nearly five decades — they have a twist on the Christmas card tradition. Cohasset's Martha and Bob Hurtig and Scituate's Eleanor and Nick Waterman have been exchanging the same Christmas card for 38 years.

Election 2010

Carlson to run; Dormitzer to step down

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Come April there will be some new faces on some of the high profile elected boards in town government. Who those faces will belong to will become clearer over the next month and a half — but some incumbents have already decided to not to seek an another term.

Selectman Ralph Dormitzer and School Committee member Lucia Flibotte told the Mariner this week they do not intend to seek re-election.

The election field will begin to take place after the first of the year. The Town Clerk will begin handing out nomination papers to potential candidates beginning Thursday, Jan. 7.

The last three town election seasons have been relatively quiet with few or no races for seats on town boards. During the 2007, 2008 and 2009 elections, seats on Board of Selectmen have gone uncontested. This past April, two first-term School Committee members were elected without any competition. In fact, the only race for an elected position in the last two years was for a seat on the Sewer Commission in 2008.

This year could be different. The Weekend storm delivers on wintry promise

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The official first day of winter had yet to come, but Mother Nature didn't look at the calendar. As residents well know, this past weekend's snowstorm – the first big one of the season – dumped about a foot of snow in Cohasset and the South Shore.

"It makes our job a lot easier when cars aren't on the road."
— Carl Sestito, DPW superintendent

Beginning on Saturday night and continuing well into Sunday, the snow fell fast and furious at times. The Department of Public Works worked through the night and into the next day to get – and keep – the roads clear.

There are about 40 miles of accepted roads in town and over 11 miles of private ways that the Department of Public Works, headed by Carl Sestito, have the responsibility to keep safe for passage for emergency vehicles and residents.

Sestito said his crew all came in around 1a.m. on Sunday morning and dispersed to the streets of Cohasset by Tim Cavanaro, 14, of Cohasset chips away at ice in front of All the Best, the store where he works after school on Tuesday. Snow accumulated around an inch and a half per hour during the weekend storm leaving more than a foot of snow in just 10 hours as winds gusted over 40 mph.

Weekend storm lives up to wintry promise

2a.m. Over 20 pieces of equipment, including six plow and sander combos, 16 contracted plow trucks and several front-end loaders.

"We usually like to get a layer of sand and salt down so the snow doesn't stick to the road, but the snow just came down too fast," and they decided to switch to plowing the roads, Sestito said.

The winding and narrow roads that make Cohasset quaint, also make the roads difficult to plow.

"Most of the private ways – there's 11 miles of them – are the worst headaches," Sestito said. But, the crews head out and try to get to everywhere as soon as possible.

"We try to do everybody at the same time, it makes it so much easier," Sestito said, adding in case there is an emergency all the roads need to be at least opened up to allow emergency vehicles to pass.

The fact the storm fell on a Sunday gave the DPW crews additional time to clean up before business as usual resumed on Monday.

The fact the storm fell on a Sunday gave the DPW crews additional time to clean up before business as usual resumed on Monday.

"The residents were very cooperative in staying home and letting us to our job," Sestito said. "It makes our job a lot easier when cars aren't on the road."

The school department gave the towns a little extra time on Monday morning to ensure the safety of the roads. Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh declared a two-hour start time delay on Monday morning.

Emergency response was still up and running during the weekend long storms. Each winter the fire department asks residents to adopt a fire hydrant: find the nearest hydrant and shovel it out. In case of a fire in your neighborhood, clear access to a fire hydrant can save precious moments.

The fire department does make its way around town following a snowstorm, but it does take a couple of days before they are able to get to them all.

At the very least, the major snowstorm ensured most of the northeast of a "white" Christmas.

Is Sestito wishing for more snow for Christmas?

"Absolutely not. I wish it was April!" he said.

Maintaining maintenance

Subcommittee looking at ways to improve department

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

It was more than five years ago that the town moved the maintenance of the town's facilities out of each department and created a centralized facilities management department. Cohasset was and is the first in area towns to centralize this town function.

A Board of Selectmen subcommittee recently performed a review of the department in an effort to find ways it could be improved.

Facilities Manager Brian Adams is the town's first and only facilities manager. Selectmen chair Paul Carlson made clear from the outset the review of the department was not a criticism of his work or his department's work.

Carlson and Selectmen vice chair Karen Quigley met with Adams and many of the department heads during their investigation.

"Everybody we met with agreed that the facilities department needs more resources to get the whole job done right," Carlson said, adding the lack of funding may limit what the town can add to the facilities department.

However, Carlson and Quigley did find some items that could be addressed without significant funding.

First, the facilities manager does not have a written job description.

"The lack of job description causes confusion and misunderstanding among the department heads," Carlson said.

Further, but in the same vein, responsibility for each town asset from buildings to athletic facilities to parking lots to culverts needs to be more clearly defined. During the investigation, they found fire personnel do much of the work in their building and an overlap of responsibility in the schools between the facilities maintenance department, the DPW and the building custodians.

The Facilities Maintenance department office is currently located at the middle-high school, but Adams and the sub-committee would like to see it moved to another location. However, the town does not currently have the capability to remotely access the climate control and security systems for the school buildings outside of the school buildings. An IT plan is currently underway to, in part, address this issue.

According to the review, Adams said he can save the town money by monitoring and analyzing all the building's energy bills rather than having each department handle it on their own.

Carlson and Quigley also requested Adams work with the Alternative Energy Committee to identify and evaluate the cost effectiveness of alternative energy options and identify possible grant opportunities.

On the wish list for additional personnel for the department is a full-time HVAC person to maintain all the buildings' climate control systems and an administrative assistant.

On the capital budget side, there are several outstanding items related to the facilities: the town hall air conditioner is on "its last legs," the town hall needs a new fire alarm system, the Osgood School hot water heater needs to be replaced, and the library needs new gutters.

Quigley said a comprehensive plan for long-term maintenance and capital budget expenditures for each building should be developed so the town can then prepare for those costs.

"A comprehensive approached could lead to savings and less surprises," Quigley said.

Carlson agreed, "the cheapest dollars spent are preventative maintenance dollars."

Carlson and Quigley will be taking their review of the facilities management department to the School Committee, the Advisory Committee, the Capital Budget Committee, the Alternative Energy Committee and the Library Trustees in the coming months to gather input.

Police Beat

Flimflam at local business being investigated

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

A Route 3A business reported it had been the victim of a flimflam (swindle), police said. A customer purchased two cases of shingles from the store and then returned them for a refund of $64 for each case.

Two days later, the store discovered that while the boxes appeared to have shingles — underneath the shingles were rocks. Police have the identity of the alleged thief, a 29-year-old Scituate man, and detectives are following up. The flimflam was reported at 1:04 p.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 16).

MV accidents

• At 6:55 a.m. on Monday (Dec. 14) a 2001 Mitsubishi operated by a 46-year-old Hull woman slid on the ice and hit the median at the railroad crossing on lower King Street. She was not injured but her car had to be towed, police said. The accident did not affect the operation of the train.

• At 8:28 a.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 16) there was a two-car accident involving a 2009 Toyota Highlander, driven by a 37-year-old Marshfield woman, and a 2010 Ford pickup operated by a 60-year-old Cohasset man. Police said both vehicles were backing out of driveways opposite one another on Forest Avenue at the same time when they backed into each other. There were no injuries but the Highlander had to be towed, police said.

Stolen truck

Police are investigating the reported theft of a 1988 GMC dump truck that was doing site work off Heritage Lane, a new development off Beechwood Street. A 50-year-old Milton man reported the truck stolen at 3:56 p.m. on Monday (Dec. 14). The information on the truck was entered into the National Crime Information Center (NCIC).

Sugar in tank

A 64-year-old Scituate woman who is employed at a business off Route 3A, went to the station to report that someone had put sugar in the gas tank of her 2007 Cadillac CTS. She discovered the vandalism when she came out of work at midnight. Police are reviewing video surveillance tapes of the parking lot. The victim did not report having a dispute with anyone. At this point, police are not sure if it was a random or targeted act.

MV stops/summonses

• Police are summonsing a 28-year-old Quincy man, who was operating a 1991 Buick Le Sabre, for operating without insurance and with a suspended registration. The officer pulled the Buick over at about 10:19 p.m. on Monday (Dec. 14) on Chief Justice Cushing Highway after the officer observed the car exit Cohasset Plaza without using a directional. A registry computer check showed the vehicle's registration was suspended and the car had no insurance. The car was towed.

• A 39-year-old Cohasset woman is being summonsed for operating with an expired license and for failure to stop at a stop sign. Police said the 2006 Cadillac Escalade went through the stop sign at Cushing and Pleasant streets. Police stopped the car and a computer check showed the woman's license was expired. She called her husband who took possession of the car so it did not have to be towed, police said. The incident took place at 7:09 p.m. on Friday (Dec. 18).

Protective custody

A 46-year-old Scituate man was taken into protective custody and held for 12 hours at the station until he sobered up following an incident at Shaw's last week. Shaw's called police at 3:02 p.m. on Tuesday (Dec. 15) about a man who appeared to be intoxicated and who had fallen inside the store. Police said he was highly intoxicated and initially was unable to provide identification.

Mooning cars

An officer talked to a couple of teens in the vicinity of a reported "mooning" incident last Wednesday (Dec. 16) at about 12:50 p.m. on Sohier Street. A caller reported that a group of kids were "mooning" vehicles that passed by. Although the teens did not admit to being the perpetrators – they got the message to cease this type of activity, police said.

MV stop/arrest

A 48-year-old Cohasset man, who was known to police to have a suspended license, was arrested after he was observed driving a Dodge Shadow last week. The traffic stop was made at 10:46 a.m., Friday (Dec. 18) at S. Main Street and West Gate Lane. He is charged with operating after license suspension.

Money

Police said a 44-year-old homeless man, wearing a red and white jacket, was walking in the Forest Avenue area last Friday (Dec. 18) asking people for money. He told police his address was the Pine Street Inn in Boston and he was looking for money to get back to town. Police gave him a ride to the MBTA bus stop in Hingham and the bus driver agreed to transport him to Quincy.

Vandalism

Christmas wreaths at five downtown businesses were vandalized last Saturday (Dec. 19) at about 1:30 a.m., police said. An officer saw the wreaths and stopped two young men, an 18-year-old from Cohasset and a 19-year-old from Scituate. There was no evidence connecting them to the vandalism but the officer did speak to the duo.

Left scene

Police are investigating an apparent single-car accident at Wadleigh Park that was reported at about 1:50 a.m. Sunday (Dec. 20). The reporting party provided the plate number to a black BMW registered to a Cohasset resident.

Investigation revealed there was fresh damage to the guardrail at Wadleigh Park (at the bottom of Forest Avenue) but there was no vehicle.

Police caught up with the BMW that was parked at the Cohasset Harbor Inn but could not determine whether the man or the woman had been driving. The man, who is 47, however, was highly intoxicated and was taken into protective custody. There was damage to the BMW that was consistent with hitting a guardrail and it was seized for evidence.

Police will be seeking charges at Quincy District Court for leaving the scene after causing property damage.

Disturbance

Police responded to a 9-1-1 call reporting a disturbance at 10:18 a.m. Monday (Dec. 14) at a business on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A). Police said an employee who had been terminated was having a dispute with her former employer over a promised written recommendation. At one point the former employee's boyfriend also showed up. Police said it was a verbal argument; no physical threats were made and peace was restored.

$100 fine

Police issued a $100 ticket last week to a car illegally parked in a handicap spot in the Shaw's parking lot. Police are able to enforce parking regulations such as handicap parking and fire-lane restrictions in private lots.

ELECTION 2010

Dormitzer to step down; Carlson to run

Board of Selectmen and School Committee have two seats each with expiring terms. The Planning Board has one seat. Both the Water and Sewer commissions will have one seat expiring. The Mariner checked in with each of the committee members up for re-election this spring to see who is planning to run.

However, come Jan. 7 the field will be wide open and citizens with a desire to serve their town will have just as much as chance as any of the incumbents.

Current Selectmen Chairman Paul Carlson, who is finishing out his first term, told the Mariner he plans to seek a second term. Carlson said given the financial situation facing the town (and towns across the state) he felt it is important to ensure continuity to the board.

"We are in a severe financial crisis that is affecting our town, our state, and our country. I think it is important to bring what I've learned so far in my tenure to the next stage of it," Carlson said. "The budget is clearly the most important issue going forward."

Carlson will make a formal announcement of his re-election bid in early 2010.

Selectmen Ralph Dormitzer is stepping down from his position in April. He will have completed two three-year terms on the board; he served one year as chairman of the board.

"It was a productive time thanks to my several colleagues on the Board of Selectmen past and present, Bill Griffin, the town hall staff, department heads, the Greenbush duo, the CPC committee, the various ad hoc committees and many others" Dormitzer said.

Dormitzer said the town has made strides in many areas over the past few years, "the town runs efficiently, the Village looks better, Little Harbor will be cleaner and neighboring towns are working innovatively with Cohasset to improve services."

His successors will have the challenge of "balancing the town budget without repetitive overrides and to address the mandates of increasingly intrusive state and federal governments," he said. "These are a few of the important issues for prospective candidates to address."

School Committee

The School Committee will see some change in the coming year. The terms of School Committee member Lucia Flibotte and current School Committee chair Adrienne MacCarthy expire in April.

Flibotte told the Mariner she does not plan to seek re-election in April.

"I think I can be more effective on the other side of the table than on the board," Flibotte said. "The experience opened my eyes to the other side and I'm walking away with a better perspective. It's really amazing what you learn."

Flibotte, who has five children, plans to still support the schools in other ways after her term is complete in April.

MacCarthy, who will finish her second term in April, is still thinking about her future in town politics. She has served as chairman of the School Committee during two of her years on the board. Over the past year she has found herself busier than in the past and with less time to devote to School Committee issues.

"I want to be able to give it my all and commit the time I feel is necessary," MacCarthy said. "If I can't commit to something and do my best at it, I can't do it."

MacCarthy will announce her decision on whether she will seek re-election in the early part of 2010.

"We shall see, but I do love the schools and I love being on the School Committee. It's a good place for me," MacCarthy said.

Planning Board

Stuart Ivimey will complete his sixth year on the Planning Board in April – and he does not yet feel like that is enough. Ivimey told the Mariner he would seek re-election to his post in April.

He ran unopposed when he was elected to the five-year term he is currently serving. During the last six years the Planning Board has been very active. The village zoning bylaws to encourage mixed-use development in the downtown area were drafted and passed at Town Meeting. Large projects like the 27-home community at the Cook Estate and the mixed-use transit-oriented district on Route 3A were given special permits.

Ivimey also has served as chairman of the Community Preservation Committee since Town Meeting adopted the Community Preservation Act.

Nathaniel Palmer of the Water Commission and Sean Cunning of the Sewer Commission, both have terms expiring in 2010, did not immediately respond to requests for comment.

Note: People are not running for office until they take out papers and the Board of Registrars certifies signatures.

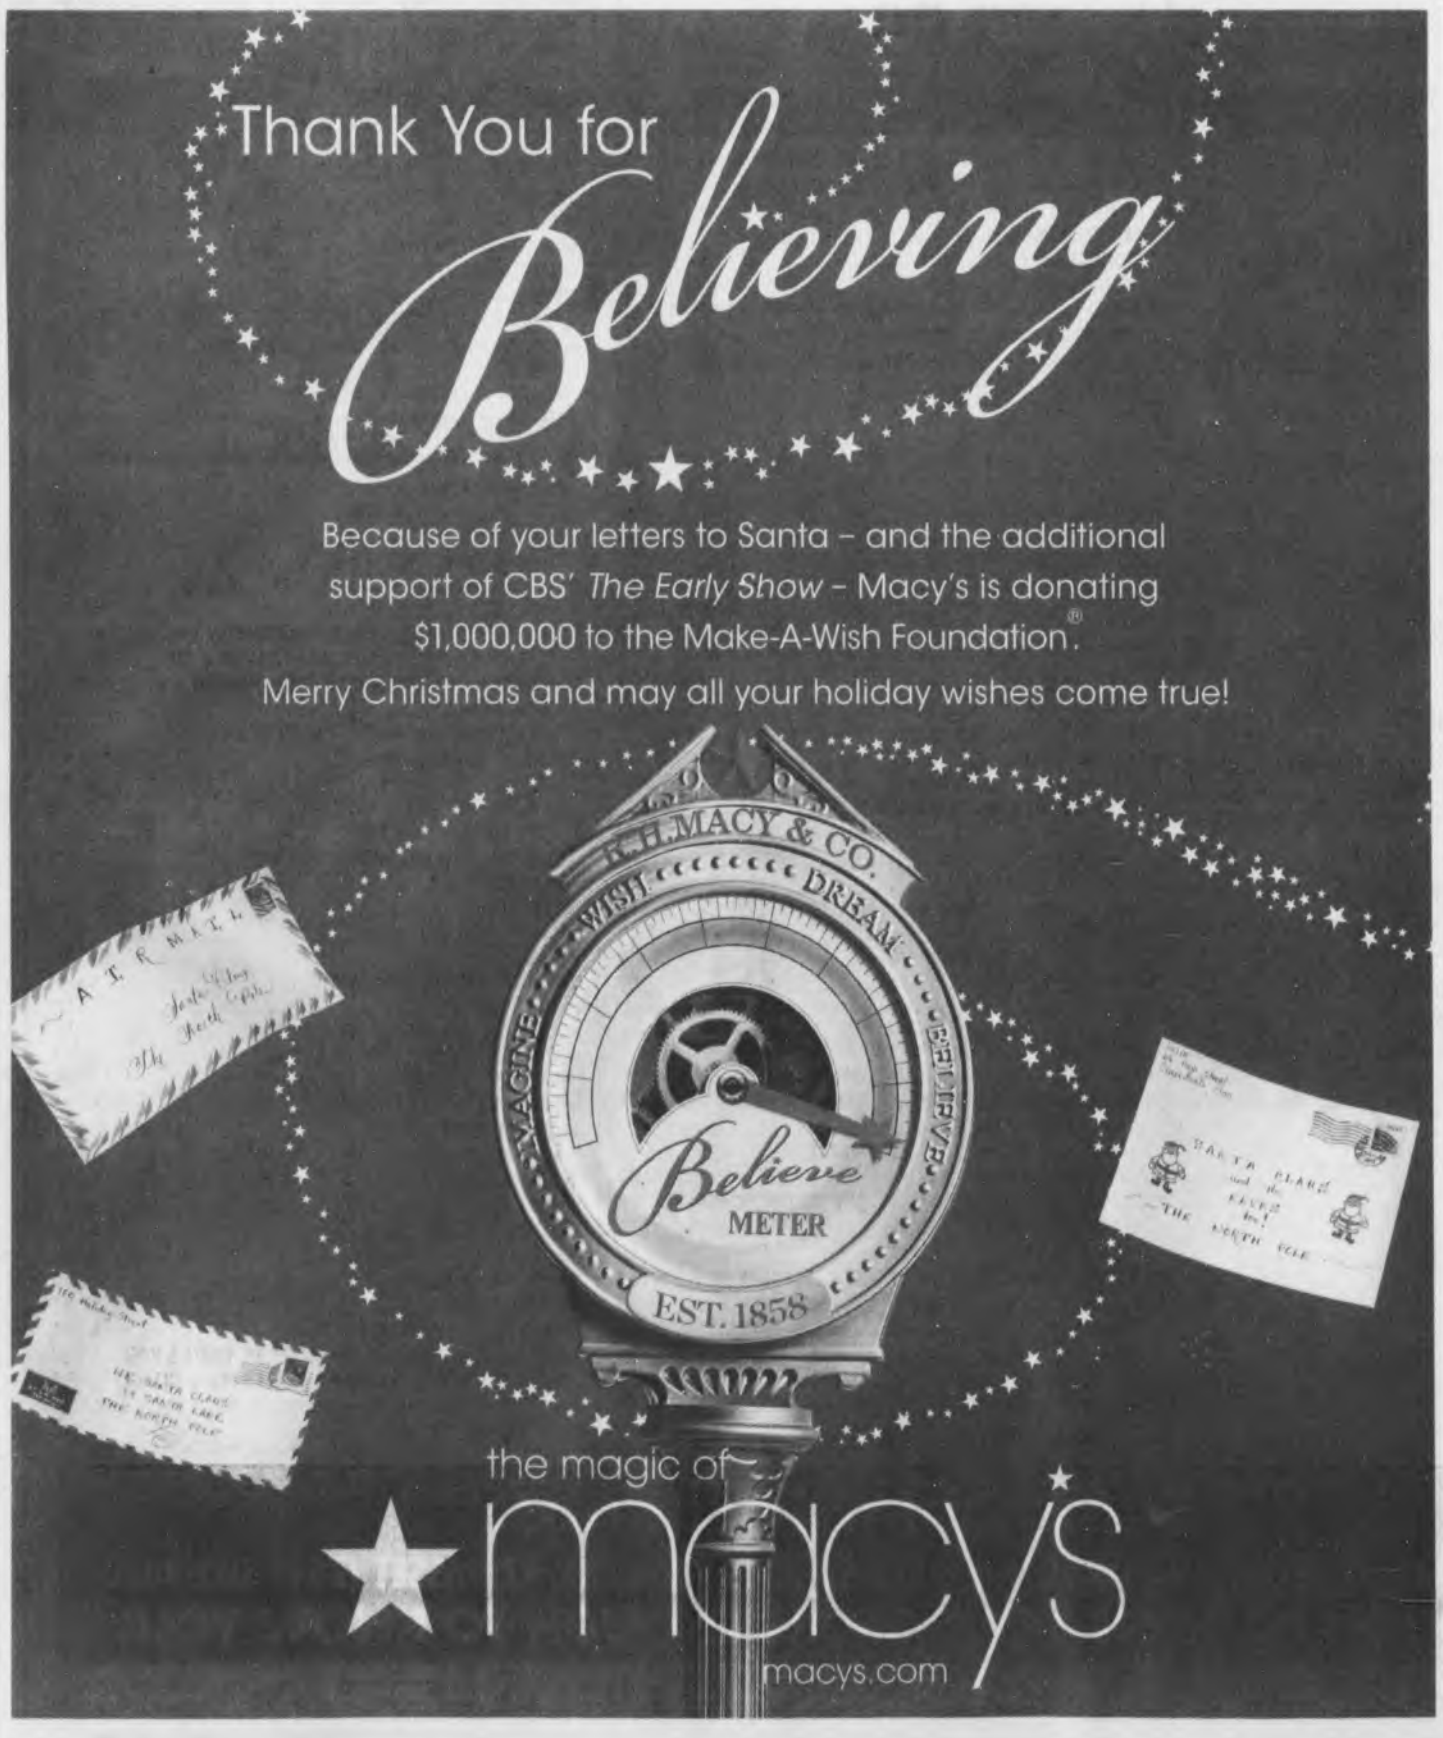
Absentee ballots available for Jan. 19 State Election

Absentee ballots for the State Election on Jan. 19, 2010, are now available in the Town Clerk's office. Absentee voting may be done during normal office hours until 5 p.m., on Friday, Jan. 15, 2010. Town Hall will be closed on Monday, Jan. 18, 2010, in observance of Martin Luther King Jr. Day. If you will be in town on Election Day and you are able to come to the polls you should vote in person. You may vote absentee for the following reasons only:

1. Absence from the town during the hours polls are open.
2. Physical disability.
3. Religious beliefs, which prevent voting at the polls on Election Day.

Returned ballots should be mailed or can be delivered by an immediate member of the family to the Town Clerk's office by Jan. 19, 2010, to be counted.



The applicant must request an absentee ballot. Applications are available in the Town Clerk's office or a written, signed request can be sent by mail, or hand delivered by the voter or any other person. The application should include the legal voting address of the voter, where the ballot is to be mailed and the signature of the applicant. Also, applications may be downloaded from the Secretary of State's website www.sec.state.ma.us// and mailed or hand delivered to the Town Clerk's office. The ballot will be mailed to the voter.

A family member of a person qualified to vote by absentee ballot may apply on behalf of such voter. The applicant shall state his or her relationship to the absentee voter; sign the application under the pains and penalties of perjury; and mail or hand deliver the application to the clerk's office. Absentee ballots must be mailed to the voter. Returned ballots should be mailed or can be delivered by an immediate member of the family to the Town Clerk's office by Jan. 19, 2010, to be counted.

We will be using the Accu-Vote optical scan system. Instructions to voters are printed on the ballot and any pen or pencil may be used. To vote, completely fill in the oval to the right of one's choice. Secrecy sleeves are available at the check in tables. The ballots can be inserted into the machine face up, face down, etc. and will be read. It is the usual policy to flip the ballot over so the blank side shows as they insert it into the machine. Voters who are uncomfortable with this should use the secrecy sleeve.

If you are permanently physically disabled and cannot cast your vote at the polling place, you may file a letter from your physician with the Town Clerk stating that you are permanently unable to cast your vote at the polling place because of physical disability. A completed application for an absentee ballot for you to sign and return will be mailed to you by the Town Clerk at least 28 days before every primary and election.

Sand, salt available at DPW

The Cohasset D.P.W. reminds residents that a sand and salt mixture will be available in the upper corner of the town parking lot.

When snow is in the forecast, residents are asked to not park on streets plowed by the town to expedite snow removal. Vehicles that obstruct snow removal operations will be towed at the owner's expense. Residents and contractors are reminded not to move snow, ice or water onto roadways that may impede traffic.

The town is not responsible for damage to mailboxes, driveway aprons, walkways, stonewalls, grassed areas, shrubs, trees or fences that fall within the town layout.

New Year, new look, new job?

'Makeover' winner improves her outlook

"It was down to the wire, but they gave the job to someone who was 35."
— Carol Hedman

In one week, a new year and a new decade will begin.

For some a new year means resolutions, a time to change and improve for the New Year.

Cohasset resident Carol Hedman is starting 2010 with a new look and fresh outlook, thanks to a makeover sponsored by local businesses.

Hedman is one of over 8 percent of Massachusetts workers who are currently without jobs.

Hedman, 63, picked up a magazine on her way out of the library, in it she saw an advertisement for a makeover contest for a women and men over 50 who had been laid off.

She was an ideal candidate. "I thought it might be a good thing to have an update, a little polish," Hedman said.

South Shore Skin Center of Plymouth and Cohasset sponsored the contest in collaboration with several other local businesses that offered their services.

She wrote a letter explaining why she was deserving of a makeover. She detailed how she has been working for a medical provider and held a second job with a dental provider and was recently downsized from both South Shore companies. After looking for work for several months, she was named a finalist for an administrative assistant job in Boston.

"It was down to the wire, but they gave the job to someone who was 35," Hedman said. "I felt there was a little age discrimination."

To her surprise, South Shore Skin Center wrote back to tell her she was the contest winner.

The prize was, as she describes it, a head-to-toe makeover. It includes a cosmetic dermatology treatment, teeth whitening, a new haircut/style, a fitness consultation and career and life coaching services. Some portions of the makeover are still on going.

"So far, no luck in the job department, but I continue to send resumes," Hedman said.

At her age, she said, she is not just looking for a job to pay the bills, she considers her next job to be her "last hurrah" and she doesn't want to settle.

"I want to look forward to everyday of work," Hedman said. "I refuse to go sit in an office."

To help her identify and find a job that fits her strengths, personality and passion, she is working with Dawn Quesnel of Career Life Balance, a career and life coach as part of the makeover.

Hedman said the coaching has created the opportunity for her to think more in-depth about her future and her career. Hedman enjoys doing interior design on a part-time basis, but isn't sure she'd want to do it full-time.

Hedman's lengthy career includes administrative positions in the field of private education for 15 years and a group dental practice for six years.

Hedman moved to Cohasset a year ago and has made it her home.

"I'm in Cohasset, which I love. I love this area and I can go into Boston by train or boat. A job is only a piece of the pie, a big piece of the pie, but I'm determined to make this work," Hedman said.

While searching for a job she spending some time volunteering, she works one day a week at the Seachest Consignment Shop on Route 3A.

"The women there are so much fun," Hedman said, explaining she sometimes is scheduled for three hours, but ends up staying for six.

"I'm feeling optimistic, a new year is beginning and it's been so nice to have all this help," Hedman said. "I'm confident the right thing will come along – there's one final chapter waiting for me."

South Shore Skin Center of Plymouth and Cohasset collaborated with the Center for Progressive Dentistry of Duxbury; Eclipxe Hair Salon of Norwell, Holly Kouvo of Fitting Fitness In of Stow, Mass. and Coach DQ, Dawn Quesnel, a career life coach and host of Career Life Balance Radio, and held a Makeover Contest for women and men over 50 who had been downsized.

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

HAPPY HOLIDAYS

Hello Cohasset and Happy Holidays to you all! I know that we all have our own holidays and traditions that are shared with our families and friends so I wanted to make sure to wish everyone a very happy, safe and fun-filled holiday season no matter we celebrate! It is the memories and shared traditions that count. Having this wonderful snow storm sure helped the spirit (for most of us anyways) so I also want to thank the DPW, fire and police as well as all the men and women who helped in keeping our town safe during last week's storm. I hope that you all get some time to spend with your families and friends as well. I will be of next week so I look forward to sharing the next Around Town Column in the NEW YEAR, 2010! On with this week of very few items as everyone is so busy finishing up those last minute plans.

By placing in the top 8, Madeline qualified for the World Championships to be held this coming spring in Glasgow, Scotland. This is the youngest age group to be competing at Worlds.

In July of this year, Madeline competed in the North American Championships held in Nashville, Tenn. and placed 29th out of 130. Madeline has been dancing with the Dunleavy Shaffer School of Irish Dance in Norwell for the past four years.

Your family, friends and the town are all so proud of you Madeline as you should be of yourself. Nice work!

BOOKS DONATED

The Cohasset Paul Pratt Library and Sharon Moody would like to take the time to publicly thank the Wrenn family for their generous donation to the books to Tanzania project that Mrs. Moody is working on with her former student Christen Reardon. The Wrenn Family generously donated 70 pounds of books to Christen at the Loyola High School in Tanzania, East Africa. This is a true story of giving and again, shows true spirit and meaning of life. Thank you to all for your hard work and donations.

The card, which is yellowed and a bit worn with age, has been passed between the two couples every holiday season since 1971. The cover, which is adorned with a colorful jar of candy, is perfect because it harkens back to their initial Christmas gift exchange many years ago. In the early years of friendship, a stout glass candy jar, which they still have, filled with goodies like candied orange peel (by Eleanor) and Swedish nuts (by Martha) was passed between the families.

Although the tradition of the card has been honored for nearly four decades, there is little fanfare around it.

"We store the card very unceremoniously in a plastic bag," Martha said. Martha, who Eleanor says is better at storage, is the keeper of the card. A few times, they admit, they had some trouble locating the card.

Inside there is a timeless sentiment fitting both the tradition it carries on and the couples' friendship: "There is no time quite like Christmas for remembering the friendships we cherish and there are no wishes like the old tried and true one – Merry Christmas. Happy New Year."

The binding of the card has been taped together, but even a part of the tape has worn through. Hurtig, who volunteers at the Cohasset Historical Society, is hoping to put some archival tape on the binding to preserve the card for more years to come.

Written on the right-hand side of the card are the oldest signatures next to the year with the name of a charity. In lieu of a gift each couple gives a donation to their favorite charity. This year the Watermans gave a donation to the Scituate Food Pantry and the Hurtigs to the Salvation Army.

So many years have gone by that the signatures go from the inside-right cover to the back of the card and within the last few years to the inside left-hand portion of the card.

Bob Hurtig, left denies a funny story being told by Nick and Eleanor Waterman that involves him and daisies. The Hurtigs have known the Watermans since 1961, when they were neighbors in Greenbush.

STAFF PHOTOS/ROBIN CHAN

Eleanor Waterman of Scituate signs this year's edition of the Christmas card while her husband Nick looks on. Their charity of choice is the Scituate Food Pantry, while Bob and Martha Hurtig's charity is the Salvation Army.

Below (inset), The back of Hurtigs' and Watermans' Christmas card is filled with charities that they have donated to from 1988 to 2004. They now sign the card on the back of the front cover.

"The other thing the card does is we don't need to go Christmas shopping!" Martha says with a laugh.

They said the card idea was partially borne out of a desire to be more eco-conscious.

"We were thinking about recycling long before it became mainstream," Eleanor said.

However, they admit it takes a special friendship for this tradition to work and endure – and the Watermans and Hurtigs have that. They talk, joke and reminisce with each other easily, as only old friends can and do.

They don't have a set routine for the card exchange, sometimes it gets signed before Christmas, other times it waits until after. The couples do make an effort to spend New Year's Eve and Superbowl Sunday together.

"This is a friendship that's lasted a very long time," Nick Waterman said. When they figure out the math, it's been 48 years since the wives serendipitously met.

Eleanor Waterman was walking with her young son from the post office back home (in the 1950s residents had to go pick up their mail, it wasn't delivered, they explain) and it had just started to rain. Martha, heading home herself, pulled over to offer the mother and son a ride.

The rest, as they said, is history.

From 1961 to 1971, the Hurtigs and the Watermans lived "a block and a walk" away from each other. The Hurtigs resided on Woodworth Lane and the Watermans on Old Oaken Bucket, both in Scituate. Both couples had boys that were about the same age and later they had daughters about the same age.

Their families – the Hurtigs have five children and the Watermans have three children – grew up together. They've spent weekends in Maine and Nantucket and can share dozens of funny stories about each other and their children.

In 1971, the year the card tradition began, the Hurtigs moved to Gammons Road in Cohasset. But, it did not impact their friendship.

"They say distance makes the heart grow fonder," Eleanor joked. They stayed in touch through frequent visits, bike rides to and from, and their children's friendships.

They have one bit of advice for all those who exchange Christmas cards or anything else that passes along a sentiment between friends or family all year long: put dates on everything.

"It's fun to look back on it," Eleanor said. "It only gets better as you get older."

We'll make you smile.

We Auto Know

by Gene Smith and Jay Gorman

INSIDE INFORMATION

For many people, vehicle ownership does not solely revolve around metal, lubricants, and rubber so much as wood and leather. These car owners love to experience the feel of fine interior details, which unfortunately can become degraded over time. If so, interior specialists can either restore or replace leather, vinyl, and cloth upholstery. Not only can rips, tears, and punctures in upholstery materials be repaired, it is also possible to replace seats' inner springs and foam, providing proper support and greater comfort. Rugs, headliners, armrests, dashboards, and wood trim can also be brought back to like-new condition. An automobile may be a piece of machinery, but it is expected to provide living room comfort and appearance.

Of course, no matter how beautifully appointed the interior of your car may be, it's what's under the hood that makes a car functional and useful. If you want to keep your car perfect inside and out, then call ATLANTIC TIRE AND ALIGNMENT at 781-925-3200 today. Our friendly ASE Master-certified technicians will be happy to provide the regularly scheduled maintenance that can keep your car running beautifully. We can also catch small and cheap problems before they become large and expensive problems. We are located at 25 Atlantic House Rd. If you've gotten in an accident, be sure to check out our sister store, Cohasset Collision Center, 179 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy, Cohasset, 781-383-3001.

HINT: Automobile seats can be retrofitted with electric heating elements to keep away the chill and warm the back.

By any other name

In the United States we know him as Santa Claus, but in other countries around the world children call him by different names.

Of course, in different places and cultures the traditions associated with Santa are often different as well.

In some countries the traditions are tied tightly to Christian celebrations. In others the lore is more closely tied to other holidays and history. In some the "gift-bearers" are strictly religious figures, in others they are distinctly secular, and in some the traditions are deeply mixed.

In many places the Santa figure arrives at Christmastime, in others he visits during a separate celebration.

Some countries celebrate these traditions as national holidays, in others they are recognized by only a few small enclaves of people.

Some cultures developed these traditions locally, others adopted and adapted them via the cultural sharing that results from colonization.

Some of the traditional gift-bearers are also women; one travels on a donkey, another on a broom. In some countries the name even changes from region to region.

But whether he's known as Santa Claus, Father Christmas, St. Nicholas, Grandfather Winter, or by any in this long list of names, much of the world enjoys a shared experience of and affection for the spirit of Santa Claus.

Here's a list of some names by which Santa is recognized by children in other countries. (The names have been left in the local language whenever possible but translated into English where a different alphabet made them impossible to print.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No third term for Selectman Dormitzer

TO THE EDITOR:

I wish to let my friends, supporters and potential candidates know that I will not be standing for a third term as selectman. In April 2010 my second term and sixth year will be over. It was a productive time thanks to my several colleagues on the Board of Selectmen past and present, Bill Griffin, the town hall staff, department heads, the Greenbush duo, the CPC committee, the various ad hoc committees and many others. The town runs efficiently, the Village looks better, Little Harbor will be cleaner and neighboring towns are working innovatively with Cohasset to improve services.

In the future, the Board of Selectmen will be challenged to balance the town budget without repetitive overrides and to address the mandates of increasingly intrusive state and federal governments. These are a few of the important issues for prospective candidates to address. Serving the town and meeting challenges can be very satisfying. I encourage you to run for office in 2010.

Ice skating at Beechwood Ballpark

TO THE EDITOR:

On behalf of the Beechwood Ballpark Committee, I would like to thank Glenn Davies and his crew for putting up a skating rink on the Beechwood Ballpark.

The rink is located in center field near the basketball court. This allows for night skating by using the lights of the basketball court.

We look forward to all the area kids and adults enjoying skating at the park. Again, thank you Glenn for allowing the Beachwood area to enjoy skating on safe ice.

As always, the committee will by happy to except any donations to help maintain the park. Those that would like to donate my send their donation to the Town of Cohasset in the name of the Beechwood Improvement Association.

HEALTH NOTES: Seasonal Thoughts

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Perhaps the best Christmas present we can have from the health front is the beginning of the creation of a consistent health policy from the country's leadership, vital because many local administrations from federal to state to town have differing and frequently conflicting regulations concerning administration of health products from medicines to physical procedures. An example is that a drug in one state may be illegal to use in another. Resolution of the many provisions of the medical issues listed in the Congressional health bill requires informed oversight at the highest administrative level and will take generations to resolve. The effort will soon devolve into a series of low key discussions by knowledgeable experts about what's possible and presented as a series of statements of policy about national health issues that localities will use for guidance.

Other good news is that the flu problem is less severe than expected and although the numbers of ill are large, vaccine is now generally available for both seasonal and H1N1; more than enough for our kids and most others wishing to receive it. Continue to check the Board of Health for the latest updates about administration of the vaccine at schools and at flu clinics by the town. Everything should be well organized before Christmas. and into 2010.

At Christmastime, a pet peeve for many has been the encroachment by the media and many stores of Christmas to a time as early as possible, even sometimes before Thanksgiving. Surely, people practicing all faiths deplore the commercialization of a religious holiday. Nevertheless, Dec. 25 has become a more widespread celebration. Where the term ecumenical commonly refers to the Christian religion it describes only one facet of religious worship by reverent people. Other religions, equally devout, have different sets of ideals, and nearly all of the older religions contain elements of love and devotion similar to the Christian precepts. Most contain the element in one form or another of gift giving to demonstrate devotion.

The season for whatever reason, has drifted away from its characterization as a religious holiday. Many see this development as a straying away from the true meaning of the season. However, in view of the many devout people practicing a diversity of religions, most of whom participate in celebrations this time of year, it can be posited the holiday season, although begun by the billion or so Christians on earth and still devoutly practiced by many, has gathered a considerable non-ecumenical following.

Recognize other faiths: If we agree that the purpose of adopting a faith is to learn to accomplish the betterment of mankind, then our end of year holiday is an appropriate time for those of other faiths, Jewish, Islam and others older and more recent to celebrate, including such faiths as Baha'i, Druze, Hasidism and Zoroastrian. Now is also a good time to include those who don't overtly worship in the end-of-season festivities.

Our better communication systems including cell phones, the Web, etc. have changed the character of the season, its events, and even its literature and art – and many will perceive an improvement. Traditionalists must concede that much of what the media is presenting now is fresh and attractive and use of the old standbys in a different context has improved even the best of the old tales. Scrooge, Santa, Jack Frost, reindeer and elves have all appeared in often different and refreshing forms.

To make the season what it should be in this world of increased communications, too much data and too many facts, we need a broader look at the way we bind together all people in a closer relationship of charity, forgiveness, love and goodwill.

New Poll

Capt. Steve Bowen, pictured here getting ready for his last trip to space, would like to take something from Cohasset with him on his next trip.

Cohasset's hometown astronaut Capt. Steve Bowen is heading to space once again. Selectman Ted Carr said he recently spoke to Bowen, who told him the news. No launch date has been set, but Bowen told Carr he hoped to bring something from the town of Cohasset into space with him.

Carr said he was awaiting details from NASA about the requirements for size and dimension, but hoped the community could be involved somehow.

We thought we'd get a jump-start and see what creative ideas our readers had. The Mariner sent out a call to our Reader Advisory Network and received varied responses from the community.

We had to shorten and combine a few of them for the purposes of the poll. Go online to www.wickedlocal.com/cohasset to take part in the poll. In addition to your vote, we'd love to hear your comments or other ideas online. There's space to leave your thoughts on the poll feature.

Stay tuned to the Mariner to read the results!

What Cohasset item should head into space?

- Sand or pebble from Sandy Beach.
- A Native American artifact.
- The Cohasset Flag.
- Minot Light model.
- Aerial photograph of Cohasset.
- Cohasset history book.
- Other.

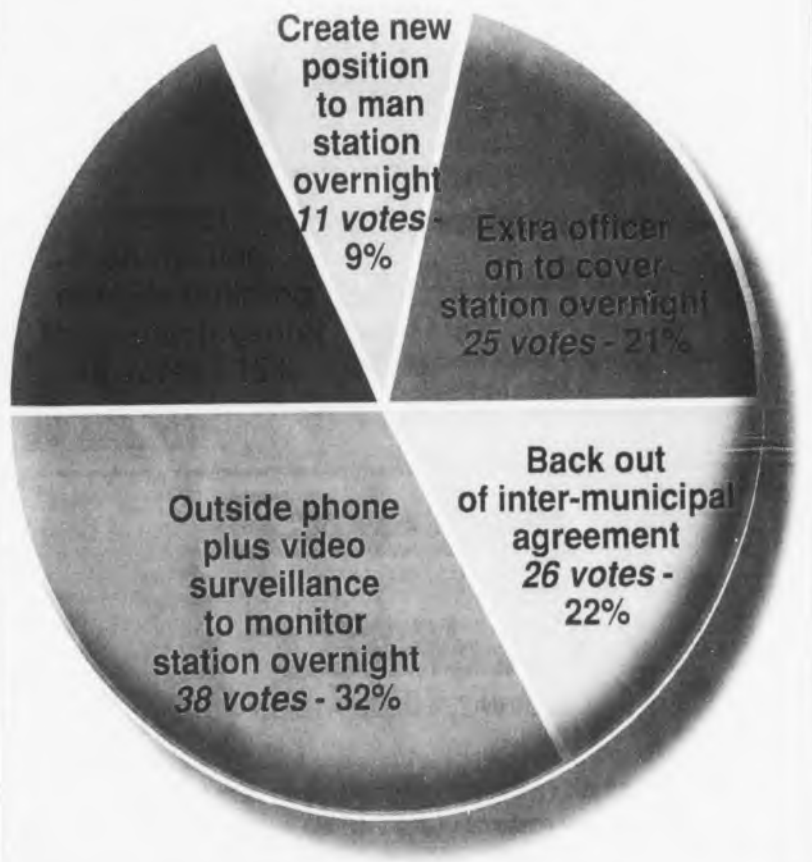
Centralized Dispatch Poll Results

Cohasset has entered into an inter-municipal agreement that will create a centralized police-fire dispatch center at Hingham Town Hall. The Cohasset Mariner has been conducting an on-line poll gauging readers' opinions about what the Town should do with the police station overnight after dispatch is moved to Hingham.

The total votes in the poll were 118. Watch for more polls at: www.wickedlocalcohasset.com



What should the Town do with the police station once the dispatch center is moved to Hingham Town Hall?

- Extra officer on to cover station overnight. 21% (25 votes)
- Create new position to man station overnight. 9% (11 votes)
- Direct phone line outside building to dispatch center. 15% (18 votes)
- Outside phone plus video surveillance to monitor station overnight. 32% (38 votes)
- Back out of inter-municipal agreement 22% (26 votes)

TOTAL VOTES: 118

New comments:

Bob O'Callaghan: So what if there is a prisoner? Who is going to watch him? I think this idea of a regional dispatch center has not been well thought out. You have got to have somebody in the station for walk-ins and prisoners so why not just have him dispatch also? It also makes more sense to have someone who knows the community. I listen to the scanner and hear many calls about people walking in for medical problems and wanting a restraining order, etc.

Dumpster envy

AAUW

GWEN SAYIAN

Is all of this stuff I'm buying as great gifts for the kids, sister-in-laws, and family all going to end up as dumpster fodder?

So here I was sandwiched between two women who are having a conversation through me as I stand in line to sign my daughter up for swim lessons. "I have such dumpster envy" the tall, loud redhead who was in front of me said to the petite brunette standing behind me. I decided early on that I did not qualify as an eavesdropper, as the only way I was going to avoid hearing this conversation was to give up my place in line. As their conversation goes on over and around me, I realize they are talking about a neighbor who is having work done on their house, maybe an addition, a new bath or kitchen. You know something fun, something you'd be envious of, hence "dumpster envy". Then the petite brunette said she wished she could sneak over in the cover of darkness and dump all the "crap" toys, clothes, televisions, and sports equipment into her neighbor's dumpster. Her "dumpster envy" had nothing to do with Jacuzzi tubs and rain forest showerheads with tumbled marble tile surrounds. It was all about getting rid of old stuff (that was once good stuff), so she would have more room for new stuff.

As I'm standing again in line, this time to buy Christmas presents, I find that conversation going through my head. Is all of this stuff I'm buying as great gifts for the kids, sister-in-laws, and family all going to end up as dumpster fodder? It's a sign of our society that many of us have more than we need. And there it is the pivotal word, "need" versus "want". We all know advertising is directed at that distinction with the goal of making our wants our needs.

What is a parent to do, especially in these times when we all are watching our wallets, trying to save more, spend less, and keep our credit cards stuffed in our underwear so we can't whip it out at a reckless moment of impulse shopping? If you're looking for an answer, I don't really have one. I don't have money to waste, and even if I did, I don't want to anymore. It just contributes to kids who think happiness is found in getting something new, and over indulged grownups complaining in swim line that they need more space so they can get newer and better stuff.

I can say I'm shopping very carefully, checking with family to see just what little Timmy loves to do. Is it building, inventing, or drawing? I've even gotten resourceful with the video game fanatics. They're getting books about how the games are made, gaming strategies, and the workings of the game hardware itself. My oldest is in college, and he is well aware his gift is tuition. He'll get some clothes, which he desperately needs, some new work boots, and a book on motorcycles which if I remember traces the history of motorcycles from the last ice age to the present. (He came home this summer calling out what every mother longs to hear, "Mom, I bought a motorcycle!"). My 12-year-old daughter will get two additional guitars for "Guitar Hero" since you can never have too many guitars playing Jimi Hendrix "Purple Haze" at full volume, two books from the American Museum of Natural History, which we visited this summer, and a couple of gooey games that will be short lasting, but fun. We were lucky enough to take a couple of nice trips this past year, and I made it clear then and I'm sure I'll be saying it again, that vacations are a "gift", not to be forgotten quickly when they're over.

If there is a trick to holiday giving, perhaps it's the strength of philosophy that the size/ volume/ cost of the item does not equate to the love behind it. And teaching your kids that "gifts", whether an item or an experience, such as taking a friend along to the Museum of Science for the day, are given and received all year long. Personally, I'm hoping that this "gift" could help them deal later in life with "dumpster envy".

Our next AAUW meeting is in January, and it is a book discussion group. James Lane project denied

Lack of new information played a role

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The Planning Board has denied the project that could have brought the village its first new residential units under the village business district zoning bylaw.

The proposal for a 17-unit condominium development at 8 James Lane has been before the planning board since April when the public hearings on the application began. However, in recent months, the planning board has continued the public hearings multiple times and received little to no new information on the project.

"At the last meeting we couldn't continue to drag this out," said Planning Board chair Al Moore in a phone interview this week.

The planning board met with the applicant, South Coastal Development Group, during both their meetings in December to discuss the status of the project.

According to the minutes of the planning board's Dec. 2 meeting, several members of the board recommended that the applicant withdraw the application without prejudice and come back when they were fully prepared to move forward with the project. Fundamentally, a withdrawal without prejudice means the applicant can withdraw their application without a time penalty.

However, Planning Board member Stuart Ivimey felt the application has failed to comply with the relevant zoning bylaws and made a motion to deny the application. The motion did not pass.

In further discussion the planning board made clear they wanted to see the project make some forward motion.

The Planning Board voted unanimously to continue the discussion until its Dec. 16 meeting at which time they expected the applicant to indicated whether he plans to continue to January or, withdraw the application without prejudice.

"At the last meeting we couldn't continue to drag this out."
— Al Moore, Planning Board

If the applicant wanted to continue the public hearing until January, the planning board (at the meeting and accounted in the minutes) laid out multiple conditions: the applicant must be fully prepared to proceed with the public hearing, submit a check for $5,400 to the Planning Board Office by the Dec. 16th meeting to bring the Engineering Deposit up to the required minimum amount as per the Planning Board fee schedule; and submit all documents for the Jan. 20 public hearing to the Planning Board office by Jan. 6 to allow the board and its consultants a full two weeks review time.

According to the minutes, the planning board said if the conditions were not met, they would not grant any further extensions and the application would be denied with prejudice, meaning the developer could not bring the same project back for two years.

At last Wednesday (Dec. 16) meeting, according to Moore and Ivimey the applicant indicated they would like to move forward with the project and the public hearing on Jan. 20. But, when the board asked if they had the check for the engineering deposit, the answer was no.

Planning Board member Charles Samuelson then made a motion to deny the project due to lack of an adequate engineering deposit and general lack of progress with the project. Ivimey amended the motion to include the project, as had been presented, failed to meeting the zoning bylaw requirements. The vote was unanimous.

The denial of the special permit and the site plan review will be drafted over the next month or so Planning Board administrator Jo-Ann Pilczak said. Once the decision is filed with the Town Clerk then the applicant will have 21 days to file an appeal.

When reached this week Paul Cleary, South Coastal Development Group project manager for the 8 James Lane property, said he did not have a comment in regards to the denial at this time.

"I'd like to wait to see what the written denial says and what is involved (before commenting)," Cleary said in a phone interview.

However, Cleary said South Coastal Development Group is still committed to making something happen on the property.

"There's nothing to be disappointed in yet…we're fully committed to moving forward," Cleary said. "Something will go there."

The project was not popular among the abutters largely because they felt the 26,000 square foot building with three floors and an underground parking garage did not fit in with the residential neighborhood with modest homes.

The property at 8 James Lane is somewhat of an orphan in the village business district as it is located on the other side of the MBTA tracks and does not currently have retail or commercial space.

"Developers should remember when they file an application before the planning board there are more people involved in the application than the board and the developer – there are the abutters…It is unfair to the neighborhood to have this or any application hanging out there," Ivimey said in a phone interview.

Wine shop at Old Colony Square

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Old Colony Square will have a place where commuters can pick up a bottle of wine before heading home, but not just any bottle of wine – local wine from local vineyards.

The owner of Local Vines and Gourmet, which will be one of the retailers at the nearly complete transit-oriented district, came before the Board of Selectmen seeking a wine and malt liquor license. Owner Debbie Hardey has lived in Hingham for 13 years and said she has 30 years of customer service experience.

The vision is an "upscale wine shop with a local flair." She will carry wines from local vineyards, like Westport Rivers (Westport, Mass.), Running Brook (Dartmouth, Mass.) and Sakonnet in Rhode Island. Local craft beers will be available as well.

To complement the wine and beer will be local chocolate from Puopolo Candies of Hingham, local cheeses and other gourmet items.

Hardey said she initially looked at establishing her business at the Hingham Shipyard, but ultimately decided against it. When she found Old Colony Square she though it was the "perfect" location.

"It is really big right now to buy fresh, buy local…so I'd like to bring local vineyards to Cohasset and the South Shore," Hardey said, adding she aims to provide individual customer service to her customers.

The shop will be set up like a Napa wine tasting room.

Selectman Ralph Dormitzer asked how she plans to differentiate herself from the other local wine and beer package stores. While Hardey said she expects the wine revenue to make up the majority of her sales, she has plans to expand the gourmet portion of her business to "to-go" dinners if the market allows creating a one-stop shop for dinner and wine. Eventually she hopes to run wine excursions to the local vineyards from the shop.

"We have great wines right here, so I think everyone should be buying those," Hardey said.

Hardey has signed a five-year lease on the 1,300 square foot space at Old Colony Square with an option to extend for five more years.

The Board of Selectmen, acting as the town's liquor license authority, approved the license in unanimous vote.

Local Vines and Gourmet joins the South Shore Athletic Club, a 12,000 square foot fitness club, at Old Colony Square. Both are expected to open in spring 2010. In addition to the first floor retail, there are 16 for-rent apartments on the second floor of the building.

Local liquor licenses

The Town is allowed 14 All Alcohol on-premises licenses. Cohasset currently has six restaurants, two inns and two clubs, which leaves four open.

The Town is allowed five restaurant on-premises wine and malt. There are three currently, so two are available.

Cohasset is allowed to have three, retail all-alcohol package stores. There are currently three in town, so none are currently available.

Five retail wine and malt package stores are allowed. Cohasset currently has two, three if Local Vines and Gourmet license is approved by the state, leaving two available.

The number of liquor licenses is determined by population and the Board can determine if there is a need and apply to the state for additional licenses.

The Selectmen recently approved the renewal of all the liquor licenses in town. The town will be sending in all the renewals to the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC) for its approval.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate during the week of December 14-18.

Beacon Hill Roll Call reports local representatives' final roll call attendance records for the 2009 session.

The House in 2009 held 274 roll call votes. Beacon Hil Roll Call tabulates the number of roll calls for which each representative was present and voting and then calculates that number as a percentage of the total roll call votes held. That percentage is the number commonly referred to as the roll call attendance record.

Several quorum roll calls, used to gather a majority of members onto the House floor to conduct business, are also included in the 274 roll calls. On quorum roll calls, members simply vote "present" in order to indicate their presence in the chamber. When a representative does not indicate his or her presence on a quorum roll call, we count that as a roll call absence just like any other roll call absence.

Only 21 percent or 33 of the 160 House members have perfect 100 percent roll call attendance records - including 23 of the 144 Democrats and 10 of the 16 Republicans.

Some representatives may have poor attendance records because of a variety of reasons including health problems or military service. Beacon Hill Roll Call does not ask each individual representative why he or she missed roll call votes.

The five worst roll call attendance records belong to Reps. David Flynn (D-Bridgewater) who missed 88 roll calls (67.8 percent attendance record); Harold Naughton (D-Clinton) missed 48 roll calls (82.4 percent attendance record); Geraldine Creedon (D-Brockton) and Daniel Bosley (D-North Adams) missed 46 roll calls (83.2 percent attendance record); Cheryl Coakley-Rivera (D-Springfield) missed 45 roll calls (83.5 percent attendance record) and Colleen Garry (D-Dracut) and William Lantigua (D-Lawrence) missed 44 roll calls (83.9 percent attendance record). Lantigua is also the mayor-elect of Lawrence and has created controversy by stating that he will keep his job as state representative even after he is sworn in as mayor in January.

LOCAL REPRESENTATIVES' FINAL 2009 ROLL CALL ATTENDANCE RECORDS

FUNDS FOR HOMELESS SHELTERS (H 4935) - The House and Senate gave final approval to and sent to Gov. Deval Patrick a $42 million supplemental spending bill. Most of the funds are for homeless shelters across the state where beds are increasingly in demand because of the recession. The measure also includes a $100,000 payment to the family of a slain Weymouth police officer.

Supporters say that quick action is needed in order to keep more than 3,000 homeless families off the streets.

DIMASI'S SHADOW - Approval of the $42 million budget had been delayed by a group of legislators who have taken the offensive against some recent actions by House Speaker Robert DeLeo.

DeLeo held a caucus of House Democrats to "clear the air" about his recent firing of some legislators' staffers and the controversy over $378,000 in state money that was used for the House's legal bills in the case of indicted former Speaker Salvatore DiMasi.

A small group of legislators, led by Rep. Lida Harkins (D-Needham), delayed action on the budget as a way of focusing attention on the $378,000 payment and demanding an explanation and breakdown of the spending from DeLeo.

Critics question whether the money was used to help defend DiMasi. DeLeo insists that the money was not used to defend the former speaker but rather to assist in obtaining documents relating to the federal prosecutor's corruption case against him. He also contends that federal prosecutor have requested that the House keep the information private for the time being.

Harkins' backers have been pushing for an independent audit of the House's finances in order to determine the purpose for which the $378,000 was used. DeLeo finally agreed to appoint an attorney to conduct the audit. Harkins' group questioned the independence of someone appointed by the speaker and is now pushing for the state auditor or inspector general to make the appointment.

'Chase Away the Winter Blues'

What do you get when you take live musicians, comfort food, open bars, a silent auction and pack the place with a few hundred party-goers, all patrons of music and the arts? You get South Shore Conservatory's Chase Away the Winter Blues of course, and chase away it does.

From jazz piano with passed hors d'oeuvres, to ladies singing sultry lounge blues, to comfort food, blue martinis, cabaret style singing at the piano bar, to sweets and desserts, and an R& B dance band 'til midnight, this Blues event has it all. But it doesn't happen by itself. Over 100 South Shore artisans, businesses, merchants and community volunteers come together to create this magic. Every year I am amazed by the generosity and community spirit surrounding Chase Away the Winter Blues.

For example, Bare Cove Gourmet, Rangoon Company and Curtis Liquors provide sustenance at a discount to help make the effort a success. Teens with Trays brighten the crowd, while the Fruit Center Marketplace provides complimentary cold cut platters. In years past, Puopolo's sponsored the unforgettable "Chocolate Room," while last year, Whole Foods donated an array of delectable desserts. The music is donated by the Conservatory's faculty members and advanced adult ensembles.

But the unique items donated to the silent auction are what make the event so exciting. This art-rich auction started when Hingham artist Gary Nisbet created his signature mixed media collages for Blues publicity and silent auction.

This year, architect Vcevy Strekalovsky culled a group of local painters to render a series of original works, some with jazz themes. SSC's preschool and kindergarten donate novelty items such as hand-printed rocking ch[illegible] thumbprint-adorn[illegible]uitars.

Blues[illegible]r Debbie Zildjian has donated tickets to "Wicked" in NYC and Blue Man Group in Boston, with reserved cast member seating and backstage drummer's passes. Bidders can also win over 100 other items including live gigs or drum circles for private parties and children's events. Volunteers Irma Lauter, Linda Jones and Debbie Edmundson work behind the scenes overseeing auction administration. Ginny Gray designs and produces videos to promote the auction and party.

Jenny Barrett takes party photos while Duxbury's Paula Harris rolls out the "Blue Blinkie Raffle." One lucky guest wins a stunning necklace donated annually by Valerie King of King's Jewelers, Cohasset, and another wins a collage of donated lottery scratch tickets. Duxbury's Pamela Smith chairs the décor team, which promises surprise blue elements. I'm excited that everything is coming together this year with an icy blue feel – even the donations.

We are grateful to our corporate sponsors to date: Sabian, Derby Street Shoppes, VPNE Parking Solutions, Hemenway & Barnes, Jean Jones for Sotheby's, The Gagnon Group and Anchor Press. Proceeds from the event provide scholarships for the Conservatory's aspiring musicians and performing artists.

Chase Away the Winter Blues will take place 6:30 p.m. to midnight, on Saturday, Jan. 30. To get involved or purchase tickets, contact special events coordinator Amy Schomp at 781-749-7565, ext. 19, or at a.schomp@sscmusic.org or visit www.sscmusic.org.

Carolyn Loughlin, a Hingham resident, is actively involved with the Conservatory, and has served as a Trustee since 2006. She is the Blues event co-chair and has been involved in Chase Away the Winter Blues since its inception.

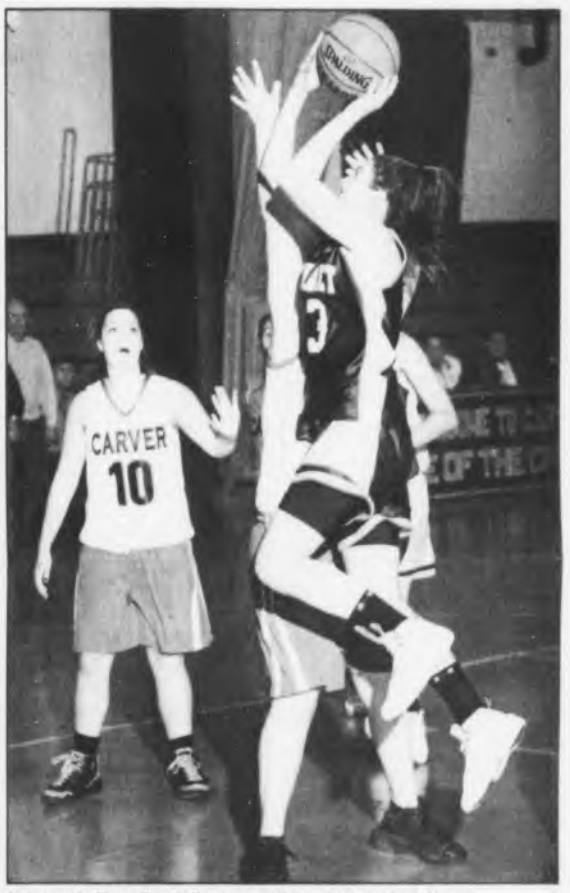
The winning continued this week for the Cohasset girls basketball team with a pair of wins over Carver (62-47) and Harwich .

The Carver win was Cohasset coach John LeVangie's 400th career victory on the basketball court.



In the Harwich win, a 65-19 romp Tuesday night at home, Carli Haggerty had a triple-double with 16 points, 16 rebounds, and 10 assists (3-0).

Meredith Kelly had 12 points, 8 rebounds, and 6 steals, and Tori Lehr scored 15 points and had 10 rebounds and 4 steals.

Lehr led the way in the Carver victory, scoring 22 points with 17 rebounds, while Kelly added 15 points with eight rebounds and five steals.

"The kids played very well from the opening tap, Cohasset coach John LeVangie said. "The defense was stifling. It came together. I was pleased with the Effort, intensity and knowledge. The intensity has

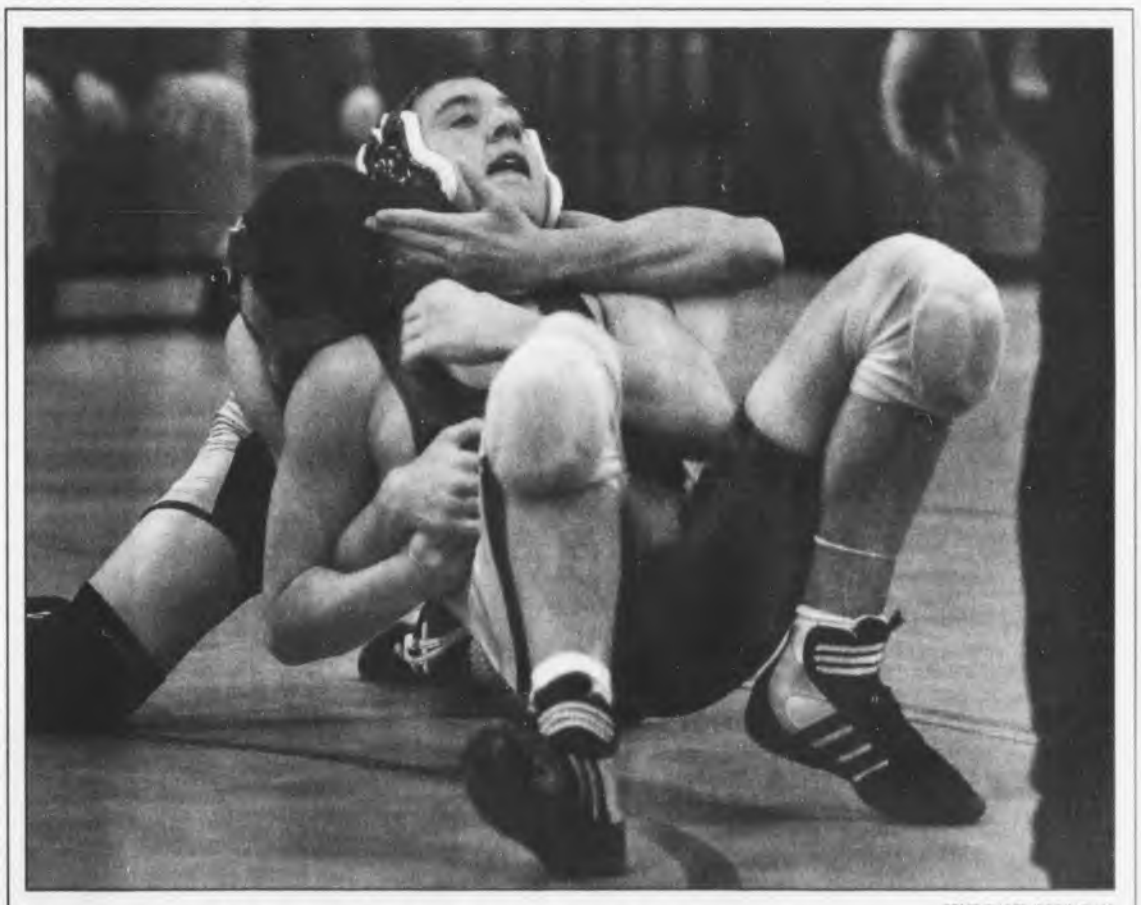
The Cohasset boys basketball team kept it close, but wasn't able to pull out a road win at Harwich, Tuesday night, falling 81-74 in a game that was closer than it sounded.

Boys Basketball

Robbie Mahoney scored 15 points, Sam Richardson added 14 and Tyrel Jaundoo chipped in 12 for the Skippers.

"After the first period it was 21-21," Cohasset coach Bo Ruggiero said. "It was 39-36 Harwich at the half and Harwich was ahead 59-58 after three. They didn't close the game out until about a minute-and-a-half was left. They hit a long-range three pointer. We missed a shot and they went 4-for-4 from the line down the stretch."



Ruggiero said his team played well.

"It was as well played a game as one could hope," he said. "It was a terrific game for Cohasset."

The big difference in the game came from behind the arc.

Skippers lose game, star at Old Rochester

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

Injuries have hit the Cohasset hockey team hard and quick this week when senior captain Brendan Doonan and Conor Queenan were both injured during a 6-5 loss to Old Rochester.

Hockey

"It was a pretty disastrous game," Cohasset coach Bob Walsh said. "We were up 5-3 going into the third period and lost, but more importantly we lost Brendan Doonan."

Walsh said Doonan has a compound fracture of his right arm and will most likely miss the season.

"It was a severe break," Walsh said. "They said it's probably eight weeks to three months recovery. He was sandwiched between two guys and went down. When he came off the ice he immediately thought the arm was broken. It wasn't the hit, but when he went down."

Walsh said losing Doonan is tough.

"As a coach it's horrible to lose a great player," he said. "But even more, I feel so bad for the kid. He's an impact player and a great

Ten Skippers notched pins in the victory.

Gus Helbock (112), Harry Braga (119), Derek Froio (130), Andrew Littauer (152), Jack Murphy (160), Justin Yeager (171), Thomas Flibotte (189), Alex Kinnealey (215) and Cam Washak (275) all notched pins.

Freshman Tom Ryan picked up his first varsity victory.

"All those guys were bumped up a weight," coach Torin Sweeney said. "It was a good night. They wrestled well."

South Coastal Men's Hockey League Roundup

By Mark Ducharme
CORRESPONDENT

The Whalers, after missing out in clinching their Legends Div. playoff position in the game before, rebounded in a big way Sunday in South Coastal Men's Hockey League at the Hobomock Arena.

John Maguire of Norwell and Richard Spence of Scituate capped off a comeback from a 2-1 deficit to defeat the first-place Sharks, 3-2 to clinch the final playoff spot in the Legends Div. Rob Dennis of Cohasset scored the other Whalers goal while Mike Zuccarelli and Hanover's Mike Murphy scored the goals for the Sharks as the two teams will face each other in the semifinals on Sunday (6:40 P.M.) The Toros and the Stingers will be the other Legends Div. semifinal playoff game (8:30 P.M.).

The Toros finished up the regulars season with two goals each from Norwell's James Ward and Pembroke's Frank Brinkman and a goal from Paul Brinkman in their 5-2 win over the Stingers. John Scag scored both of the Stingers goals.

In the Classics Div., the Red Wings earned the final playoff spot as they got a goal each from Bob Stafford of Scituate, Steve Figioli, Hingham's Mark Tedeschi and Tom Pipenbrink to defeat the Blackhawks, 4-1.

The Wings will face the Rangers (7:20 P.M.) in the semifinals. The Rangers, who were the Classics Div. regular season champions got a goal each from Jim O'Toole of Rockland, Joe O'Connell and Marshfield's Joe Craig in 3-1 win over the Bruins to eliminate them from the post season competition.

The Canadiens and the Maple Leafs will play the other Classics Div. semifinal game (9:00 P.M.).

The Masters Div. semifinals will feature the first-place Thunder coming off an 11-4 win over the Grizzlies led by Hanover's Mike Joy's five goal performance will face the Roadrunners. Bill Daley had two goals, Tom Maguire of Hanover, John Cardarelli, Keith Wilson and Ed McVeigh added a goal each.

John Jones had three goals and Mike Martin added a goal for the Grizzlies, who will face the Aeros in their Masters Div. semifinal game (9:40 P.M.) The Aeros tuned up for their semifinal meeting with the Grizzlies as they got a goal each from John McDonough, Craig Solari, Scituate's John Fahey, Sean Taylor of Pembroke and Chris Devin in their 5-3 win over the Roadrunners.

Kevin Barnard, David DiLoreto and Sean Parrell of Marshfield scored the Roadrunners goals.

win over the Vipers. Lou Sideropoulos, who won the Masters Div. scoring title had two goals for the Vipers.

Sean Regan scored a goal and assisted on another in the second period to give the Crusaders a 4-1 Legends Div. win over the Saints.

"They had a spectacular shooting night," Ruggiero said. "They made 14 three-pointers and made 11 free throws."

Harwich also used its size well getting 15 points from their 6-5 center, 20 points from their 6-4 forward and another 14 from a 6-2 guard.

"They had height, the home-court advantage and the home-court backboards," Ruggiero said. "They took a lot of shots."

Add in injuries to John Maher and Will Lynner and it made for a tough one.

Still Ruggiero was pleased with the effort.

"We were undersized and undermanned," he said. "But not outplayed."

kid. To lose his senior year is disastrous."

Queenan suffered a concussion. His status is up in the air.

There's also the loss of defenseman Sam Leahy, who was issued two disqualifications during a fight against Hull.

Two disqualifications in a season mean a season's suspension.

That is being appealed to the MIAA.

Walsh said the referee erred in doling out the two dq's in one game.

"We go by Ice Hockey Federation rules," Walsh said. "By the rules a ref can't give two disqualifications in the same game."

A hearing has been set for Jan. 6, and hopefully he'll be back shortly after.

In other recent action, Cohasset beat Carver 4-2.

"In our first game against Hull, the (Anders) Goetz, (Andrew) McKenna, Doonan line scored our goals," Walsh said. "Against Carver the same line did the scoring. That was a good test for Jack Nelson in goal. Carver scored two legitimate goals. Then he tightened up in the third period and we came away with a win. He showed that they can score, but we'll be here. Jack carried himself well in the third period and we came away with a win. I was impressed."

Walsh said Doonan's injury wasn't a factor in the Old Rochester loss.

"We made some critical mistakes," he said. "that cost us goals. When Brendan went down we were down 6-5. It made it a little tougher. The guys were thinking I hope he's Okay. It's hard to focus on a game."

Cohasset played at Harwich on Wednesday.

"Adversity creates opportunity," Walsh said quaoting coaching great Herb Brooks. "We'll see how they respond."

16 win at B.C. High.

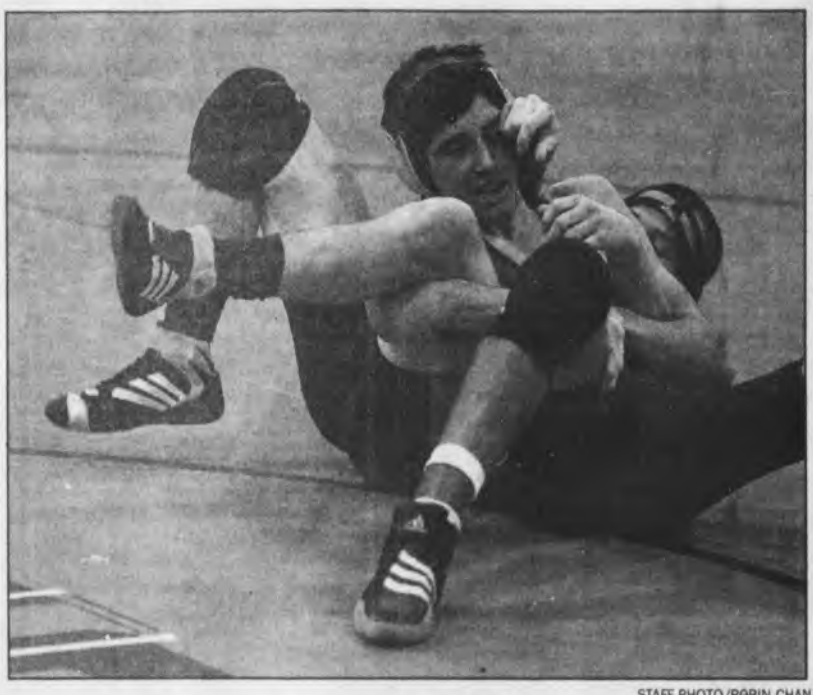
There have been some outstanding performances so far.

Helbock improved to 5-0 with his pin on Tuesday, as did Flibotte.

After the first three meets, Matt Dooley was 2-2, while Derek Froio improved to 4-1 with his pin Tuesday.

Freshman Nick Tangherlini has a pair of victories in the early going, including a big one over B.C. High, and with Tuesday's win, Littauer improved to 2-0. He didn't wrestle in the tri-meet due to an injury.

Senior captain Jack Murphy upped his record to 3-0 on Tuesday as well and Washak is now 4-1.



Sophomore Graden Foley has also wrestled well, according to Sweeney.

Graden Foley is 1-3 at 130," he said. "But he's lost to three real good kids."

"We can improve," Sweeney said after the B.C. High victory. "We've had great practices. We're making great strides. The JV wrestlers have been doing fantastic. I can't be happier about that. Each practice we're growing."

The team spirit has shown as well, with former wrestlers coming in to help the team while they're on breaks from college.

"We had four alumni in this week helping out on their college breaks," Sweeney said. "Nick Cambi was here," he said. "He was a state champion two years ago. He's wrestling at Roger Williams College now. He's 15-3 right now and ranked eighth in the nation. He's been working out with us all week."

been good all year."

Samantha Crough chipped in eight points, 10 boards and five assists.

Kelly, a senior captain, meanwhile has been accepted to play basketball at Bates College.

She applied for early decision, was accepted and will be playing basketball for them next year.

"Her goal was to play for a NESCAC school for both the academics and the athletic competition," said Kelly's mom Ann. "Throughout the whole process, Bates and Coach (Jim) Murphy remained her No. 1 choice. It was a great early Christmas gift."

The girls are back in action Dec. 28 and 29, when Cohasset hosts the Cohasset Holiday Festival, with Sacred Heart, Nantucket and Hull.

Cohasset takes on Nantucket at 7:15 p.m. on Dec. 28 and has Sacred at 5:15 on Dec. 29.

LeVangie has good feelings about winning No. 400, now 401.

"It felt great," he said. "I've had a lot of good relationships with lot of great kids. I'm coaching. They're the ones playing. It's exciting."

LeVangie said next week's schedule is important.

"We have the Winter Festival next week at home," he said. "Those are two important games to keep momentum going."

Wednesday night was the alumni game at Cohasset.

"We have people from 70's up playing," LeVangie said. "It's nice to have that kind of night. Some of the other nights can be kind of stressful. This is fun."

Home Instead SENIOR CARE

LIVE-IN HELP

Home care that provides live-in help is best suited to situations in which primary caregivers can't be there in person, and the homebound senior requires round-the-clock support. Room, board, and a salary are usually provided in exchange for meal preparation, light housekeeping, and other non-medical services. When a loved one can no longer live safely at home without assistance, but prefers to remain at home, utilizing the services of a live-in companion is an excellent option. The safety and security of the client is ensured by virtue of having someone there to monitor their condition and assist them with everyday tasks. Back-up caregivers may also be trained to take over when the primary caregiver is ill or on vacation.

Clearly, full-time, live-in care can be an excellent option for a loved one who can't quite manage. But how do you pick a reliable, compassionate companion? Let us help. We place trained professional care givers in homes around the region. Our workers will help with meals, grooming, bathing, errands, groceries and transportation, which can take the burden off you. Our services are flexible, to match your needs, which means we can offer 24-hour long-term care, or temporary respite care for overnight. Call 781-878-2994 to learn what we can do for you. Our address is 145 Washington Street, Suite 11. In-home help for Massachusetts seniors.

P.S. Part-time live-in service options, from 1 to 6 days a week, are also available.

'A Life at CHS Holiday Story'

LIFE AT CHS

SEAN MACCARTHY

We arrived at school on Monday and looked around,
Pleased to see the 15 inches of snow on the ground.
This snow gave us a sweet delay,
Giving us a much needed shortened day.
The roads were rough, covered with ice
But once inside the school, all was nice.
The school was warm, everyone was happy
Because sleeping in ain't too shabby.

After 3 hours of classes, came lunch,
When I met with the Student Council bunch.
A very large portion of the meeting
Was planning to give the school a holiday greeting.
For this we got them ice cream as a present,
A treat that never fails to be pleasant.

Soon we tackled an issue, not so normal.
This issue was planning the Semi Formal.
After some deliberation, a decision was made.
It wasn't just a dance or a masquerade.
The Semi Formal this year is a
Black and White Ball.
A dance for Juniors and Seniors all,
Unless you're an underclassmen and get a date,
But don't get your hopes up, you're not that great.

After school, there were a bunch of games
With the Skippers hoping to make the others go down in flames.
There was also a rehearsal for the new play
As the actors wanted to start preparing without delay.
I wish luck to all Cohasset competitors,
I hope your seasons get better and better.

Tuesday was ordinary, nothing strange.
A slow day with very little change.
It was sad to have classes 1.5 hours long
But we stuck through it and stayed strong.
The periods were slow, anything but swift,
As we all clamored for our holiday gift.
Lunch time came which meant we got the ice cream.
It was so tasty; I thought I was living a dream.

Wednesday was all that was left, and then we were done.
On to a week filled with relaxing and fun.
Students and teachers were in such good moods
There was no bickering and no feuds.
All together, classes played
Catchphrase,
And we watched Elf for the rest of the day.

The day was closing, everyone was looking outside
Thinking about next week with their smiles so wide.
Presents, snow, and partying, WOO
HOO!
It was now official, as the clock struck two.
The time had come! We were out,
free as birds!
Screaming and cheering for all to be heard!
Everyone was filled with elation
Because we were officially on Winter Vacation.

Well that was fun! Just thought I would do that as a little special present for all you loyal readers out there. I hope you enjoyed my cheesy little rhyme story that is a total cliché for this time of year. So, I don't know about all of you, but I am going to have a blast with this vacation and I hope you have fun too. This is my last article of 2009 (OH MY!) and I just wanted to thank you for all the support you have given me. Have a Merry Christmas, a Happy Holidays, and a Happy New Year! My next article will be on Jan. 15th. I am looking forward to it already. Have fun and be safe!

Rockland Trust 'Warm for Winter' drive

In an effort to help families struggling to pay their heating bills this winter, Rockland Trust is holding a "Warm for the Winter" Holiday drive through Dec. 31, Rockland Trust's 71 branch locations, including Cohasset's, are selling paper mitten ornaments for $1, $3, or $5, with all proceeds to benefit The Massachusetts Good Neighbor Energy Fund.

The Massachusetts Good Neighbor Energy Fund is a cooperative effort between Massachusetts energy companies and the Salvation Army of Massachusetts that provides energy assistance to those in temporary crisis. The Fund is important because it assists those people who do not meet federal and/or state assistance guidelines, but who, because of unexpected circumstances, experience a temporary need for assistance.

Police Monthly Report

Special projects, achievements, innovations

During November the Cohasset Police Department hired Police Officer John "Jay" St. Ives as a permanent fulltime police officer. St. Ives originally came to the CPD as a lateral transfer from the Winthrop Police Department in January 2009. He worked as a permanent intermittent police officer until his fulltime appointment on Nov. 12. In addition to his work in Winthrop, St. Ives worked as a campus police officer at UMASS Boston. He served there for 10 years, and distinguished himself as a top rated police officer and received many awards and commendations. St. Ives replaces Sergeant David Cogill who retired from the CPD after over 30 years of service.

Police Officer Regen Steverman established a Cohasset Food Pantry drop off station in the lobby of police headquarters. During the month of November she collected hundreds of food items for people in need. The project was highly successful and we plan on making this an annual event.

The department hosted three Cohasset High School students on work study/community service during November. These students assisted at the station with filing, cleaning, and data entry. The students will finish the remainder of their school semester helping around the police station.

With funding provided by a Governor's Highway Safety Bureau (GHSB) grant, the Cohasset Police Department participated in the "Click it or Ticket" seatbelt safety campaign over the Thanksgiving holiday. Special patrols were designated specifically for traffic enforcement with an emphasis on seatbelt compliance.

Sergeant Jeffrey Treanor applied for a Child Passenger Safety (CPS) grant through the GHSB. The amount of the grant is $1,100 and will be used to help fund the Cohasset Police Department's Child Safety Seat Installation Program that is administered by Sergeant Treanor.

With funding provided by a grant, the Cohasset Police participated in the "Click it or Ticket" seatbelt safety campaign over the Thanksgiving holiday.

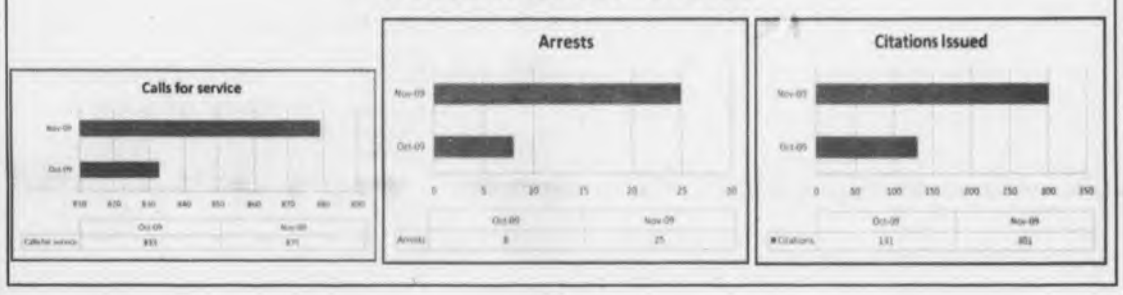
✔ Cases of interest

A 33-year-old Cohasset resident reported to the CPD that while at the Beechwood Ball Park, she witnessed a white male that was approximately 40 years of age yelling and swearing at a boy that was approximately 4 years old. The adult male then knocked the boy to the ground and began hitting and kicking him. The adult then dragged the boy to his grey sport utility vehicle (SUV) and "threw the boy" into the trunk area of the SUV. Patrol officers completed a preliminary police report and this case has been turned over to the Criminal Investigation Division (CID) for investigation and follow-up. The suspect is still outstanding.

The principal of the Deer Hill School called CPD to report that a student found a glass pipe and other drug equipment on the school's playground. A patrol officer was detailed to the school and the contraband was seized. The Deer Hill School has been added to the "extra patrol" list.

Day shift officers responded to a violent domestic dispute. On scene officers arrested a 29-year-old Cohasset male and charged him with Assault and Battery on his wife, intimidating a witness, threats to commit a crime (murder), destruction of property worth over $250, and possession of marijuana. Patrol Officers had probable cause to believe that the domestic had occurred the previous evening and continued into the next morning. Several hundred dollars in damage to the home was reported, including allegations that the male ripped the telephone off of the wall to prevent the victim from calling the police.

Officers responded to a report from a local liquor store of an intoxicated female attempting to purchase vodka. As officers were responding to the store, the employees reported that the alleged drunk female had left in the store and was now getting into the driver's seat of a vehicle. Employees of the store were able to provide a description of the vehicle and it was stopped a short distance from the package store. A 59-year-old female was placed under arrest for operating under the influence of liquor (2nd offense) and failure to yield to oncoming traffic.



✔ Training

Sergeant Christy Tarantino completed 80 hours of basic sergeant training at the Randolph Police Academy. This training is mandated by state law.

Annual in-service training, which includes updates in criminal and motor vehicle law, as well as recertification in CPR and First Responder training is being completed throughout the Fall and Winter for all sworn personnel.

Two officers were sent to training regarding defending against edged weapons. This training was provided free of cost by the state.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF JAN. 4, 2010

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Events could inspire adventurous Lambs looking to make a major career or personal move. But as always, get all the facts before rushing into any sort of deal or commitment.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) What seems to be a great opportunity could cause even usually practical Taureans to ignore their inner caution cues. Best to move carefully to avoid falling into unseen traps.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Need a holiday now that the seasonal festivities are behind you? Good idea. Plan to go to someplace wonderful. You'll return refreshed and more than ready for a new challenge.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Progress continues to be made on that pesky workplace problem. Meanwhile, don't assume a personal situation will work itself out. Best to get more involved earlier than later.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Catnaps are definitely recommended for Leos and Leonas who had been going at a hectic pace over the holidays. Adding relaxation time to your schedule helps restore your overdrawn energy reserves.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Sure, some of the new friends you made over the holidays might move out of your life at some point. But at least one might show significant "staying power" with some encouragement.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Encourage family members to join you in supporting a relative who could be facing a difficult emotional challenge in the New Year. Showing your love and concern helps keep his or her hopes up.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) While a long-deferred decision suddenly might take on some urgency after news on a related matter, you still need to weigh all factors carefully before deciding one way or the other.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This is a good time to reassess the earlier plan you made for the New Year. Some elements you felt you could depend on to make it work might no longer carry that assurance.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Forming a renewed connection with a former associate is only the first step toward working out your new plans. Be prepared for problems, and deal with them as soon as they arise.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A romantic situation that was going smoothly not too long ago might take a new turn. Be honest about your feelings before you decide whether to follow it or take another path.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The wise Pisces (that's you, of course) will make sure everyone knows you plan to keep your options open and listen to all sides of the situation before making any decisions.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Rockland ice sculptor puts frosting on Boston's First Night

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

If this week's cold temperatures are any indication, then "First Night Boston 2010," taking place Dec. 31 from 1 p.m. to midnight, will be a good one for the annual event's signature ice sculptures — which this year will include two by Rockland-based master carver Steve Rose. On the Boston Common Frog Pond, Rose will recreate one of the ancient Egyptian sculptures now on display in "The Secrets of the Tomb 10A: Egypt 2000 BC" exhibit at Boston's Museum of Fine Arts. Rose will also use the Frog Pond as his gallery for "First Night Frogs," a celebration of the Common's popular Tadpole Playground.

Rose's company, Ice Effects, specializes in large-scale special events and winter outdoor ice events. Rose constructed the massive, transparent block of ice that encased magician David Blaine during the magician's November 2000 "Frozen in Time" stunt in New York's Times Square.

In addition to Rose's contributions, this year's First Night will present four additional ice sculptures. They will include recreations of Botticelli's "Venus" and "Fisherman," an adaptation of Winslow Homer's classic 19th century painting, by ice sculptors Eric Fontecchio and Alfred Georgs, both set for Copley Square, and a carving by Donald Chappelle to be entitled "Michelangelo Sculpting David" on Boston Common.

Those who enjoy their ice sculptures with a touch of whimsy might want to head to New England Aquarium to check out Chapelle's other installation featuring a half-dozen five-foot tall "Penguins."

And, although it isn't an official First Night offering, Suffolk University will continue its own New Year's Eve ice sculpture tradition, begun in 2006 on the occasion of the University's centennial. Suffolk is currently restoring the historic Modern Theatre in Boston's Downtown Crossing and this year plans to present a frosty recreation of the once grand movie palace outside its Law School building, David J. Sargent Hall, at 120 Tremont St., on the foot of Beacon Hill.

The nation's oldest and largest New Year's Eve arts celebration, First Night presents not only ice sculptures, but also a host of arts, music, dance events, and fireworks in 35 Boston locations. All outdoor events are free, but supported by sales of the First Night button which is available at Boston-area Shaw's, Star Market, Tedeschi's, Store 24, and Au Bon Pain locations. For a complete "First Night Boston 2010" schedule, or to purchase a button online, visit firstnight.org.

Web Jams 3 winner Tongue-N-Groove to play Plymouth's Guru Grille Jan. 8

By Alice Coyle
ACOYLE@CNC.COM

It's been said that imitation is the greatest form of flattery.

If so, the Allman Brothers, Led Zeppelin, Pink Floyd, Lynyrd Skynyrd, should be flattered each time the Tongue-N-Groove band takes the stage to perform.

Recently voted winners of Wicked Local Web Jams 3, Gatehouse Media's online battle of the bands, the West Bridgewater-based funk/rock/jam band has been covering the music of the aforementioned bands and many others for the past decade.

But don't call them a cover band. They prefer the label "variety band" to better describe the wide range of musical styles the talented group performs at club venues and private functions throughout southeastern Massachusetts.

As the band's name suggests, the musicians that make up Tongue-N-Groove mesh together well and have great chemistry, whether rehearsing weekly at lead singer and guitarist Paul Wabrek's West Bridgewater home or performing live at various local venues like the Raynham Greyhound Park Lounge, Christopher's in Raynham, Playoffs in Fall River and Hanabi in Marshfield.

Wabrek and bass player, Ralph Whittemore started the band in 1995, and had played in other bands for many years before that. Wabrek was previously front man for Auditory Imagery – a signed heavy metal band, and Whittemore and guitarist Dan Dykes played together in another popular band called Triphammer.

Tongue-N-Groove started out as a threesome, but the group has worked with several musicians over the years including current keyboardist Brad Piche. With the recent addition of drummer Paul Lourenco, the band is now a crowd-pleasing party of five.

And while the thirty-something members all have day-jobs, Dykes says they would love to do the band as a full time gig.

"That's the reason we all started playing music," he says. "We love it."

Tongue-N-Groove's self-proclaimed mission is to "deliver passionate, high energy performances of classic hits with 'dead on' accuracy."

Tongue-N-Groove is...

Paul Wabrek – Vocals, guitar
Ralph Whittemore – Bass, backing vocals
Paul Lourenco – Drums, percussion
Dan Dykes – Guitar, backing vocals
Brad Piche – Keyboards, backing vocals

Forget the American Idol adage of "making it your own," Dykes says the band prides itself on playing and performing as close to the original hits as possible.

"It's not a focus to make it our own," adds Wabrek. "That can turn people off. In fact it can be presumptuous to go and change a great song. We like to do it as close as possible to the original."

They usually hit the mark thanks to lead singer Wabrek's ability to "do voices," Dykes says.

"Paul can go from AC/DC to Elton John to a Reggae song. He can pull off all kinds of voices."

"We work to emulate the artist, nailing it as sounds," says Dykes. "It's easy to get lazy. We do the agonizing work to make it as close to the original as we can."

And that makes Tongue-N-Groove particularly popular at the venues and private events for which they play. Whether it's a club or restaurant or banquet room for the South Shore Association of Realtors function, the band's goal is to get people up and grooving on the dance floor.

"We're best at rock, funk and stuff that people dance to," Wabrek says.

"We do whatever it takes to fire up a crowd and we love surprising people with our range," Dykes adds.

Southern rock is a specialty for the group, but there is no limit on what they'll play as long as it's great music. "We cater to what the gig is calling for," Dykes says.

Which means Tongue-N-Groove's play list could include anything from Bob Marley, Stevie Wonder and James Brown, to the Rolling Stones, Pink Floyd, Earth, Wind and Fire and more recent music by Kings of Leon and Cage the Elephant.

"We like to change it up, keep it rotating and keep it fresh," says Wabrek.

"It's all about the thrill of entertaining people on a large-scale level," adds Whittemore. "We aim to please."

And they listen to their fans, with whom they can network and share music on their Myspace and Facebook pages.

Facebook turned out to be a big help in promoting their participation in Wicked Local Web Jams 3, Dykes notes.

"Without Facebook, we would have had a very different experience with Web Jams," he says. "It's priceless, and it's free."

It's a way to get the word out about upcoming shows and find out what fans want to hear when they come to catch their act.

"We're trying to figure out a way to poll our fans to list the top five bands they'd like us to cover – and develop a play list," Wabrek says.

They also take requests — on the spot. Wabrek recalls one gig they played where they received a request for Bon Jovi's hit song "Wanted Dead or Alive."

It wasn't part of the band's set list and they didn't know the words, but Wabrek said the woman who requested it, wrote down the lyrics at a table and gave it to them and the band managed to play a crowd-pleasing rendition.

Tongue-N-Groove is always learning new songs to play and perform at shows,

"A band's act can be come stale if they're not careful," Wabrek says. "We want audiences to always walk away feeling like they have been thoroughly entertained."

The band has released three CDs — "Truth" (1998), "Live at the Liberty Lounge," (1998) and Better Than Never" (2001) and fans can download their music on their Myspace page.

Tongue-N-Groove members have also ventured into original music with a side project titled "Gypsycho" (2005), but now find the art of perfecting other styles of music the most gratifying.

And there is room for originality, Wabrek says. With the "fade outs" on many of the recorded versions of the songs the band plays, there is an opportunity for Tongue-N-Groove to come up with some cool endings and to do "mash ups" blending two or more songs together as part of their set.

"We put the Stones' "Miss You" and "Emotional Rescue" together and jump back and forth between the two songs," says Wabrek. "We also do a cool Stevie Wonder medley with six songs."

With a light performing schedule in the next few weeks, the band is looking forward to taking advantage of their Web Jams 3 prize – 10 hours a free studio time courtesy of MDI Productions of Plymouth.

"We hope to get at least one cover demo recorded, said Dykes. "This will get us jump started."

Tongue-N-Groove will play a Web Jams winner show Jan. 8 at the Guru Grille in Plymouth. Theater review

Mama Mia still a winner

CORRESPONDENT

If you're looking for something to replace the endless loop of Christmas songs playing in your head right about now, then you may want to check out "Mamma Mia!" at Boston's Colonial Theatre. The show includes all the ABBA music you could ever want, of course, including "SOS," "Dancing Queen," "Money, Money, Money," "Knowing Me, Knowing You" and some 20 other pop hits originally recorded by the Swedish super group. An enduring powerhouse at theater box offices worldwide since 2001 when it first played Boston on its way to Broadway, "Mamma Mia!" has a score that will stay with you for days.

With music and lyrics by Benny Andersson and Bjorn Ulvaeus, and a clever and sweet book by Catherine Johnson, "Mamma Mia!" is set on a fictional Greek island where Donna Sheridan (a disappointing Michelle Dawson) owns and runs a taverna. Donna's daughter Sophie (a sweet-voiced Liana Hunt) is engaged to be married to a young local, Sky (an appealing Adam Jacobs), and, before she walks down the aisle, hopes to learn the identity of her father. When her mother's diary reveals that it could be any one of a trio of men from her past, Sophie decides to invite all three to Greece for her wedding without consulting Donna. The men, Harry Bright (played by standby John Michael Zuerlain at last week's press night), Bill Austin (Martin Kildare) and Sam Carmichael (a bland John Hemphill) may not know of their possible daughter, but they do remember Donna and so they travel to Greece for the wedding as do two of Donna's old friends from her days as lead singer of "Donna and the Dynamos," three-time divorcee Tanya (a too-cartoonish Rachel Tyler) and the unmarried but still-open-to-the-idea Rosie (the game Kittra Winn Coomer.)

"Mamma Mia!" will be at the Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston St., Boston, through Dec. 27.

It packs enough punch to put you in a good mood for days - not such a bad thing, especially during the holiday season.

If you're a romantic then you'll probably overlook the plot implausibilities, and if you're not, then you're best advised to sit back and let one great, familiar song after another wash over you like warm waves from the Aegean Sea. A mostly solid cast takes mugging to an almost criminal level, but still captures the spirit and humor of these highly appealing characters. One of this production's weakest links, however, is sadly also its lead. Earlier Donnas, like Dee Hoty on the first national tour, have blown the roof off the Colonial with soaring, thrilling vocals on the climactic act two anthem "The Winner Takes it All." Dawson's voice barely reaches the rafters, however, robbing the moment of its intended emotional power.

Director Phyllidia Lloyd and choreographer Anthony Van Laast keep the cast moving to the music on production designer Mark Thompson's simple, but appealing Greek island set which is appropriately sun-splashed thanks to fine work by lighting designer Howard Harrison.

This fifth Boston visit isn't likely to be this show's most memorable, but if you do go make sure you stick around for the high-energy encore. It packs enough punch to put you in a good mood for days - not such a bad thing, especially during the holiday season. Besides, would you really want to leave without hearing 'Waterloo?'

"Mamma Mia!" will be at the Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston St., Boston, through Dec. 27. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 800-982-2787 or go online at broadwayacrossamerica.com.
